The United States, whose settled history goes back only slightly more than 350 years, is an infant compared to Yedmen, which Bible readers have heard of before, and which as early as the seventh century Before Christ had a dam which watered the parched sands for hundreds of miles. That dam lasted until the sixth century Anno Domini and some of the material from the dam is still visible in the area, according to Leila. "I don't think they have ever studied that material to find out what it is", she says. "It looks like new, white cement".

However, a new dam is now being built in the same area by Turkish and French companies and will soon be in operation.

The economy of Yemen is mostly agricultural, which is being improved with the help of American specialists. The people grow alfalfa, sorghum, grains, vegetables, and grapes, and are just beginning with fruit trees. Their meat comes from sheep, augmented by imported beef.

Yemen's exports are small, although the Hunt Oil Company of Texas has recently discovered oil in the country, which if the wells hold out, could be an export boon.

Yemen's imports far exceed its exports, but the imports are largely in foreign money and foreign aid. The United States send mostly environmental aid to help develop such needed utilities as water systems and solar energy. Peace Corps volunteers do their part, as do those young Yemeni who receive scholarships to study in the United States and elsewhere.

As might be expected in a country like Yemen, which is made up of many tribes, manual crafts are the basis of its "manufacture". Making silver jewelry is an ancient trade in Yemen. It is sold in special markets and some of it is exported.

Stoneware, chiseled from earthen stone, is made for cooking and serving utensils. Jambiyas, a special dagger worn by men is a popular craft item. The handles are made from cow or rhinoceros horns (the latter now being banned), and the dagger itself is covered in a leather sheath carved with designs reflecting the status of the wearer.

Basketry is a big business, with two notably different styles. Those that come from the highlands are colorful and decorative; those that come from the Red Sea area are natural in color and utilitarian.

Paul and Leila brought home several samples of these and other crafts.

According to Paul, perhaps one of the most noticeable differences in culture of the Yemeni and Americans is that of chewing Qat, pronounced "Got". The leaves of this locally-grown plant act as a mild stimulant (much like several cups of coffee) and are an important social institution. They are chewed during afternoon social get-togethers when men talk over business or marriage arrangements, or just reflect and relax. About 50 percent of the women also chew Qat regularly about once a week. Many men partake of it every afternoon, and some only on weekends. At as much as $30 to $40 a day, it can become an expensive habit, Paul added.

While Qat has been clinically tested and declared non habit-forming, there is some controversy in Yemen about its use, especially because it is an appetite suppressant and can lead to malnutrition. Qat is

Hitting it big

by Doug Truax

I have been daydreaming this week about how to spend the $10 million the Wednesday lotto will bring me.

I plunked $5 down and fully expect to cover my bet, plus about $9,999,995. By the time you read this I will already be agonizing over what to do with the excess.

Generally, the lottery does not interest me much. You have a better chance of being hit by a cab in downtown Charlevoix than in collecting the prize money. But every now and then I am bit by the lure of an especially juicy prize, like the $10 million plus now dangling before the public. Or perhaps it is that I am suckered by the advertising.

Either way, a few times a year I make my way to the lotto counter and try to put together a string of lucky numbers, as though pure random selection will give way just this once to some divine intervention.

THE FUN OF PLAYING is in imagining what I would do with the booty once it was in my sweaty little hands. Everyone in the country must go through this mental fantasy. How many times a year, I wonder, does the average American dream of hitting it big? Five hundred? One thousand? I think it must be more.

And do the rich do this more than the poor? The unhappy more than the well adjusted? Someone should do a study. On second thought, I am sure they already have.

HEARING PEOPLE'S dreams of what they would do with the money is a little like giving them a Rorschach test. My own response ranges from revenge to fear.

How easy it would be, with a wad of money in hand, to serve up just retribution to any who have served you ill. It is not a particularly charitable thought, but there it is. Nothing big or sinister, mind you, just a little setting the record straight, balancing the scales of justice. Money could do wonders.

My second thought is always that it would be the absolute worst curse that could ever befall a man or woman. We have all heard the stories of how winning the lotto led to a life of indolence, drugs, anxiety, you name it. Easy money goes against the very heart of the American work ethic: you must earn what you get.

Of course the truth is that most Americans who are filthy rich have won their own private lotto at birth – they got it the old fashioned way, they inherited it. I remind myself, as well, that all of us who grew up with watching "The Millionaire" on television have been indoctrinated into believing that sudden wealth corrupts.

I come back to the pleasures of spending the money on myself, family, friends. Having shaken the guilt and fear my imagination is now free to soar. I could travel, fish endlessly, live blissfully without another deadline.

My thoughts crest higher. Imagine, I could even live debt free – no mortgage, no credit card debt, no car payments...

Now that would be un-American.

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

A new gimmick in telecommunications is being used by some area businesses.

It is going to make it easier for them to keep track of long distance telephone calls.

Under the system, each employee is assigned his own personal code number which must be punched into the telephone number before a long distance call can be completed.

The system not only protects businesses from unauthorized use of their telephone lines for personal long-distance calls but also should simplify life for the Ameritech people when it comes to defending their statements of charges.

The telephone company will be able to report the number called as well as the code number of the person who placed the call. Employees, for their own protection, are urged to keep their codes in the strictest confidence.

All of which leaves me breathless when I consider how far communications have advanced since the days when I was a kid.

In the 1930s, almost no one placed a long-distance telephone call. The service was available, but sound transmission was so poor you could hardly tell what the person at the other end of the line was saying. And little wonder. There were no satellites, and every call had to go through battalions of operators over a maze of landlines. You could hear the operators switching your call manually from point to point to point across the country.

If you had a really important message that really had to get through, you sent a telegram via your conveniently located Western Union office. Telegrams were dispatched by electro-magnetic impulses and materialized at the receiving end on yellow strips of teletype paper. The strips were clipped into five-inch segments and pasted on Western Union message forms.

Then a boy on a bicycle flew up to your house and delivered the telegram in person.

You had to keep your telegrams short if you wanted the bargain basement rate.

"UNCLE SAM DIED 14TH STOP FUNERAL 17TH 10:30 WINCHESTERS STOP JOE

Chances are Joe would receive receive a reply in a matter of hours.

"DEVASTATED STOP ARRIVE 16TH I AM C&O STOP PETE

The above meant that Pete was sorry to learn Uncle Sam had died. He planned to attend the funeral and would arrive in town at 1 a.m. on the 16th of the month at the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad station — with the clear implication that he expected someone to pick him up.

Telegram punctuation was kept to a minimum. "Stop" was the same as a period at the end of a sentence. If you couldn't attend the funeral, it was customary to send a longer telegram — or a so-called "night letter" — expressing condolences. Night letters usually were cheaper than telegrams since they were transmitted overnight when there was little commercial traffic on the lines.

Sometimes the bereaved kept a sheaf of telegrams near the coffin so Uncle Sam could sit up in the middle of the night to see who cared and who didn't give a damn.

Generally, however, the family viewed a big bouquet of telegrams as evidence Uncle Sam would be fondly remembered. After the funeral, some families would mount the telegrams in a scrapbook, along with a lock of Uncle Sam's hair, if he had any.

If nothing else, improvements in long-distance telephone service have done away with such ghoulish practices.

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Are there any novel readers out there in newspaper land? I could not survive without reading. Most of the books I read are connected with Bible study and sermon preparation. But occasionally, I sneak in a novel or two just for fun.

Now, are you ready for this? Let's just suppose it is one of those stories where the hero starts out in a whole pack of trouble. Guess what I have been known to do? I slip over to the back and read the last chapter first just to make sure he's going to make it okay.

Once I've done that, I can plunge back into the main story and know no matter what the villain does, no matter how many times the hero gets tied up, shot at or almost drowned, I know he's going to make it. And the villain, why he's a dead duck.

I have a book that is far more wonderful and precious than any novel. It is called the Holy Bible. It tells me where we came from and where we are going. If I open it some places, it looks as though the devil will surely win. But, let him boast and blow and let all his henchmen strut. I've read the last pages of my Bible and he is not even in the picture. He is gone and a whole lot of other things are gone too.

In Hosea 14, the prophet asks, "who is wise? He will realize these things." I know there are times when life seems hard for everyone but realize who is on your side. God is here to breathe new life into us. He is here to bring hope and encouragement to every uphill struggle.

The prophet continues, "who is discerning? He will understand them." God is calling all of us to repent, to experience a real change of heart. Novels can be fun to read but not to live out. God's message is one of hope and help. From Genesis to Revelation, the Bible shares with us the wonder of new life in Christ that will see you through any situation.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

The boating season has just about come to an end. Except for the November 15 "Deer Hunters Alternative" sponsored by the Charlevoix Yacht Club, and an occasional sailboat, fisherman or power boat on its way to being pulled for the season, the waterways are quiet.

At the October Board of Directors meeting, Harbor Master Del Terrill gave a thorough presentation of the Charlevoix city marina boating activity from May 1 to October 1. The Chamber applauds the hard work, long hours and great image Del Terrill gave to Charlevoix.

The city marina has 40 boat slips and two pump out stations. Six docks will accommodate boats as long as 60 feet. The marina office hours are 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. seven days a week. Two full-time dock hands were also employed.

Using a little imagination, and a good, system, Del reported the longest waiting list of boats trying to tie up in Charlevoix was around twelve. Another good idea was to increase the shoppers docks from 2 to 4. Thanks for a record-setting summer at the city marina, Del.

The current high water will post potential problems for the city docks this winter, as the ice moves around, especially towards spring. The city is investigating bubbling the docks to ensure movement of the water and prevent ice formation.

As boating activity on the lakes increases, Charlevoix will continue to remain a popular destination because of its natural harbor, good service and proximity to Lake Charlevoix.

Letters to the Editor:

Faith in honor system shaken by theft

Dear Editor:

For over 25 years Smith's Little Acre fruit and vegetable stand in Charlevoix has operated on the honor system.

We put our produce on our outdoor stand, posted the prices and placed a money pail for our customers' convenience. People selected what they wanted, then put money in the pail and made their own change.

So when Clayton opened his hunting and trapping cabin-museum nearby we left the door open and the sign said: "Free. Come in and look around."

Clayt has unique and antique items in the cabin as well as the usual gear for hunters and trappers. Literally hundreds of visitors have touched, viewed and enjoyed the displays and nothing has been taken. Until this past week.

Two old guns, wired to a display board and mounted high on one of the beams, have disappeared.

A double barrel 12 gauge shotgun with a high hammer had come from Clayt's family.

A handmade, breech-load single-shot rifle, about .25 caliber, with a decorative engraving on the stock - a pigeon sitting on a branch - had been handed down through Kay's family.

Aside from the monetary and sentimental value, we feel sorriest that someone has shaken our faith in the honor system.

The cabin-museum is still available free of charge, but if you want to go inside, please call for an appointment, 547-2920.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Terry (Tex) Drenth

Sowers - Drenth

Rhonda Michelle Sowers and Terry (Tex) Drenth were married Oct. 4 at the Belltower Reformed Church of Ellsworth. The Rev. James Heneveld performed the double ring rites in the presence of 300 wedding guests.

The bride is the daughter of Ron and Katie Sowers of Ellsworth. The groom's parents are Art and Jean Drenth of Ellsworth.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a Victorian style gown of taffeta with a high lace collar. The bodice featured a deep V trimmed in lace, sequins and pearls. The full-length sleeves were trimmed in silk venise lace with a lace inset from the elbows to the wrist. Her veil was attached to a tiara of white roses and beaded pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of white and pink roses with white ribbon streamers.

Pianist was Artie Jones and organist Sharon Alofs. Soloists were Patricia Sowers and Lorri Hargareaves. A duet was sung by Kevin Heneveld and Lorri Hargareaves.

Patricia Sowers attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Vicki Balon; Shirley Boss, sister of the groom; Sandy McMurray and Jennifer Ritt. The maid of honor wore a burgundy taffeta gown and the bridesmaids wore dusty rose taffeta gowns. The attendants carried long stemmed pink and burgundy roses with baby's breath. They wore arrangements of roses in their hair.

Flower girl was Jenny Drenth, niece of the groom. She wore a dusty rose taffeta gown with white lace around the neck and dusty rose and burgundy flowers embroidered on the front. She carried a white lace basket of dusty rose and burgundy roses and baby's breath.

Dennis (Hud) Drenth served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Dave Heeres, Brian Howes, Jeff Ewing and Steve Drenth, cousin of the groom. Ringbearer was Chad James.

A reception was held at the Ellsworth Community Building hosted by the parents of the bride and groom. The Ellsworth Lioness Club served the food.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held at the Lamplight Inn of Central Lake.

The couple traveled to the Upper Peninsula and visited Neebish Island and Ontario, Canada for their honeymoon. They are residing in Ellsworth. (Photo courtesy Jim Elzinga)

St. Mary's auction arrives

"I've got five; who'll give me six?" will ring out Saturday at St. Mary Parish Center as Carl Miller auctions a variety of items ranging from apples to cord wood and a sailboat at the annual fall auction sponsored by St. Mary Parish.

"You name it. We have it" was the response to what will be available at the sale which will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Center on South Bridge Street and continue until 2 p.m.

There will even be concession stands for the convenience of salegoers.

Coffee house raises funds

The Open Door Christian Coffee House will be having a fund raising all-you-can-eat chili supper Friday, Nov. 14, prior to firearms deer season. The coffee house is located in downtown East Jordan on Main Street next to City Hall. The supper will include hot chili, salads, fresh home-made bread, milk and coffee. Prices are $3.50 for adults; seniors, $2.50 and kids ages 6-12, $2. Children under five are free.

United Way reaches halfway mark

The United Way of Charlevoix's 1986 fundraising campaign has passed the halfway mark with pledges collected so far amounting to $17,500. This year's goal is $35,000.

The single biggest pledge, totalling $5,488, has come from the United Autoworkers Local 1603 at Wickes Mechanical Components Division of East Jordan and pledges from the local are still being received.

Campaign solicitors will be working hard during the first week of November to bring the pledge total closer to the year's goal, United Way officials said. People who have received pledge cards are urged to return them as soon as possible.

"Payroll deduction, the easiest way to make a donation, is proving to be increasingly popular as more employees agree to its use at their workplaces," the 1986 campaign chairman Lt. Col. Robert J. Rajewski (ret.) said. Individuals who are not being contacted at their places of employment are invited to send contributions directly to the United Way at P.O. Box 532, Charlevoix. Checks should be made payable to the United Way of Charlevoix.

Ninety-two percent of the money collected in the local campaign stays in the local community. The remaining funds go to the national agency to support medical research and other national programs.

NOTICE OF REGISTRATION BY HOME SCHOOLS

"Information and the form are available to parents who are teaching their children at home, for filing as a nonpublic school. The materials are available at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, located on Mercer Boulevard, Charlevoix. The forms are due at the ISD office by November 1st each year or, for 1986, two weeks after this notice.

Runners take 2nd in state

The Charlevoix Rayders, plagued by injuries throughout most of the season, placed second in the State Class C Cross Country meet at Cass City Saturday, behind defending champion Benzie Central.

The Rayders had 98 points, 14 behind the team that has been their nemesis for two years, Benzie Central, who had 84 points.

Pat Rajewski top finisher for the Rayders, finished sixth in the team race and ninth overall to earn a berth on the All-State team, Coach Pete Spieles said.

"This was not our best race," Spieles said. "We had a hard day while Benzie ran a super race, their best of the season."

"Pat ran a good race," he continued, "while Doug (Bergmann) who had not run for four weeks was definitely not at his best. He had been swimming and bicycling to keep in shape but had not been on his knee to give it time to heal. Kevin McLenon and Gehry Wiesner started out too fast and spent too much energy early in the race. Scott Miller and Joe Simpson ran well. Sean Henne didn't run all week and when he did he re-injured the muscle some place in the race. Under the circumstances, they all did well," he concluded.

This is the tenth year the Rayders, under Spieles, have qualified for state competition.

The team placed second in 1985; third in 1984; first in 1983 and 1982.

Benzie did not falter late in the race as they have in the past, Spieles added.

Benzie placed three runners who finished in second, third and fourth places Saturday, on the All-State team.

Rajewski finished sixth in the time of 16:28.1; Bergmann, 16th in 16:45.9; Scott Miller, 22nd, 16:58.1; Joe Simpson, 23rd, 16:58.5; Kevin McLenon, 31st, 17:09.7.

The sixth runner, Gehry Wiesner, 39th, 17:21.3 and the seventh Sean Henne, 60th, 17:43.4.

The best time in the team race was posted by Greg Parker of Capac, 15:57.5.

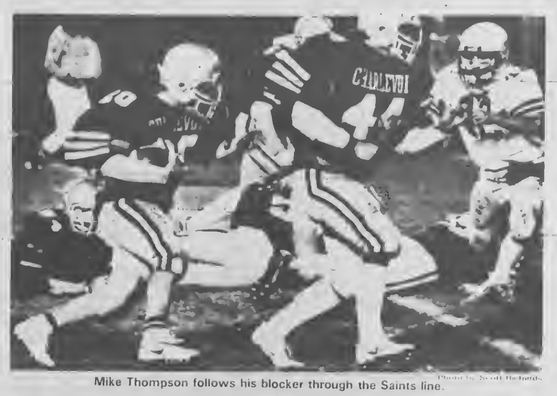
The best time, however, was set by Adam Norman of Kalkaska, 15:54.1 in the boys individual race.

In the individual girls race, Michelle North ran a good race, coming in 34th in 20:59.9 to climax four years on the cross country team. Betsy Haggard was 51st in 22:17.0.

"For Michelle it was a great year because she finally got through a season without an injury and was able to run in a state meet," Spieles said. Betsy, a junior, will have another year with the team, Spieles added.

The best time for the girls race was 18:33.7 set by Jeanne Spitler of Montague in the individual race.

Bergmann, Simpson and McLenon are seniors.



Mike Thompson follows his blocker through the Saints line.

St. Ignace wins finale 50-14

St. Ignace crushed Charlevoix's hopes of winning a share of the Class C division football title in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference with a 50-14 Saints victory at Kipke Field Friday night.

St. Ignace closed the year with a strong 7-2 record with the only defeats coming at the hands of class B powers Cheboygan and Gaylord.

The Saints finished with a 5-0 record against the league's other five class C schools. Charlevoix finished up at 4-5. If the Rayders could have won they would have shared the class C portion of the M-HSC.

The Saints built a 20-0 lead in the first period as Darren LaVake, the league's total yardage leader, scored from the 20, freshman Jimbo Brown ran 9 yards to paydirt and then Pat Gallagher took a pass interception 15 yards for the third TD. Gallagher added a two-point conversion.

In the second quarter, Gallagher scored from the 9 and Rich Sayles kicked the point after for a 27-0 lead.

The Saints hit paydirt in the third quarter when LaVake ran 20 yards with Brown running the conversion.

Girls approach title showdown

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team went to the free throw line to avenge an earlier loss to Cheboygan, defeating their hosts 39-35 in a strong defensive battle.

"It was a team effort all the way. The defensive game played by Ellen Pearl in holding Cheboygan's top scorer to less than 10 points made the difference," Coach Henry Wagner said of the win.

Charlevoix jumped to a 10-5 first period lead, increased their lead to 10 points, 24-14 at halftime and, though Cheboygan whittled their lead to 27-22 going into the final period held on to win.

The Rayders were outscored 16-12 field goals from the floor but made up the difference from the line scoring on 15 of 28 shots and collecting only eight personal fouls. Cheboygan scored three of 10 from the charity line but had 18 personal fouls.

Amy Fischner led the scoring with 19 points. Ann Kroll had 11 points including nine of 10 from the free-throw line.

The Rayders, now 12-2 overall and 8-2 in league play, are tied with Cheboygan for second place.

Cheboygan took the JV game 47-18. Melissa Boss had seven points. Mindy Robertson had 11 for Cheboygan.

The team will be at St. Ignace on Thursday and will host league leading Gaylord on Nov. 11.

Saints pound Rayder JVs

The Charlevoix Rayder JV football team closed out the season Thursday with a 2-4 record after dropping their final game to St. Ignace by a score of 38-6.

Playing at St. Ignace, the Saints held a 20-0 lead at the quarter and went ahead 32-0 at halftime.

The third period was scoreless. In the final period the Rayders scored from the 1-yard line after working the ball into scoring position from their own 40-yard line on a series of runs and passes. The attempted conversion on a pass failed. The Saints added one more scoring play as time ran out.

Middle School loses pair

The Charlevoix Middle School girls basketball teams dropped games to Boyne City Monday. The seventh-grade score was 51-24 and the eighth-grade score 34-18.

In the seventh-grade game, the local five trailed 31-8 at halftime. Becky Martin had eight points for Charlevoix.

PERSONALS 078

TO MY FRIENDS: The fat lady has finally sung her last note. It was a challenge and a pleasure to put together these classified messages. They got to be very personal and earthly. Many people said they looked forward each week to the next episode. They were the one part of the mayoral campaign that was enjoyable for all of us. They brought attention and softly reminded the reader to also take them seriously, perhaps enough... to vote. I will miss them too. Yes, my friends, it is really over... but not forgotten. Thank you. Sincerely yours, Ralph McRae.

Area libraries receive grants

Northern Lower Michigan public libraries including Crooked Tree District, Jordan Valley District, Boyne City and Charlevoix public libraries, will share in a $15,000 competitive federal grant and $25,000 project to establish 17 "Say Yes to Literacy" centers.

The grant will provide literacy collection materials and staff training in their use to Northland's 17 member libraries. The grant is awarded by the United States Department of Education under Title VI of the Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA).

United States Senator Carl Levin, the Library of Michigan, Alpena Area Literacy Council and Northland's board of trustees and librarians endorsed the grant proposed.

Alessandra Speiles of Charlevoix was elected president of the nine county Northland Literacy Cooperative Board of Trustees at the cooperative's annual meeting Thursday, Oct. 30.

The board tentatively approved a $225,000 operating budget and associate membership in the cooperative for newly established Beaver Island District Library.

The Library of Michigan reports 13 Michigan libraries were successful among some 1,000 libraries applying for the LSCA funds. Michigan libraries received $265,000 for a record 5.6 percent of the total $47 million in LSCA funding available.

Northland director Sue Williams notes the grant is unusual in awarding funds for purchase of literacy books, which are a particular need of the region's rural libraries with limited book budgets. The books are specially developed readers with adult content in formats presented in grammar level vocabularies.

Northland is also the recipient of two other grants which will extend the use of the "Say Yes To Literacy" centers. A $5,000 Library of Michigan LSCA Title I grant and a $2,200 Northeast Michigan Community Foundation grant are providing for purchase of audio book and cassette book collections to encourage the reading interests and skills of persons with low vision, dyslexia and other reading disabilities that affect literacy.

The "Say Yes to Literacy" centers are slated to open in area public libraries during National Literacy Week in April.

McRae calls for investigation over two years. McRae said VanTreese improperly represented both the city and the bank which was selling the property through a bankruptcy proceeding.

The city of Charlevoix has agreed to purchase the property for $215,000 plus holding costs. McRae charged that the property should not have cost any more than the $150,000 listed as the value on the bankruptcy documents.

"Substantial evidence indicates that a client of his did receive valuable consideration, and did benefit directly from the sale of the property," McRae said. "He continued to have the appraisal set at the very highest amount to benefit his client."

VanTreese denied that he was guilty of any conflict of interest or misrepresented the city in any way.

"Mr. McRae is upset that the city paid the contract price for the purchase of that property," he said. "Mr. McRae filed a grievance with the Attorney Grievance Commission. There was a complete investigation and they found no grounds for any type of action."

"It is significant," he added, "that a recent appraisal of the property was over $300,000."

McRae charged that an appraisal done by VanTreese's brother led to the setting of the final price. VanTreese said the brother did the appraisal for the Huntington National Bank in Dayton, Ohio and it had nothing to do with the sale price.

picked from commercial fields and marketed daily in the cities and villages. Although it is Yemen's largest crop, it is never mentioned in agricultural reports.

Paul and Leila lived in a large house near the Institute. "They build their houses to make them very decorative. There are no two alike", Leila explained. They often put plaster from Alabaster around their colored glass windows and the inside walls are usually white".

Water's Edge hearing

bridges; a clubhouse with pool, sauna, exercise room, offices and other amenities; two tennis courts; and a 68-slip marina with boat slips up to 40 feet.

TECHNICALLY, the joint public hearing was called by the DNR and the Corps to evaluate the plan's dredging and filling for the marina and the construction and filling in the wetlands. The developers - First Centrum Corp. and Water's Edge Partnership - want to place 22,690 yards of sandy soil in some 9.37 acres of wetlands.

The marina would include a 435-foot pier-breakwater, most of it constructed with steel sheet piling and capped in concrete.

The Water's Edge site includes 1,450 feet of frontage and is located on Lake Charlevoix at the south edge of Charlevoix Township. The additional 10 acre parcel is located in Marion Township.

Permits for the project must be approved independently by both the Corps and the DNR. A decision on the Corps permits is expected in 45-60 days. The DNR said it would have its decision in 30-45 days.

FIRST CENTRUM also revealed a "mitigation" plan at the hearing that would attempt to create 18.8 acres of wetland on property currently owned by Medusa just north of Bell's Bay Road and west of the Charlevoix Airport.

The creation of this new wetland would be to mitigate the loss of 8.69 acres of wetland lost during the construction of Water's Edge.

Eugene Jaworski, an environmental consultant for the developer, said 21 acres of the 40.46 acre site was wetland. After the project, he said, 7.72 acres of wetland would be preserved. 5.49 "enhanced" and the 8.69 lost completely.

Jaworski described the wetlands at Water's Edge as "largely a white cedar swamp" that is not rare in Michigan. He said the wetland functions only for ground water discharge and does not receive runoff or trap sediments.

"This wetland is virtually unconnected to Lake Charlevoix," Jaworski said. "It has no effect on the lake either in its natural state or after it is developed."

Rob McLennan, water resource specialist for the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, had a different view. He said the Watershed Council opposed the planned mitigation proposal. Mitigation, he said, is used only for the unavoidable destruction of wetland.

He also questioned the value of the ponds or wetlands, in the middle of the dominium units and then asserted that the wetland did not affect Lake Charlevoix. "The destruction of the cedar swamp may be an important effect on Lake Charlevoix," he added.

"While this wetland may not be unique, it does not mean that it should be allowed to be under the blades of the bulldozers," McLennan said. "We are not opposed to the development, but we think it can be done to preserve the wetlands that are already there."

Edwin Crook, another opponent of the project, said "wetlands should not be filled unless for the public good. What kind of a precedent are we setting here when the developer has land that can be developed - what happens when the next developer comes along who wants to build on land that is only wetland?"

Charlevoix Councilman Jack Probert told the hearing he was concerned that any building on the wetland would be done against the wishes of the voters who turned down the rezoning of the property to Charlevoix Township residential.

Richard Lobenberg of Ski and Shore Realty spoke in favor of the proposal. "We need to provide an area where contractors can put," he said.

The parties to the proposed agreement, Lobenberg said, "have a lot of time on the project" and he would "hate to see it all thrown away."

Don Berlage, a Charlevoix attorney representing the North Michigan Development Co., said his group and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce had endorsed the project. An important criterion should be "what the project contributes to the economy." For development work in place to the north and south of Charlevoix, "Lake Michigan for all practical purposes is already developed."

He added that the project was good because it was only 1½ miles from the bridge and 600 yards from the Irish Boat Shop at the border of the city. Growth of that type is more desirable than leapfrog development," he said.

Several lakefront owners in the vicinity of the project objected to the size or the location of the boat pier. The location of the pier on the south end of the property, they said, would mean boat traffic would have to pass in front of their property to get to the marina.

Some also objected to the dredging necessary to create the marina.

Thanks for your support.

Council reconsiders walkway deal

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council decided Monday night at its working session to look at new options for handling the land deal involved in the new walkway at the south end of the U.S. 31 bridge.

An arrangement was in progress whereby attorney Don Berlage would pay the city $4,500 toward stairway construction costs. In exchange, Berlage would be given title to a 14 to 15 foot piece of property running along his building on the south channel bank.

The state Highway Department has title to the property and signed an agreement with Berlage in 1978 which would have transfered the land, which includes the walkway on the side of his building, to Berlage if he contributed $2,650 for a public stairway to the channel.

The stairway was never built and Berlage never got title to the property.

When the DDA began exploring the south bridge walkway, however, it considered updating the deal to go toward the steps and Berlage was reported to be in agreement with the $4,500 fee.

Paul Osterberg, however, challenged the city's course of action at the meeting Monday night. He said he and the late Dr. Walter Hoffmann had fought the 1978 deal. "What disturbs me most is council is not aware of what is going on here," Osterberg said.

He said the $4,500 was "only a pittance" for the value of the parkland. "The problem is, gentlemen, you are selling state land and you are going to become a tenant. The City of Charlevoix can buy this for $1."

"I'd rather be an owner than a tenant," said Mayor Hal Hill.

Osterberg contended that the property in question extends through Hoffmann Park which lies to the west.

Dale Boss told council he supervised a work crew that put a fence up on the border of the Hoffmann property at 3:30 a.m. one Saturday morning to avoid detection. "Possession is nine-tenths of the law," Boss chuckled.

"The cops were going by on Bridge Street, but we got our fence in. The courthouse was closed, otherwise there would have been an injunction."

At that point Mayor Hill observed, "We're in competition with Bill Supernaw (owner of the Cinema III movie theater). We're running a show down here."

Council member Shirley Roloff endorsed the purchase idea. "I'd rather play it safe and do it on our own than to give one inch we don't have to give," she said.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said he would review the options and report back to council in several weeks.

Beaver Is. vote in — finally

by PEG OHLE

Perhaps the last story that will be told about election day 1986 in Charlevoix County is the one about the ballot counting machine on Beaver Island.

As County Clerk Jane Brannon tells it, St. James Township Clerk Vivien Visscher was phoning in the results from the 100 ballots cast in her Township. The ballots had just been counted on the machine and the machine had been turned over to Peaine Township Clerk Joseph Martin so he could count his ballots.

"All of a sudden, I heard in the background something like, 'This blankety-blank machine isn't working'", Jane reports. The machine had quit working after counting the St. James ballots and would have no part of the Peaine Township ballots, she said.

County and Township gave up trying to report Peaine Township's 66 ballots that evening and made plans to put the ballots on the morning boat to Charlevoix. For some reason, perhaps late rising due to the late bedtime of those involved, the ballots "missed the boat". They did arrive in Charlevoix via air on Wednesday, however, and the recalcitrant counter followed later by boat.

New jury system increases the odds of being selected

by PEG OHLE

Local residents who have never been called for jury duty may have a better chance of being called under a new jury selection system.

For many years, jurors have been selected from lists of names compiled from city and township voter registration lists. This means that those who are not registered to vote have no chance whatsoever of being called for jury duty.

Now, under recent legislation, jurors will be selected from lists of local people who have driver's licenses or personal identification cards. The Secretary of State will supply the County Clerk with these lists, and the County Clerk, in turn, will forward them to the Jury Board, which does the actual selecting of names.

Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon believes that under this system, the task of selecting juries will become more difficult. "To begin with, the lists will probably be longer. With no local contact (as in a city or township), we are likely to get names of many people who are deceased. Then there are the 16-year-olds who have driver's licenses but who are not eligible for jury duty. I don't know how they will flag them. And the lists will probably give only mailing addresses, not by townships".

Personal identification cards are issued only to those who do not have driver's licenses, according to a spokesman for the local Secretary of State's office. They contain the same information as a driver's license, and a picture of the individual is imprinted on the card.

Fran Martin, a member of the three-person Charlevoix County Jury Board explains that when the Board receives the lists, it is also told the number of jurors the three courts think they will need for the year. By experience, the Board members have learned how many names they will have to draw in order to give the courts the number they requested. (Illness and other circumstances may be reasons to be excused from jury duty). Then, going down the lists of names, they select every fourth or tenth or 22nd or whatever number that will give them enough people for jury duty in Circuit, District, and Probate Courts for the coming year.

If, in this selection process, the name of a person comes up who one of the Jury Board members knows cannot possibly serve (he's blind or over 90, or works out of town, or whatever), that person is skipped over for the next name.

"It costs 44 cents to send out the questionnaire and stamped return envelope, so we don't want to waste money on those who we know can't serve", Fran told the Courier.

Those in the State Legislature who supported this change in method of selecting jurors argued that driver's license and personal identification

Mayor-elect revives charges against Charlevoix city attorney

by DOUG TRUAX

Some 2½ years after he first raised the issue, Ralph McRae remains convinced that City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese contrived to jack up the price of a piece of property the city was interested buying. VanTreese also had a conflict of interest in performing his duties, McRae believes.

McRae renewed his attack on the city's attorney, as reported in last weeks Charlevoix Courier, soon after he was elected mayor in the November 4 election.

"I'd be a hypocrite to be in the same room with him," McRae said. He called for a public investigation of VanTreese's role in the land sale and for his resignation.

VanTreese denied any wrongdoing. He said McRae's charges are without merit. For anyone to suggest that he benefited from the city's purchase of the property in question, he said, "is ridiculous, malicious and the product of someone's imagination."

VanTreese adds, "It is something McRae dreamed up without anything to support it. There is nothing I did that was unethical, immoral or fattening."

AT THE HEART of the controversy is a complicated land deal through which the city eventually ended up purchasing a parcel of land with 300 feet of frontage on Lake Charlevoix immediately north of Ferry Beach, commonly referred to as the Ferry Beach annex.

On May 14, 1984 Charlevoix Development Co. (CDC), headed by Dick Georgi and Arch Wright, purchased the property, formerly owned by United Toolcraft, in federal bankruptcy court. The city had agreed to repurchase the property from CDC for $200,000 plus $15,000 commission to Ski and Shore Realty and holding costs including interest and taxes.

VanTreese served as legal counsel for Huntington National Bank of Dayton, Ohio, one of Toolcraft's major creditors. He was also city attorney.

MCRAE HAD SEVERAL objections to VanTreese's role in the sale of the property. First, he said, VanTreese should have removed himself as city attorney or as counsel to the bank involved in the bankruptcy sale. Representing the two clients was a conflict of interest, he charged.

Second, he said the city should have paid closer to the $150,000 value that the property was given in the bankruptcy documents filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Southern District of Ohio. McRae further pointed out that the appraised value of the property was $49,000 at the time of the sale, giving the property a retail value of $98,000.

Coast Guard searches cause criticism

by SARA GAY DAMMANN AND DOUG TRUAX

The "Touche," an elegant 48-foot sloop, has been resting quietly in Round Lake for some three months. The tumult of the summer is gone, and only the Touche and a few other stragglers remain in the harbor.

During its quiet and now solitary vigil, the boat has stirred up its share of rumors and speculation. There is talk that the boat was boarded by armed Coast Guard officials.

Neil Newhard of Traverse City pilots his rubber dingy in from the sloop and stops at the city dock to do some maintenance on his ship's batteries. Yes, he says, he was boarded and he is none too happy about it.

On September 6 Newhard and his companion Wendy Don and their two guests headed into Lake Charlevoix for a sail. Just as they had raised the sails, they were hailed by a United States Coast Guard boat, told to lower the sails and permit the Coast Guardsmen to board and search the

Charlevoix Yesterday

This picture was taken on the shores of Round Lake in the early 1920's, when commercial fishing was an important industry in Charlevoix. Jayne Levandoski of Bristol, Wisconsin, who furnished the picture, says Charlevoix was just as beautiful then as it is now.

Charles Dhaseleer receives Grange award

Charles Dhaseleer, a member of the Barnard Grange, was presented recently with the Golden Sheaf award and pin in recognition of his 51 years as a Grange member.

The presentation was made by Roland Winters of Marshall, the Grange State Master who, with Mrs. Winters, was a guest at the recent harvest dinner.

On Friday evening when 90 members and families, ranging in age from 2½ years to more than 99 years gathered for a Halloween costume party. Special guests were Ardeth Mertin of Hart, state Flora, and her husband, Herbert Mertin, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dhaseleer, mother of Charles Dhaseleer, who will be a century old next year.

Prior to the harvest dinner on Saturday, members gathered at the Grange Hall during the day for a work bee to winterize the building. Eighty-five members and their families gathered for the dinner.

At the Halloween party on Friday, most members came in costume with prizes offered in various categories. A social hour featuring a lunch and dancing followed.

Dolls dressed for Hospice

All branches of the Northwestern State Bank are again distributing undressed dolls to persons who want to dress and return them to be sold for the benefit of the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Altogether, the bank has purchased 12 dozen dolls, which have been divided among its offices in Atwood, Bellaire, Boyne City, and East Jordan. According to a bank representative, several dolls are still available in Atwood and some at the other offices.

The dressed dolls must be returned to the bank by November 25. They will be displayed for a silent auction until December 5, and on December 8, auction winners will be notified. Those dolls not auctioned off will be left on display for public sale at a minimum price of $15.

The dressed dolls will be judged for attractiveness on November 28, and those dressing the winning dolls will be awarded prizes furnished by local merchants.

BUYING VS. RENTING

To buy or to rent — that is the question. Both have their place. First, renting can be the answer for families who know they'll only be in the area for a short time or who prefer not to contend with maintenance. It's also the only solution for anyone with insufficient funds for the down payment on a home.

The main disadvantage of renting is a financial one. As living costs rise — so do rents. A lease may protect you temporarily, but when it expires, the landlord is free to increase the rent — even under rent control when justified. Rent payment cannot be deducted from income tax as the homeowner can deduct real estate taxes and interest on the mortgage payments.

Your best buffer against inflation is to own your own home. You'll also be pleasantly surprised to find it also is one of the best financial investments you ever made. Your payments will remain level while your resale value — especially in this area — will continue to rise.

Local business reaches for home market

by ANNE KELLY

"It's not a home party as we know that concept," explained Andree Mathews of her new in-home business endeavor. "'At Home With The Country Coop' is a way of extending our country boutique and services to you and your friends – right at home."

There are no games, no sales pressures and no quotas to meet, according to Mathews. The mini-shop concept is a nationwide trend in home buying which she hopes to initiate in Charlevoix.

"It's a convenience opportunity," she continued. "A selection of our store's merchandise is set up and displayed in the informal, relaxed atmosphere of the home, presented to a group of friends who come to enjoy morning coffee while browsing through Country Coop merchandise."

Gifts on display are available for purchase. It is also possible to place special orders in cases where a customer would prefer another color or fabric.

"The Country Coop deals in handcrafted and country-motif items," Mathews explained. "We are convinced that hand-crafted means better quality. Our clientele are people who appreciate a simple way of life along with all its trappings and wish to incorporate this ethic as part of their life-style.

The relaxed atmosphere of Mathews' shop is a good indication that she thinks of her enterprise as more than a business. "It's more a ministry of helps," she said. I like to help people discover what they can accomplish themselves." The Country Coop also stocks many country craft supplies, from stenciling to basket weaving. "No one should ever hesitate to ask how to do or make something they have seen here. I like helping people."

Chatting with this diminutive soft-spoken lady in her shop, a converted chicken coop, I wondered if the delightful fragrance of potpourri would accompany the mini-shows.

"I guess that's part of the charm," Mathews smiled. "I don't even notice it anymore, but people have told me that the fragrance greets them before they open the door of the shop."

Anyone interested in a home showing of unique gifts and traditional country accents, for shopping convenience may contact Andrea Mathews at The Country Coop, located on Ferry Avenue in Charlevoix.

Students pay 'visit' to Notre Dame

by ANNE KELLY

"How many of you have had the opportunity to visit an art museum in a large city like Detroit, Chicago or New York?", queried Madame Yvonne Wendt of her afternoon French class. Only a few hands were raised. "Well then," continued Mme. Wendt, "we will visit an art museum together, right here in our classroom."

Thanks to an exhibition from the Detroit Museum of Arts, arranged through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, students like these were able to view a scale model of the Cathedral, "Notre-Dame de Paris," and over 30 detailed photographs of its beautiful architecture.

"If we were at Le Louvre, the wonderful French art museum in Paris, we might see many visitors there, classes like your own, there to enjoy, study, and even paint," exuded Mme. to her students, vascillating between French and English as she spoke. "A display like this," she said, gesturing to the encased model, "might be set in the center of a room, with the photographs mounted on the walls all the way around. Today then, we will imagine that we are visiting a museum to view the scale model of "Notre-Dame de Paris" – one of the great cathedrals of Europe, which we have been studying."

Cathedrals like Notre-Dame, were constructed over many years by dedicated artisans and craftsmen from many disciplines. Students were able to view in the model and photographs, examples of the cathedral's architecture, sculpture, paintings and magnificent stained-glass windows. Mme. Wendt had prepared a study guide for them to take on their "tour" to guide their observations around the room.

"A display like this is a wonderful opportunity to provide a hands on experience for our students," Mme. Wendt said. "It was enjoyable to see the reaction from my students who have visited Paris as well. 'Oh, yes,' they say, 'I remember that, I've been there'."

Opinion

'Round Town

BY EDITH GILBERT

SOMEWHERE IN TIME: The culture shock after leaving mainland China and arriving in Hong Kong is like moving from the Manchu Dynasty to the TV Dynasty! POW!

Hong Kong is fabulous, as everyone who has been there always says. The whole city caters to tourists and their slightest whim. I ordered some shoes to be made to order on Monday, had them fitted on Tuesday, and they were delivered to my hotel at midnight on Wednesday – since we were leaving Thursday morning for home. No Problem!

Aside from the wonderful hotels, shops, restaurants and scenic beauty of the sparkling, hilly harbor city, there's another reason I shall always remember Hong Kong fondly.

While my friend and traveling companion, Doris Lundteigen, and I were aimlessly strolling along a shopping center, we came upon an English language bookstore. Jokingly I said, "I wonder if they have my book?" "Let's go see," she said, humoring me. We entered the store and I asked, "Do you have any etiquette books?" "Yes, right here," the salesperson replied. I checked the selection from Canada, England and Australia, and there from America was my book "The Complete Wedding Planner." Well - such excitement! Of course, I offered to autograph their copies and everyone was so pleased. Now that's what I call making my day!

YOU'VE HEARD that people stare at us a lot in China because we foreigners are so different. In the orient EVERYONE has black hair and black eyes. They call us "round eyes" and they marvel at our many shades of hair color, varying from the palest blonde to carrot red to the brownest chestnut.

You better believe I was stared at a lot, too, with my white hair, even in Hong Kong where tourists abound. While shopping for a jacket, I glanced at myself in a full-length mirror. The Chinese clerk noticed my hesitation, and said, "That gold jacket looks wonderful with your ice cream hair!" At which point I burst out laughing and, of course, bought the jacket.

We all hated to leave Hong Kong and wished we could have stayed longer. On the other hand, never was anyone happier to return home to my very own refrigerator. Fortunately, I didn't need to change my watch when I returned to Charlevoix, because when it's twelve noon in China, it's twelve midnight in Charlevoix. Now I bet you didn't know that!

ATTENTION COLLECTORS and antiquers: Watch for the new opening of Joseph's World this Saturday noon, Nov. 15. It's located on U.S. 31, (the Charlevoix and Petoskey road, right next door to the new Artisan's Gallery). I had a sneak preview recently and am delighted to report that young Joseph R. McGee is going to be a real asset to this community.

He specializes in the nostalgic, unusual and ornate. That includes pieces from the Art Deco, Art Nouveau, Victorian and Empire periods. For instance, a fascinating collection of lamps, including Tiffany lamps, plus good wicker, folk art, prints and oriental art.

But above and beyond what he has to offer the collector, it's exciting for all of us who live here, to see how beautifully he's restored the 1901 Resort Township Hall! What was once a ramshackled dump, is now a true showplace, inside and out. It's taken two years of dedication, but is worth the long wait.

Joseph, formerly of Lansing, is associated with the Pruskin Gallery in Chelsea, London. He is a member of the International Art Appraisers Association based in Chicago. He has traveled all over the world, and started collecting as a teenager. In college he majored in science because his parents said he would never make it in art! I'll take that bet.

Joseph's World is open Wednesdays through Sundays from noon until 6 p.m. or by appointment, 347-0121.

More T-shirts 'round the world

Doris Lundteigen of Charlevoix is shown wearing her petunia T-shirt at the Great Wall of China. As a loyal worker in charge of the silent auction for the benefit of Charlevoix's petunias, Doris was amazed to see the sidewalks of Beijing lined with one million potted salvia plants in honor of the founding of the People's Republic of China on October 1, 37 years ago. And wouldn't Marilyn and Dale Boss be surprised to hear she even saw a watering truck in action on the streets of the capitel.

Powder Puff Bowl

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Charlevoix's second annual Powder Puff football game is history, with the underclasswormen winning 8-6.

And if the reaction of the crowd, the players and the cheerleaders is any indication, look for many more Powder Puff games in the future.

Ostensibly, the game was tag football, but there was more aggressive action throughout the evening than at some boys' games.

The girls practiced every night for a week before the game, and put on a first-rate exhibition. They even had male histrionics down pat. Both ball carriers hitting paydirt gave the victory salute with arms held high — before bashing the ball into the end zone.

Of course, the clowns of the evening were the boys who found themselves cast in the role of cheerleaders. Never before has a Kipke Field audience been treated to such a display of animated buffoonery. Hal Evans, one of the referees, had the devil's own time getting the cheerleaders to confine their hijinks to the sidelines.

Actually, the cheerleaders were all over the place. At one point the announcer in the press box pleaded with the audience for help.

"I'm being attacked by cheerleaders," he announced in desperation.

Later, nine senior cheerleaders lined up and "flashed" the audience. When they hoisted their sweatshirts in unison, "Class of '87" was lettered in red ink on their bare bellies.

Even though the regular season was over, Friday was a beautiful football night and a sizable crowd turned out to join the fun.

I sort of suspect another "tradition" has a firm footing at Charlevoix High.

EVEN THOUGH everyone knows it's coming, the first snowstorm always seems to catch us by surprise.

Sunday's big blow was even more of a shocker because Saturday was so beautiful. Our front porch thermometer registered about 70 degrees most of the afternoon. In short, it was a good day to do yard work in your shirtsleeves — if you weren't golfing or sailing.

But TV weather prophets knew was was headed our way out of the blustery northwest so we had plenty of warning. Actually no one should have been surprised when the mercury plunged Saturday night and the wind picked up. The weather was just too fine to last.

Of course, we still will have a few nice days before winter sets in in earnest. But Saturday is the day I plan to remember when snow stands four feet deep in the front yard and towering banks line the driveway.

Library journal

by MARYBETH WALLICK

The Charlevoix Public Library has new books for kids. Two of them are about Michigan and the others are general fiction and entertainment.

Thunder Down the Track by Dayton O. Hyde is set in the woods of northern Michigan. Young Birch and his father and some of his father's friends, all laid-off from railroad jobs, buy old steam engines and cars and begin a thriving tourist business.

All of this is threatened by an unscrupulous company from California that bought the rights to dump dangerous waste in the area, and ends with the chase to end all chases.

Mr. Hyde has written another book of this area, Island of the Loons, about Lake Superior.

For a summer treat Joan W. Blos has written another historical novel for teens. Gathering of Days won the Newberry Medal and the American Book Award in 1980 and now with her second novel Brothers of the Heart she is writing about the early Michigan wilderness.

The book centers on Shem, a 14-year-old cripple who has to leave his family and make it on his own. He first joins a trading expedition and later teams up with an older Indian lady who teaches him how to survive in the wilderness. She declares them "brothers of the heart."

In time Shem returns to his family and they work out the problems that separated them. It is a good novel of early pioneer Michigan and of the human spirit.

Junior readers will recognize the name Betsy Byars. She wrote Summer of the Swans in 1970 and won the Newberry Medal, the highest award for a junior novel, and in 1980 she won the American Book Award for The Night Swimmers. She has now written The Not-Just-Anybody Family. It is a delightful comedy of errors written with warmth and humor about how bad times as well as good can keep a family together. Mother is away on the rodeo circuit and the kids work to solve the problems that come up at home.

Lois Lowry has once again turned out a warm, witty, and realistic comedy for the 'tween years Anastasia Has The Answers. This is the sixth book in her series of Anastasia, and in this one our heroine has decided to be a journalist to answer life's questions - at 13 they look pretty easy. She soon realizes when her friend's parents divorce and she tries to figure out who is at fault that the answers are sometimes harder to find. In this and other situations once again Lois Lowrey's irrepressible Anastasia has the answers.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

The day spent with Michigan Business Ombudsman Valerie Johnson was educational and informative. Many business owners and managers participated in the breakfast at Nanny's. The Lions luncheon was also well attended with a good question and answer exchange.

Local business can take advantage of another opportunity sponsored by all area Chambers of Commerce, Wednesday, Nov. 12 at Stafford's One Water Street in Boyne City. Following cocktails with hors d'oeuvres compliments of Stafford Hospitality, and dinner at 7 p.m., Richard Goldfogel and Jim Flanagan will discuss the U.S. 131 Coalition. Both gentlemen will heighten awareness of the importance of the U.S. 131 extension to this area. To attend, make reservations with One Water Street.

The search for a new Chamber of Commerce executive director continues. The selection committee (composed of board members, Gary Gleason, Doug Shaw, Harold Krutsch and Pat McKeown), has narrowed the selection process to those candidates they feel are best suited for the position. These candidates will be scheduled for a total board interview in the near future, and a decision will be made shortly thereafter.

Ballot nominations to fill Chamber Board of Directors positions closed Nov. 10. Ballots are in the mail to all Chamber members to vote for four candidates to serve a three-year term on the Chamber board. Deadline for the return of all ballots is Monday, Nov. 17.

Beacons of Blessing

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

There are many different characteristics about Jesus Christ that demonstrate to us how much He really cares for us. However, one stands out above the rest. "His weeping. Luke 19:41 recalls Christ's Triumphal Entry, "As he (Jesus Christ) approached Jerusalem and saw the city, he wept over it." He actually shed more than crocodile tears; He shed drops of compassion and hurt.

He was crying over Jerusalem, because they rejected Him as Christ the Messiah. They refused to dethrone self and replace it with Christ. It was a city searching for a savior but could not see past their own selfish ways.

This is how it is today. We reject Christ and His ways. We keep ourselves on the throne in our heart and refuse to give in to anyone including Christ. We also search for a savior. We try finding that "savior" in material gains, in activities that clutter our minds, and even in the bottom of a bottle. But to no avail, we will never find a savior in those things.

But there is hope when we seek the true Savior, Jesus Christ! He will help us cope with our circumstances, our problems, and our troubles. And He can be found in seeking Him as Savior, asking forgiveness for our sins, and turning from a sinful path to a righteous path. The opportunity is ours!

Jesus is weeping over those of us that refuse Him but rejoices when one comes to Him. Is Jesus weeping over you, or is He rejoicing?

Ghost ship drew 600

Over 600 ghosts, goblins, and their parents bravely boarded the "Ghost" Guard Cutter Mesquite on Halloween night, making it one of the most popular Ghost Ships ever. A good scare was had by all age groups, and the tricks were followed by generous treats and prizes handed out in a well-lit area decorated with posters made by Charlevoix Elementary School students. Fifth-grader Jessica Kline won the first place prize with her colorful and neatly done poster.

There was no charge to enjoy the show put on by the Mesquite's crewmembers and their wives, who thank the many area businesses for their contributions of money, food and prizes which made the overwhelming success of this year's ghost ship possible.

Rayder basketball victories set up title showdown

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team was to play its showdown game for the league lead with Gaylord on Tuesday. A victory by the Rayders would have thrown the Michigan-Huron Shores conference lead into a three-way tie. Following Charlevoix's 50-32 victory over St. Ignace on Thursday and their 55-29 win over Rogers City, the Rayders held a 15-2 record.

In the game with Rogers City early in the week, Amy Pischner scored 21 points, putting her career total at 717 points. She also had 16 rebounds in the game. Cyndi Boss and Ellen Pearl had 10 points each. Charlevoix outscored Rogers City 26-12 from the floor and had three of six from the line while collecting eight personal fouls. The Horons had five of eight from the free-throw line and nine personal fouls.

The Rayders jumped to a 13-6 first period lead and took over 28-14 at halftime and 43-24 going into the final period. Heather Daniels had nine points for Rogers City.

The Rogers City JVs won the preliminary game 32-15. Stacy Gebott had seven points. Ann Furtaw had 12 for Rogers City.

In the game at St. Ignace, Charlevoix was in control all the way, 11-6, 24-15 and 38-21 by quarters before winning by a 20-point margin.

The Rayders had 19 field goals and 14 of 17 from the free-throw line and eight personal fouls while the Saints had 15 from the floor and two of five charity shots. The team had 10 personal fouls.

Pischner added 20 points to her growing career total, including 10 of 12 free throws. Ann Kroll had 10 points. Barbie Boss and Stephanie Martin were named top defensive players. Paula Marshall had 13 points for St. Ignace.

St. Ignace took the JV game 42-28 with Melissa Boss scoring 14 and Julie Brewster eight for Charlevoix. Jody Garcia had 10 for the Saints.

Annual Ski Swap is planned for Charlevoix High School

Now is the time to dispose of the winter sports equipment and clothing that's been cluttering up the closets and the garage by taking it to the annual Ski Swap sponsored by the Charlevoix High School ski team.

Erik Lundteigen said the swap will be held at the high school cafeteria the weekend of Nov. 22-23.

Anything and everything relating to winter sports is acceptable, Lundteigen said. "Though the sale is called a ski swap, all sorts of equipment is acceptable, skiing equipment including skis and ski poles and related equipment, skates, ski boots, as well as all sorts of wearing apparel such as mitts, caps and similar clothing.

The equipment and other winter sports apparel are sold on consignment with the ski team receiving a 20 percent commission.

Anything to be offered for sale is to be brought to the high school cafeteria between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22. The sale will be held from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Anyone with questions relating to the ski swap is asked to call Lundteigen at the K-5 school at 547-3215 or at his home phones at 547-2593 or 2482.

Fershee and Sue Melke had four points each as their eighth-grade team went down to Cheboygan by a score of 26-16. They had trailed 12-4 at halftime.

New jury selection process in place card lists represent a larger percentage of the state's population than voter registration lists and therefore provide more names from which to compile jury lists.

Another reason legislators gave for changing the system is that some people did not register to vote because they did not want to be called for jury duty.

From another point of view, voter registration lists will become a bit more private by not being generally distributed to election officials. In the same vein, another piece of legislation forbids city, township, and village clerks from furnishing month and day of birth when filling requests for voter registration lists. Such lists are used for many purposes, notably in political campaigns.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark—nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Mayor-elect charges city attorney with conflict of interest

"Court records clearly show that the purchase price of $200,000 was very much above the court's own valuation, but it was allowed because it would reduce the losses of the creditors," McRae said.

He is also critical of VanTreese for allowing his brother, Jack, to be hired as appraiser by the Huntington National Bank of Dayton, Ohio. McRae said that as city attorney, VanTreese should have recommended the hiring of three impartial appraisers.

Finally, he said that VanTreese told Robert Hunt, the city manager at the time, and himself on April 27, 1984 that he had disengaged himself from the Ohio bank. The city attorney, McRae said, repeated his statement of disengagement from the bank at a meeting of city council on May 7.

City council at that meeting voted 5-1 to go ahead with its offer to buy the Lake Charlevoix frontage for $215,000, despite objections from McRae and his attorney, the late Michael Gibbons, and others in the audience.

One week later, on May 14, CDC closed the deal for the 300-foot lakefront parcel and two other properties – the neighboring Foster Boat Works and a warehouse on Cherry Avenue.

VANTREESE RESPONDED that "except for Ralph McRae no one has ever implied that there was a conflict of interest." He added that he was paid on a straight hourly basis and did not benefit from the price paid by the city for the property.

He also said he had nothing to do with setting the price paid for the property and that it was a legitimate price. "What is really relevant," he added, "is that the only appraisal done on the property by a certified appraiser was for $319,000 (on March 15 by Lloyd G. Kirby who appraised the property for the city).

"To speculate that it was worth $150,000 is just ignorant," VanTreese said.

He was never asked by the city manager to get an appraisal of the property, VanTreese added. "It was not really up to me. It was up to the city manager," he said.

VanTreese also stated that his brother's appraisal was done only for Huntington National Bank and did not have any effect on the price paid by CDC or the city.

He defends his statement of having disengaged from the Huntington National Bank on May 7. He was not employed by them at that time, VanTreese said, and was later asked to represent them at the May 14 closing in Charlevoix. "There was nothing improper or wrong about me attending that closing," he commented.

"The issue is that there was no direct contact from my two clients," VanTreese said. "The City of Charlevoix did not benefit from anything that Huntington National Bank did. Huntington National Bank did not benefit from anything that the City of Charlevoix did."

ON DEC. 6, 1984 McRae filed a Request for Investigation with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission concerning VanTreese's role in the land sale. He charged conflict of interest.

The two disagree over the results of that investigation. On May 28, 1985 the Commission sent a letter to them jointly that stated: "The Commission's review of this matter confirms that subsequent to Respondent (VanTreese) being requested to represent the city concerning the sale of the property, that Respondent represented his bank client at the closing, and that his dual representation was questioned as to propriety by the city manager. Respondent is admonished for simultaneously representing two clients concerning the sale of real estate where one client suggested to Respondent that there may exist a conflict of interest in such dual representation."

The associate counsel for the commission then concluded, "The Attorney Grievance Commission, after a careful review of the matter presented to it, has determined that there is no basis for any further action by the commission. Accordingly, this file is closed."

McRae feels the commission confirmed his charges. "My charges to the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission were upheld," he said. "Their decision states the city attorney wrongly served two clients even after being cautioned about it. It was a mild admonishment, like a slap on the wrist, but at least it was in my favor."

VanTreese said the important fact was that no action was taken and the cased was closed. Admonishment, he added, is a purely private communication between the commission and the lawyer and requires the approval of the lawyer being admonished. VanTreese said he did not approve of the admonishment.

Eugene LaBelle, deputy administrator for the Attorney Grievance Commission, confirmed that the Michigan Supreme Court gives the commission the power to admonish an attorney with his consent. LaBelle said, however, that if an attorney objects then the commission reconsiders the case. If the attorney doesn't respond, he said, the commission assumes the attorney doesn't object.

LaBelle said the commission has three options after someone files a complaint: dismiss the case, admonish the attorney or discipline him.

Discipline, he said, can involve either revocation, suspension or a reprimand.

"Admonishment," he pointed out, "is an indication that the commission has found there has been a violation of the rules, but not one that merits their formal attention."

Asked if there was a difference between "apparent" conflict of interest and actual conflict of interest, LaBelle responded that "there is no such thing as being a little pregnant. There's either conflict of interest or there isn't."

He said the commission, which receives some 2,900 requests for investigation a year, would not comment on any particular case.

frontage. In a letter to the grievance commission he said he initiated efforts to get the property for the city in the fall of 1983. Negotiations with the owner, Robert Schleman, were not successful.

Hunt later learned that CDC was interested in buying the property along with the Foster Boat Works. "Because this could make the negotiation legally complicated, I then contacted the City Attorney, Jeff VanTreese," Hunt wrote the commission. "This was the first time that I had talked to Mr. VanTreese about the property. I believe the date was very late 1983 or early 1984.

"During the phone conversation, Mr. VanTreese informed me that he was quite aware about the legal status of the lakefront property, as he had been representing the Huntington National Bank for some time, in the matter. I asked Mr. VanTreese if he thought this was a conflict of interest. He said he didn't think so. I said I was not sure I agreed. The City Council was soon notified of Mr. VanTreese's involvement with the Huntington National Bank."

Hunt said he, VanTreese and Treasurer Jim Brinker met with HUNT WAS AT the center of the efforts to acquire the 300 feet of lake CDC partners and negotiated an option to purchase the lakefront property for the same amount CDC was buying it for through the bankruptcy proceedings ($200,000) plus the 7 percent commission.

"The City believed acquiring the property through CDC was the only realistic way to obtain it, since the lake frontage was tied up with Foster Boat Works property and a warehouse parcel in the bankruptcy proceedings. Unless the creditors could be assured that all three of the parcels would be sold, there was not enough cash available to satisfy all the creditors."

Hunt added that "At several times during early 1984, I expressed to Mr. VanTreese my opinion that Mr. VanTreese at least had an apparent conflict of interest, if not an actual one, and that it would be best if Mr. VanTreese no longer represented Huntington National Bank in the matter. Mr. VanTreese assured me, on each occasion, that no actual conflict of interest existed."

Hunt said he was "quite surprised" to learn that VanTreese was representing Huntington National Bank at the closing on May 14.

Hunt, however, absolved VanTreese of any wrongdoing. "I am convinced that Mr. VanTreese's status with respect to the Huntington National Bank had no effect whatsoever on the City's decisions regarding the purchase of the property or the terms of the purchase. At no time during the various negotiations did Mr. VanTreese advocate purchase or specific terms of purchase."

DICK GEORGI is convinced the city drove a hard bargain on the land. "We didn't buy it to sell it to the city," he said. "The ironic thing to me is that VanTreese and Hunt worked together on the deal and put a fair amount of pressure so that the city got the property and we didn't make any money.

"I would like not to have sold it. the day I agreed to sell to the city, I knew it was a mistake," he added.

"There is no way Jeff influenced the price paid for it."

Georgi said he was not approached by the city to buy the property until after he had agreed to buy the property for CDC, but before they had closed on it.

Coast Guard searches raise questions

The Guardsmen boarding the boat were carrying sidearms and had two shotguns exposed. Another Coast Guardsman stood by in the Coast Guard's Boston Whaler with an M-16 semi-automatic rifle at the ready.

THE PASSENGERS were told to sit in the stern of the boat while the search, which included the opening of all man-sized compartments, was conducted.

After counting life jackets and fire extinguishers, checking the engine, the bilges and other compartments on Newhard's boat, the Coast Guard left. Newhard was not found in violation of any laws.

He said the Coast Guard officers were polite but he found the experience intimidating and threatening.

THE SEARCH was a part of a new effort by the Coast Guard to step up its drug enforcement work in the Great Lakes. In September the Coast Guard Great Lakes headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio announced: "We will be assisting other federal and local law enforcement agencies as we work to stem the flow of illegal substances across the Great Lakes and enforce all applicable federal laws."

Chief Mark Simmons of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Search and Rescue unit said his group had boarded 35-40 boats since September for compliance with federal regulations.

"The District Commander has said to step up boardings looking for violations of federal regulations, such as navigation, safety and sanitation," Simmons said.

He added that looking for drugs was a part of the inspection of any and every boat.

The experience left Newhard upset. "To me, it just didn't seem typical and it didn't seem justifiable," he said.

The method has also raised questions of constitutional rights, search and seizure and probable cause among other boaters and attorneys.

BOATERS CAN EXPECT many more Coast Guard boardings next summer, according to Coast Guard spokesmen from Sault Ste. Marie to Detroit and Coast Guard headquarters in Cleveland.

"We have stepped up the boardings considerably, especially along the Detroit River," reported Jerry Green, assistant operations officer of the Coast Guard's Group Detroit.

"We always carry a long gun and at least two hand guns," said Charlevoix Coast Guard Public Affairs Officer Tim Ramey. "And we will check every man-sized compartment for persons who may cause bodily harm to officers in the boarding party."

Boats of any size may be boarded, according to Chief Simmons. "We have boarded everything from inflatables up," he said. "We have no set size to look for, no profile of drug boats. They can smuggle drugs in a 14-foot aluminum boat or a 100-foot yacht. We will be boarding all types of boats, at random."

Boaters accustomed to low key safety checks where a quick count of life preservers and fire extinguishers has been the rule have expressed surprise and concern at the intensity of the new Coast Guard approach, especially the weapons and the search of compartments.

QUESTIONED HOW a boat compared to a home, where a search warrant based on probable cause was required, Senior Chief Gary Howard of the Coast Guard Sault Ste. Marie Group said, "We can board a U.S. vessel anywhere to assure that it complies with our laws."

"Search and seizure rules do not apply," added Chief Richard Wehn, public affairs officer with Ninth District Coast Guard Headquarters in Cleveland. "The Coast Guard has Congressional authority to stop any vessel and look for violations of any federal law."

No drugs have been found on any of the boats searched in the Charlevoix area this fall. Nor has the Coast Guard in Sault Ste. Marie made any drug arrests.

THE PROSPECT of being boarded and searched by armed Coast Guardsmen has some other boaters upset, although officer Green said the reception by the public has been good.

"If I were out sailing with my family and the Coast Guard came along, I'd be happy to comply with a safety check," said Cliff Biddick, Charlevoix resident and long-time lakes sailor.

"I think shotguns and M-16s are going a little overboard," he said.

Biddick, who recently testified to a Michigan State Senate Committee on Boating Safety, added, "As for safety, the problem is to educate not enforce safety. We don't need more guns on boats."

Charlevoix boater Ken Heininger observed: "If our laws are saying that our boat is different from our home when it comes to search and seizure, we may need some Congressional discussion on this."

"I have no objection to having my boat surveyed for proper safety equipment, but theoretically the only reason to invade my privacy is if there is a reasonable cause which would lead to a warrant."

FORMER CHARLEVOIX COUNTY Prosecuting Attorney Scott Beatty was motoring his 25-foot powerboat to a gas dock when he was stopped by the Coast Guard.

"It was a flat out safety inspection," Beatty recalled. "But I wondered then how the standard of probable case applies here. One of these cold days I am going to look into this."

"It seems to me that they cannot at random board boats," responded Harbor Springs boater and attorney Lynn Stedman.

"In my opinion, a safety check is fine, but unless there is probable cause they do not have a right to search the boat," he concluded.

Newhard, who hopes to move his boat to the Caribbean this winter to begin a charter business, thinks the tactic has shades of something more ominous. "From what I've read about Gestapo Germany things are on a parallel course.

"We're led to believe that this whole system is by the people and for the people. But day by day the voice you have is getting less and less," he said. "The Coast Guard, and the armed forces should be reserved for foreign affairs."

Local artist honored

Charlevoix artist Janis Glass has had two watercolors selected for the semifinals of the prestigious Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts Art and Flowers Festival poster competition.

Glass, a regular Courier columnist, had two of the three works she submitted picked. One is a 22 x 30 inch watercolor of entwined Michigan wildflowers; it depicts 25 varieties. The other is an 11 x 15 watercolor of spring wildflowers.

The work picked as winner will be used for the Art and Flowers Festival advertising poster. The winner will also receive $ $1,000 award from the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Finalists will be picked on Nov. 19.

Five selected for honors band

The District II Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Honors Band Auditions were held at Charlevoix High School Monday, Terry Isenbarger, Charlevoix band director, announced.

Instrumentalists from 23 area schools competed for the right to play in the 100-piece band.

This year the Honors Band Concert will be presented in the newly restored Opera House in Cheboygan on Sunday, Dec. 7. The guest conductor will be Donald Flickenger, director of bands at Ferris State College.

Band members will travel to Cheboygan on Saturday before the concert for rehearsals and will be housed over Saturday night at the homes of Cheboygan area residents. The concert, which will be presented at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, is open to the public.

Five Charlevoix high school band students were selected as members of the 1986 Honors Band. They are Heather Dietrich, flute; Michelle North, flute; Jackie Paul, clarinet; Dan Staublin, percussion and John Wilden, trumpet.

City stops payment on new fire hall

Protests construction problems

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council threatened Monday not to pay bills from the architect and the contractor unless progress was made in cleaning up and completing the new Public Service Building.

Council unanimously decided not to pay Goodin and Bigelow Construction, Inc. for a bill of $81,859.35 and architect H. Jack Begrow for $2,165 until Goodin and Bigelow cleaned debris off the roof and expedited unfinished items as soon as possible.

Some council members pointed the finger at Begrow for not getting the contractor to live up to the construction agreement. "I feel basically you're not doing your job and we should deduct for that," Councilman Norm Probert told Begrow.

"I just wonder how effective an inspector he (Begrow) is," Councilman Robert Timms added later in the meeting.

Begrow presented council with an update of progress on the Public Safety Building construction. He was critical of the work done on the "Trocal" roof. "Coping completed but Trocal roof flashing on coping is not acceptable! Flashing is uneven with numerous air bubbles and bulges," Begrow's field report said.

Begrow told council the contractor is three to four weeks behind on the expected completion date.

"I'm really unhappy with the fact they haven't got the garage door on the police garage," he said.

Probert questioned whether the contractor was following all specifications in storing and heating the materials before they were installed. He said putting in ceiling materials and insulation before it was warm could lead to an uneven ceiling.

He also asked if the materials for the ceiling were all fire rated and questioned why there was not a vapor barrier between the insulation and the ceiling.

Begrow said he had complained to the contractor that the building was not heated when the ceiling was put in.

Council approved two change orders for the building construction contract. The first was a deduction of $230 because electrical conduits and outlet boxes and switches were surface mounted on the walls rather than put in the walls as specified in the contract. The electrical work was done by Bellows Electric.

The second change order added $754.65 for finish hardware above the $1,000 allowance and deducted $645 from the $2,000 allowance for aluminum building letters.

The Public Safety Building under construction on State Street was bid at a cost of $346,833. Since then there have been $13,040.32 in authorized change orders bringing the current cost of the building to $359,933.32.

IN OTHER ACTION, council:

—Agreed to advertise for the position of police chief in the Michigan Police Chiefs Newsletter. Councilman F. Earl Muma it was important to look for a police chief who would do regular police work in addition to administrative duties. "I still think that the day job has to be pushed just a little bit harder,"

Council supports city attorney against charges

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council approved Monday a resolution presented by Councilman F. Earl Muma supporting City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese against charges by mayor-elect Ralph McRae. The resolution, approved 5-0 by council (Councilman William Bellows was absent), "rejects any request for an investigation."

Muma presented the resolution noting that "with all of the guff that's been handed around in the papers regarding our city attorney and the Ferry Avenue property ... I just feel that the mayor-elect is starting off on the wrong foot with our city."

Muma said that council had discussed the city attorney's role in the purchase of the Ferry Avenue annex in 1984 and had concluded there was no conflict of interest on his part.

McRae charged, soon after being elected mayor, that there should be an investigation of the city attorney for "his misconduct and unethical actions in the Ferry Avenue beach property acquisition."

McRae said the city ended up paying too much for the property because of VanTreese's influenced the price and that VanTreese bad a conflict of interest in representing the city and the bank selling the property.

The resolution in support of VanTreese stated:

"Whereas, Mr. Ralph McRae has made certain misleading and inaccurate charges against City Attorney Jeffery W. VanTreese; and,

Whereas, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix wishes to respond to said allegations;

Now, therefore be it resolved:

That the City Attorney and the then City Manager made full disclosure to the Mayor and Council in 1984 of all dealings relative to the purchase of the Ferry Beach property and that there was no conflict of interest between the City Attorney representing the City of Charlevoix and the Huntington National Bank.

Be it further resolved that the City Council is satisfied with the representation by City Attorney Jeffery W. VanTreese. That the City Council hereby rejects any request for an investigation."

Councilman Shirley Ruloff said, "I'm really satisfied with what we did (in council's previous discussion of the matter). Knowing Jeff, and I've known him for some time, he would never do this."

Councilman Norm Probert questioned whether the resolution would rule out any future investigation of the issue. He said he was concerned because he was not on council when the issue was discussed the last time.

Probert said he had done some investigation on his own and "was pretty well satisfied."

Nursing home choice shocks local organizer and supporters

by DOUG TRUAX

The state's selection of a Flint firm to build a new nursing home in Charlevoix has left organizers of a competing proposal, including the new mayor-elect, in a state of shock.

"It is the most devastating shock I've ever had in my life," commented Ralph McRae, who initiated the nursing home plan rejected by the state.

McRae filed the original letter of intent to build a nursing home in Charlevoix and has been working with Liberatore Health Care, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio.

The Michigan Department of Public Health, however, gave its approval to Dehmel, Ltd. of Flint which submitted a proposal to build to 80-unit facility, including 49 nursing home beds and 31 home for the aged beds. Liberatore had proposed a 107-unit facility with 49 nursing home beds and 58 home for the aged beds.

The decision by the state health agency stunned McRae and others involved in the Liberatore proposal, in part because Liberatore previously received regional approval to build the nursing home from the board of directors of Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency, Inc. (HSA), which conducted a review for the state.

HSA did a side-by-side comparison of the two proposals and evaluated them on 14 criteria. Liberatore was given 31 points, Dehmel received 19.

Dehmel estimated the cost of their 80-bed facility at $2,200,000 or $27,500 per bed. The Liberatore plan called for capital expenditures of $2,615,000 or $24,439 per bed.

McRae, who was elected mayor on Nov. 4, said, "I'd have rather lost the mayor's job than this thing. I've put a lot more effort into it (the nursing home).

"Everybody I've talked to is astonished and flabbergasted they made the decision they did," McRae added.

Even Dehmel, Ltd. seemed a little taken aback by the decision. "I was surprised," said Marlene Maxfield, a nursing home administrator with Dehmel. "But we did feeel that we had done an adequate job of preparation."

Maxfield currently works at the Lafayette Park Adult Foster Care home in Flint which is owned by her brother, Kenneth L. Rabidoux, owner of Dehmel, Inc.

THE DEPARTMENT of Public Health gave Dehmel the nod on the side-by-side comparison, scoring it 29 points for Dehmel, 28 for Liberatore. The department concluded that the difference between its score and the regional review was because, "it does not appear that the local agency scored the projects according to Departmental rules."

But Raj Weiner, director of the Bureau of Health Facilities, conceded that the current review process is flawed. "One of the unfortunate things is that the reviews done at the regional level are advisory."

She said the state adheres strictly to its evaluation criteria because of the numerous legal challenges the comparative reviews have created. "I feel strongly that we need to revise the system so that local input will play a more significant role," she said.

SHE ADDED that Michigan is the only state in the country that has to do comparative reviews. Legislation to change the process is currently being prepared, she added.

Weiner said, however, that "the bottom line is the service will be provided to the people in Charlevoix."

Jeanne Van Zoeren, a planning consultant for Liberatore, echoed McRae's shock at the decision. "I was extremely surprised and absolutely flabbergasted when I read the decision," she said. Van Zoeren called the Dehmel's proposal "half done" and said "most of the information was incorrect."

The decision, she added, was "a travesty of the whole intent of the law both on the state level and the federal level."

SHE FAULTED the state's weighting system and said that the Department of Public Health did not take into consideration the fact that Liberatore had an option on a site in Charlevoix near the hospital, while Dehmel did not have a site.

She also noted that Liberatore submitted a 135 page Certificate of Need which included many letters of public support, while Dehmel's was only 15 pages.

Van Zoeren said that her organization would appeal the decision. An appeal, she said, could take from six months to two years.

Water sets new record

Detroit — The elevation for Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of October was some 16 inches above what it was one year ago and about 1 inch below one month ago, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reported recently.

The end of October level of the two lakes was at 581.54 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

The October monthly mean level was 39 inches above the long-term average and 14 inches above the all-time monthly mean high for October, set in 1985. The October level was 70 inches above the all-time low October set in 1964.

For mariners, the end of October level was 57 inches above chart datum.

Th Corps' six-month forecast for Lakes Michigan-Huron predicts that the lakes are expected to be above the long-term average level during the next six months. The forecast says that at the end of November, Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 3 inches below what they were at the end of October.

The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February. At the end of April 1987, the lakes are expected to be 5 inches above what they were at the same time in 1986. The April mean would be above the long-term average for that month and 5 inches above the all-time high mean for April, which was set in 1986.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This group of Charlevoix High School football players is shown practicing in the field on Garfield Street near the present American Legion Hall. The football field was located there for many years, as was the Lincoln School (elementary) shown in the background. The picture is not dated, but it is believed to have been taken before 1927. Can anyone identify the football players? (Picture courtesy of Charlene Geskin).

Addington licks her wounds and is off and running for '88

by PEG OHLE

Spurred on by the results of her first attempt at winning public offic, East Jordan's Ellen Addington is ali set to try again.

Miss Addington, a Democrat who opposed seven-term incumbent Republican Ralph Ostling for State Representative from the 103rd District, received approximately 44 percent of the votes cast.

The retired school teacher is a "reformed" Republican who based her campaign largely on the need for better education of young people to equip them for earning a living, and for more and better programs for senior citizens who are battling problems of health care and inadequate income.

Funds for both purposes could readily become available, Miss Addington kept stressing, if the federal government would cut down on its multi-billion dollar defense spending programs.

Between now and the election of 1988, Miss Addington says she will devote her time to making her name and face known to area voters, and to trying to get people interested in the governmental process. (The need for the latter is demonstrated by the fact that only 37 percent of voting age citizens in Michigan voted in the last election).

"I want to convince people to register and vote. I want to see more attention paid to current events in our schools' government classes. I want to make myself available for talks so I can express my ideas. I want to go door to door to meet the people. I want to work with the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance. I want to be part of the action. I want to help. I want to line up party leaders to get their support". These are some of Miss Addington 's plans. "Last time, I did only about one-tenth of what I should have done", she reflects.

The energetic 63-year-old candidate is no newcomer to hard work. For many years, she taught behavior-troubled children in the inner city of Detroit. Since retiring to an old farm house between East Jordan and Ellsworth, Miss Addington has devoted much of her time to working for causes of hunger and peace. She was hunger co-ordinator of the Grand Traverse District of the United Methodist Church and in that capacity visited Senegal, Kenya, and Egypt. As a member of Witness for Peace, early this year she made two trips to Nicaragua, where she and others in her group interviewed leaders of opposition groups as well as those supporting the present government, along with business, political, and religious leaders.

A talented musician, Miss Addington serves as director of the choir at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, as well as director of the Community Choir and of the Community Orchestra.

It was not by accident that Miss Addington retired to northern Michigan. Her maternal grandparents, George and Ida Frank, came to the Elk Rapids area from Canada in the 1870's, and moved to the Ellsworth area in 1896. They were both staunch Republicans who held jobs in Antrim County government. "I spent many summers and holidays with my grandparents when I was a child and I always knew I would retire up north". she says.

Miss Addington has a special affinity for senior citizens, whom she says were most helpful in her campaign. "The retirees from downstate, especially, who had been Democrats all their lives understood what I was talking about", she explains.

A change in the political scene which some political observers have noted is that both Republicans and Democrats in northern Michigan are becoming more centrist and often vote for the person instead of the party. Along these lines, State Elections Director Chris Thomas is quoted as saying after the last election, "The north country is not yet a two-party country, but it's getting there". The fact that Grand Traverse County went Democratic in the last election for the first time in decades would seem to bear out this statement.

Looking forward to 1988, Miss Addington says she does not believe Ralph Ostling will run for re-election. "He will be at maximum retirement and I don't think he will want to carry on any longer", she speculates. "But I would like to run against him again because I could beat him".

All signs indicate Charlevoix County is in building boom

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County seems to be in the midst of a building boom.

The costs of new construction projects in the County through the first 10 months of this year exceed those of any complete year since 1975, when records were first kept, with the exception of 1978, when Medusa Cement completed its $6,700,000 addition.

The end of October report of the County Department of Building Inspection indicates that so far this year, it has issued 516 building permits to cover $13,613,616 worth of construction.

These figures compare with yearly numbers of 561 permits for $13,455,051 in 1985; 520 permits for $9,285,261 in 1984; 493 permits for $8,668,284 in 1983; 446 permits for $7,744,485 in 1982; 500 permits for $8,742,508 in 1981; 579 permits for $10,751,844 in 1980; 699 permits for $10,867,335 in 1979; 673 permits for $15,247,635 in 1978; 677 permits for $8,674,050 in 1977; 649 permits for $6,228,783 in 1976; and 483 permits for $4,792,868 in 1975.

It should be noted that all of the above figures are for construction costs only. They do not include land or plumbing, electrical, heating, or air conditioning installation costs.

Construction costs of new houses account for $6,215,064 of the 1986 total to date, followed by $2,202,937 for new commercial buildings, and $1,860,617 for new condominium units. The remaining amount of construction money covers residential additions, remodeling, garages, decks and porches, and storage buildings; commercial additions and remodeling and storage buildings; and mobile home additions.

So far this year, the Department of Building Code Inspection has collected $77,127 in fees, which is paid into the County's General Fund. Besides Howard Carson, the Building Code Inspector and head of the Department, there is an electrical inspector, a plumbing inspector, a soil erosion and sedimentation inspector, and a secretary in the Building Code Department.

This same building surge is reflected in the report of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds for the first 10 months of the year.

Register Charlene Gaskin told the County Board of Commissioners last week that lower interest rates, which have brought about a flurry of re-financing, in addition to the upswing in new construction, account for her Department's record number of mortgage recordings.

With the actual number of recordings of deeds and mortgages standing at 5,877 through October and projection of another 588 by the end of the year, the total of 6,465 recordings will exceed the previous high number of 6,001 set in 1985.

Through the years, the number of deeds and mortgages recorded reflect economic conditions much like building permits do: 6,001 in 1985; 5,478 in 1984; 5,285 in 1983; 4,319 in 1982; 4,414 in 1981; 4,109 in 1980; 4,392 in 1979; 4,995 in 1978; 4,683 in 1977; 5,286 in 1976; and 4,247 in 1975.

The increase in activity in the Office of Register of Deeds is also seen in monies collected by the Office for services rendered. So far this year, $119,955 has been collected, with another $11,995 anticipated during November and December, for the year's projected total of $131,950. Last year, collections amounted to $105,846, following a gradual increase from 1975's figure of $43,343.

Work in the Office of the Register of Deeds is done by Mrs. Gaskin and three full-time employees. Monies collected by the Register's Office are also put into the County's General Fund.

Attorneys consider court contract

A group of Charlevoix County attorneys met last week to decide on signing a new contract with the County to serve as attorneys for indigent offenders.

Last year, five local attorneys signed up for the court-appointed attorney program, for which they received a flat salary rather than an hourly fee.

Those five attorneys: Kevin Klevorn, John Michael, Mark Muniak, Karen Neumeyer, and Gordon Boydston, have expressed interest in signing a new contract, as has another attorney, Michael Buckingham.

According to one of the attorneys, last year, under the old contract, they each received $880 a month regardless of the number of hours they worked.

This program was begun last year after the prosecuting attorney and County Board members became alarmed at the rising costs of defending indigent offenders.

Letters to the editor:

Condos: what's in a name

Dear Editor:

At the turn of the century a developer asked for local permission to build a 1,000 foot long four story hotel on a small island, which would dominate the waterfront. The Grand Hotel today is a historical monument and that beautiful edifice still dominates the shoreline on Mackinac Island.

Other hotels, inns, clubs and resorts were also built at the turn of the century, including the Belvedere Club, with sixty residences and a great hotel, the Chicago Club and Hotel. Wequetonsing Club, and the Bay View Club. They are just a few examples of what we now call a condominium living style, i.e., owners holding land in common.

Condominiums — what a misunderstood, misused and mistrusted term. Actually, condos are merely a form of ownership ...

Condominiums — what a misunderstood, misused and mistrusted term. Actually, condos are merely a form of ownership, with many families or owners holding property in common. All the existing downtown shops could be condominimized, and actually some are.

I once described our resort community of Charlevoix as having 400 condominiums, averaging $100,000 in value each, paying 65 percent of the residential taxes and putting only six children in the school system. The mayor of a Lake Huron city called our town "tax heaven."

There is no doubt that our most precious commodity is our lake frontage, and we are fortunate to have more beautiful shoreline than most other Michigan communities, and more important, that this shoreline is mainly undeveloped, wild and unspoiled, with a majority of property owners maintaining the forested shoreline. There have, however, been cases of high density cottage communities on the lake and some large cottages with such exposed massiveness that it spoils the lake beauty and ruins the forest.

Is not this the time to analyze what has happened in the past to our lakefronts and determine a policy for the future. The Chicago freeway (US 131) to our community is only a few short years away. If, for instance, we allow one dwelling for every 100 feet of frontage on our lakes, every mile will yield 92 buildings. And if we allow subdivisions to be built on every 100 acre parcel, this would yield about 120 dwelling units per parcel.

Set all buildings... back from the water's edge at least 200 feet ...

There is no doubt that high density single family development spoiles the shoreline and beach acreage, eliminating the forest, and the grass maintenance polluting the water. Actually condominiums, or for a better term, inns, clubs, cluster cottages, hotels and resorts, can be planned on undeveloped water frontage with far better land utilization and land preservation than can the single family concept.

Some cottages today are larger structures than condominium buildings, and actually house more people. Five and six bedroom cottages are more common than you would think. In many cases a five-unit condominium building is smaller than a single old cottage in many of the Clubs.

In the future, planning boards need to encourage wise cluster condominium development which preserves the beauty of our irreplaceable shoreline.

How can they do this? Very simply! A 300 acre parcel with 2,000 feet of shoreline frontage can now yield 20 lakefront houses. The back land, if separate from the lake can yield about 220 single family dwellings, resulting in the replacement of 80 percent of the forest with roads and drives, septic fields, buildings and open yards.

The alternative to this is having multi-family resorts, with all buildings held back from the shoreline by 200 feet, preserving and placing all forest shoreline in a conservancy. By clustering the housing in villages of six families per building, you now have 40 buildings holding the same 240 families as the above example of land misuse. This consumes only 20 percent of the forest and 30 percent of the shoreline, and the size of these six family buildings (6,000 sq. ft.) is smaller than a number of cottages now being built on the lake.

If you look at lake and ocean development around the country today, you will note affluent buyers are selecting cluster housing over single family housing eight to one. Why? Because their lifestyles require trouble free, secluded environments, that cottages do not offer.

Recently at a township meetings, a group of aware citizens told the planning board that they would approve a resort hotel or inn, but not condominiums. Could it be that these same citizens would approve the project if the name "condominium" was removed, with the project remaining the same? Yes, the term condominium is very misunderstood!

I would like to propose the following goals for future planning:

Discourage the one house per 100 feet of shoreline that is now required by local zoning.

Allow resort condo development on lakefront projects only if the developer agrees to the following:

(1) Set all buildings with a maximum of eight units per building, back from the water's edge at least 200 feet, and place this land in a conservancy with no future buildings allowed in this zone.

(2) Require open space on at least 60 percent of water frontage, preserving all forest shoreline, and allowing only 20 percent of the existing trees to be removed, and place all buildings on the central third of the frontage, with each side remaining natural forest.

(3) Disallow development on treeless frontage or development that requires extensive tree removal at the shoreline.

(4) Require developers to use or extend city sewer and water system, thus eliminating on site facilities and possible pollution.

(5) Encourage such amenities as golf courses, tennis courts, horseback riding, cross country ski trails and wild forest hiking trails, so that public facilities won't be burdened.

Let's remember that condominiums can be a great planning asset, saving and preserving our precious land.

Michigan Ombudsman Valerie Johnson gave an excellent presentation to both a breakfast group and the Charlevoix Lions Club last week. Created three years ago by Governor Blanchard, the office of Business Ombudsman is staffed by seven full-time people. They will answer any question regarding business with a commitment to being problem-solving action within 72 hours.

This service to Michigan business is free of charge and available to anyone. The Chamber hopes to continue to bring such programs to the local business community in the future. For more information and the Ombudsman toll free number, contact the Chamber, 547-2101.

Several Chamber members are involved in the Community Center discussions that have been organized by Rev. David Yingling and Rev. Bruce Hamilton. The meeting last week, hosted by Village Inn Pizza, brought together over 25 youths and adults to discuss the concept of whether or not a community center was feasible and what programs should be offered. The people in this community can be proud of their youth. The middle school and high school youths in attendance were very articulate and helpful, and more kids are encouraged to come to the next meeting in December.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has reordered the now famous red and white Charlevoix The Beautiful license plates. What a great gift idea for the holidays; available at the Chamber and local banks.

Second-string diplomats

Clockwise — By Bob Clock

The more we hear about President Reagan's wheeling and dealing with Iran in order to secure the release of American hostages held in the Middle East, the more we yearn for the good old days of Jimmy Carter who was above such shenanigans.

You'll recall that the staff of the American Embassy in Tehran was held hostage during most of Carter's presidency — an impasse so embarrassing to the American people that it probably cost Carter re-election, particularly after his ill-executed effort to free the hostages by force.

Carter appeared worse — even wimpy — when the hostages were released the day Reagan took office.

I wonder if the Ayatollah Khomeini would have been so anxious to let them go, if he had known that Reagan is a horse trader at heart.

The more we learn about Reagan's demeaning efforts to swap arms for prisoners, the better Carter looks in retrospect.

Perhaps the most aggravating dimension to Reagan's hostage-swapping is that it was done in secret. He knew that the American people as a whole would never submit to blackmail, but the National Security Council and the CIA are not made of such stern stuff.

It appears that not even Secretary of State George Shultz knew what was going on, although international affairs are supposed to be his responsibility. If Shultz has been kept in the dark for the past 18 months, his immediate resignation would seem to be in order. Certainly sitting with the Reagan cabinet cannot mean as much to him as his self-respect.

According to the Detroit Free Press on Sunday, Reagan has been involved in 50 clandestine operations during his six years in office, including the overthrow of the Chad government and covert aid to the enemies of Nicaragua.

As a result, American foreign policy is a shambles. Our reputation as a trustworthy nation has has been in a veritable tailspin ever since disclosure of the government's "disinformation" campaign against Libya several weeks ago.

No one overseas or at home knows whom to believe — or what to believe. It is an untenable situation, particularly for a nation which used to pride itself on being open and above board, a government "of the people, by the people and for the people."

If there is a spark of hope in the whole mess it is the proclivity of Americans at large to do what is right rather than what is expedient, regardless of their government.

Insofar as Central America is concerned, I find some hope in the fact that Americans — as private citizens — still look upon Nicaragua as sovereign nation striving for a place in the sun after years of subjugation under dictator Anastasio Somoza. A delegation of Ann Arborites visited Nicaragua recently to give aid and comfort to the beleaguered government. Another group of Northern Michiganians are holding fundraisers to build a school for mechanics in Nicaragua.

It's a long shot, I know, but I hope such second-string diplomats will be able to hold things together until Reagan leaves office.

It is painful to think about all the good things that Reagan — The Great Communicator — might have accomplished if he had decided to cast his lot with the world's underdogs instead of its bullies.

Beacons of Blessing

Winter is Here! Whenever it snows I think how God must enjoy cutting out snowflakes smaller than human hands can cut. God delights in miniatures. We know that. How? Well, think about the love that He invests in our tiny spirits. II Corinthians 3 says, "we are a letter of Christ — written not — on tablets of stone but on tablets of flesh in the heart." (NAB)

We are the body of Christ (even when It snows). Strange, isn't it, that after all the mean things the kids called us while we were growing up that we became the body of Christ.

I never would have thought that Christ's body would have freckles and be slightly overweight.

But if it takes eyes to see the ways people need help and ears to hear what someone needs to listen to, and hands to help out, and feet to go on those errands, and hearts to love, and voices to sing and shout and holler about how wonderful God is, and what God can do (and does) with these eyes and ears and hands and feet and voices, then I guess we are the body of Christ! God help us!

Funny, that it's young and old at the same time, wise and naive, gentle and assertive, completely in charge and a little scatterbrained; but ob, so full of love.

Thank you James Hoffstutler and Ellen Young and St. Paul and Mom and Dad and brother and sisters in Christ, that you Lord and savior for the body, alive, today!

Dan Staublin nominated for McDonald's band

Dan Staublin, talented percussionist with the Charlevoix High School Marching and Symphonic Bands, has been presented with a certificate of recognition for being a nominee to the 1986 McDonald's All-American High School Band.

The presentation was made by Terry Isenbarger, director of the school's music department, during the recent marching band concert.

Every high school is invited by McDonald's to nominate a outstanding musician from its band as a candidate for the All-American High School Band. Two instrumentalists are then named fom each state to the All-American band, Isenbarger explained.

Dan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Staublin, has been a member of the Charlevoix band for four years. He plays the bells and snare drums as well as the marimba with the high school band. He was nominated on the basis of his musical honors and competitive contest ratings.

State winners become eligible for scholarships offered by four conservatories colleges including the Interlochen Arts Academy.

Staublin was among five Charlevoix instrumentalists to be named recently to the area Honors Band which will offer its annual concert at the Opera House in Cheboygan Dec. 7.

Christian Scientists invite community for Thanksgiving

The local congregation of Christian Scientists is inviting the community to join with them in a special service on Thursday, Nov. 27, in gratitude to God.

"That Thanksgiving occurs in the midst of National Bible Week each year seems particularly fitting to most churchgoers," a church spokesperson said.

"Each year Christian Scientists offer this unique service to their community, friends, and neighbors, as an opportunity to join together in thanks to God, not only for answered prayer, but for the very nature of God, divine Love."

The service at the church on 205 Clinton St. will begin at 11 a.m. Gratitude, testimonies of healing, prayer and singing will be the order of the day.

Rayders lose title showdown, prepare for playoffs

The Charlevoix girls basketball team drive to share the Michigan-Huron Shores conference title came up short Tuesday as a powerful Gaylord team turned back the Rayders 52-35.

Gaylord, a Class C school, entered the game leading the league. A victory for the Rayders Tuesday would have meant a share of the crown.

The Blue Devils used a solid defense and a well-balanced passing offense to dominate the game from start to finish. Fine perimeter shooting and back door feeds consistently kept the Rayders off balance and unable to close the gap.

"This is the best passing group of kids, I think, in my 31 years," Gaylord coach Jim Mongeau said of his team. "These kids pass the ball just fantastically."

Gaylord also did the job defensively, limiting M-HSC scoring leader Amy Pischner to eight points, all in the first and fourth quarters.

"They shut Pischner down," said Rayder coach Hank Wagner.

Gaylord scored the first three buckets of the game and continued to build the margin. At the end of the first quarter Charlevoix was down 12-7. By halftime the Blue Devils had built the lead to 26-19.

The second half opened with the Gaylord team going on a 12-point scoring spree while shutting out the Rayder offense. The Rayders didn't score until reserve Stephaie Martin sank a 10-foot jumper with 1:24 left in the third quarter.

Charlevoix outscored Gaylord in the final period, 12-11, but the effort was not good enough to make up the large margin the Blue Devils had built up.

"Of course, we had key turnovers, but we didn't play a very good game," Wagner said. "We didn't play well enough to earn anything. We'd come down and maybe get one and then give the ball away three times in a row."

The visitors outscored Charlevoix 25 to 13 from the floor and had two of 11 from the line while collecting 14 personal fouls. The Rayders had nine of 14 charity shots and nine personal fouls.

Ann Kroll led the Rayders with nine points. Kristine Foster had 17 points, Kelly Pomarzynski 12 and Amy Benser 10 for Gaylord.

Pischner led the Rayders in rebounds with 10.

The win left Gaylord in first place with a 12-1 record in league play and a 14-5 record overall. Cheboygan was at 11-2 and the Rayders in third with a 10-3 record.

Gaylord also won the JV game 35-17. Stacy Gebott and Julie Brewster had five points each. Dinise Williams had 11 for Gaylord.

Boyne City is first test

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team will go into the western division of the Class C district tournament at Boyne City against the host team, the Ramblers, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 20, Dale Burge, athletic director, has announced.

Pizza Hut aids charity

This coming Friday, Saturday, and Sunday (November 21, 22, and 23), the Charlevoix Pizza Hut will contribute $1 to the Charlevoix County Hospice for every pizza sold, regardless of size.

Hospice Director Margaret Lasater says this is the third year the Pizza Hut has contributed part of its income to the Hospice to commemorate National Hospice Week.

Charlevoix County Hospice is also celebrating its third anniversary this week. According to Mrs. Lasater, they have built up a sizeable group of caring volunteers who are helping the terminally ill and their families through a difficult period in their lives.

The local hospice, which is a United Way agency, has offices in East Jordan, phone 536-2842.

Thanksgiving

... A time to reaffirm our faith in freedom and our determination to preserve and cherish it. A Holiday to enjoy the warm traditions of our Heritage ... a day to count the blessings of abundance and opportunity that our great land holds for us. Also, to express Our Thanks for the loyalty and confidence you have placed in us as a friend and patron. Truly ... we have much to be thankful for, mostly the chance to serve you. May your Thanksgiving be joyful and festive.

A Requiem Mass for John C. 'Mac' McDonald, 93, was held at St. Mary's Church on Saturday, Nov. 15. The Rev. Casimir Zawacki was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. McDonald died Wed., Nov. 12 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born in 1893 in Navato, Calif., to James and Mary (Snee) McDonald, Mr. McDonald was a marine engineer who had a long career in maritime service. It began during World War I when he served with the U.S. Navy for eight years as a Chief Machinist Mate.

Following his naval career, he served as an engineer aboard Matson Steamship Company vessels on the high seas before signing on with the U.S. Treasury Service aboard the "Relief," a tender servicing many of the marine navigational facilities on the Great Lakes. In 1941 when the U.S. Treasury Department merged its marine activities with the U.S. Coast Guard, Mr. McDonald was granted a Chief Boastswain's Mate rating and was in charge of the South Manitou Coast Guard Station for two years.

He subsequently was transferred to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station where he served until his retirement in 1952. Following his retirement, he served the next 10 years aboard the Ralph S. Caulkins, a Great Lakes freighter. After his return to Charlevoix, he became an avid golfer.

On Oct. 26, 1933, he married the former Mary Ellen Gallagher at Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island. They always made their home in Charlevoix.

Surviving are his wife, Mary; two sons, John C. of Atlanta, Ga., and Charles K. of Greenville; four grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and one great-great grandson. A son, Andrew Norman, preceded him in death in 1935.

Parsel and Probert said the landfill was reportedly being used by several other counties beside Emmet, Charlevoix and parts of Antrim as authorized by the solid waste management plan. They also said the landfill was being used for toxic chemicals and the disposal of materials was not supervised. "If you took a can of arsenic and threw it in there nobody would know," Parsel said. Council agreed to contact the County Board of Commissioners regarding the use of the landfill.

"definitely surprised" that Dehmel received state approval. "My personal feeling is they just do those reviews in Lansing based on the papers they receive."

The regional review his agency conducted was based on public hearings and evidence presented by the two groups, Trautman said.

HSA covers an 18-county area and has been funded by the federal government, although its funding is about to expire. It does reviews for the state Department of Public Health on a contract basis.

Trautman said his agency leaned toward Liberatore in part because of the community support, the option on a site and the promise of water and sewer service. "The board felt all of those were factors that would contribute to the success of the project."

He confirmed that the appeal could be a lengthy process. "As the elderly population grows, probably the need for those beds is going to become more acute."

McRae said he will seek a six-month extension on his option for the land on Upright Street near the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

decorate the city christmas tree in East Park. Cardboard wrapped with tin foil, aluminum pie pan material, painted wood, or natural items such as pinecones make perfect outdoor decorations.

At 3 the Charlevoix Elementary School choral group, the Lost Chords, will perform in East Park. Hot chocolate, chestnuts, and other refreshments sold by area non-profit groups will be available on the city sidewalks all day to add to the yule tide spirit.

Area restaurants will offer luncheon and dinner specials throughout the day and evening. "A wide selection of menus to suit every appetite can be found at local restaurants," Chamber Executive Director Claudia Kenifeck points out. "Enjoy a variety of merchandise, ample parking, and the warm, friendly shopping atmosphere offered by more than 40 local stores."

Shoppers will enjoy extended business hours. Most stores will be open until 10 p.m. with refreshments available to all. Some stores will be open until 9 p.m. on Friday as well.

Evening ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in East Park with entertainment for the whole family.

A mass choir procession will parade from the Market Mall to East Park where the annual Christmas tree lighting will take place and Christmas decorating contest winners will be announced.

There will be a choral program by adults and children, and community caroling. "Come and enjoy what should become a new tradition in Charlevoix. Bring your family and friends," Kenifeck said.

Art gallery revives afternoon tea

"Just Desserts" will be served in the Art Tree Sales Gallery each Thursday afternoon, beginning Nov. 20, through Dec. 18, in a revival of the afternoon tea so popular during the Victorian era.

Holiday desserts prepared by Crooked Tree Arts Council volunteers will be served in sample portions, with tea, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. For those who wish to re-create the desserts for their own yuletide entertaining, recipe cards will be available. A freewill donation is asked.

Tea and high tea are experiencing a popular revival in American, after nearly a century of neglect. The high tea is really interchangable with supper, as cold meats, salad sandwiches, hashes, aspics, relishes, savories, jellies, dessert molds and all manner of fancy sweets were served.

The afternoon tea is usually a simple affair, consisting of tea and small pastries, cookies, or light cakes served in the late afternoon to keep one going between the midday meal and the late dinner.

Katy Kilwin will premier the "Just Desserts" series Thursday, Nov. 20, serving three desserts of Victorian origin. The Petoskey woman and her husband, the late Donald Kilwin, founded Kilwin's Candies and have been satisfying northern Michigan's sweet tooth for decades.

Other participants in the "Just Desserts" series are Val Sterzik of Petoskey, who will prepare recipes based on her family's Swedish traditions; and Richard Kent, Charlevoix caterer, who will prepare the tea and scones that are traditional in his native British Isles.

"Just Desserts" will add to the holiday atmosphere in the Art Tree during the gallery's popluar Yule Fest. The Yule Fest is a month-long shopping show of original art – paintings, pottery, jewelry, glass, soft sculpture – for holiday gift giving.

The Art Tree Sales Gallery is located in the McCune Arts Center, corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey. Hours are Monday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

November is National Reye's Syndrome Month

November, is "National Reye's Syndrome Month." Reye's Syndrome is a childhood killer, striking swiftly and without much warning. Sadly, it is an often misdiagnosed disease.

According to Thomas P. Price, nation executive director of the National Reye's Syndrome Foundation, "Parents of children from infancy to young adulthood should become aware of this deadly disease and know its symptoms."

"Reye's Syndrome can develop three to five days after the onset of the flu, chicken pox, an upper respiratory illness or other viral infections," Price said. It affects all organs of the body, but most lethally, the liver and brain. It is non-contagious and is often misdiagnosed as encephalitis, meningitis, diabetes, poisoning, drug overdose or sudden infant death.

"After a viral infection has seemingly run its course," Price added, "and a child is feeling better, the following symptoms should be treated as serious and as possibly the first indication of Reye's Syndrome."

The American Academy of Pediatrics also warns that aspirin may increase the risk of developing Reye's Syndrome, and parents should avoid the use of aspirin when a child or young adult is recovering from the flu or chicken pox. Anti-nausea medication may mask the symptoms of Reye's Syndrome, and parents should consult their physician before using these drugs.

Parents should watch for these symptoms, usually occurring in this order: persistent or continuous vomiting; listlessness (loss of pep and energy, drowsiness); personality changes (such as irritability, combativeness or slurred speech); disorientation (unable to identify whereabouts or family members); and delirium and convulsions.

A child's life can depend on early diagnosis. If any of the above symptoms develop in a child or young adult, medical attention should be sought immediately.

For more information and what you can do to fight this disease, contact the National Reye's Syndrome Foundation, 126 N. Washington Avenue, Suite 201, Saginaw, Michigan 48607, or call toll free 1-800-422-0565.

Recycling, composting training set for spring

Tackling Michigan's solid waste disposal dilemma is not an easy task, with state generation rates exceeding 26,000 tons of trash per day. To alleviate pressure on overburdened and unpopular landfills, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will sponsor a series of recycling and composting training sessions for communities interested in implementing these disposal alternatives.

The Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, under contract with the DNR through the Clean Michigan Fund, will conduct eight training workshops aimed at community leaders, local government officials, environmental groups and interested citizens. Trainers at the workshops will train new trainers to teach others around the state about the values of recycling and composting and how to establish programs.

Beginning in the early spring of 1987, the following sessions are scheduled: March 30, Pontiac; March 31, Kalamazoo; April 1, Saginaw; April 2, Muskegon; April 6, Traverse City; April 7, Alpena; April 8, Sault Ste. Marie; April 10, Houghton.

Recycling and composting are viewed as environmentally sound alternatives for reducing the waste stream. These two options can also be low cost, save energy and recover useful resources for productive reuse. Finally, recycling and composting can extend the life of landfills and minimize the need for new landfills.

For more information, contact Cathy Chown at the MSU Cooperative Extension Service, at (517) 355-9688.

Home lighting contest set

As an added attraction for the holiday season, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring an area-wide residential Christmas lighting display.

The groups hope people will have yet another reason to come to Charlevoix to enjoy the spirit of the season and Charlevoix community pride.

All residents within a 4-mile radius and inclusive of the city limits are encouraged to participate.

Judging will be conducted on Friday evening, Dec. 12, starting at 5:30 p.m. Recognition will be given to two homes in each of four areas: north of bridge, south of bridge and east of U.S. 31, South of bridge and west of U.S. 31, and out of town. If you wish to be judged, you must contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce by Thursday, Dec. 11.

Judges for the Charlevoix residential Christmas lighting contest are Jan Glass, Don Dannecker, Darrel Linder and Mary T. Siegwart.

Enter your home lighting display by calling the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 547-2101.

Center offers child abuse prevention program

A new after-school program for children in the first through sixth grades is now being offered by the East Jordan Family Health Center. The program, aimed at preventing child abuse and neglect, was made possible by a $18,700 grant from The Children's Trust Fund.

The program provides a centralized, safe, well-supervised and organized after-school program between 3 and 5:30 p.m. "These funds will give us the opportunity to serve at least 40 children and provide supervised play and additional child development activities," said Chris Shea of the East Jordan Family Health Center.

The program began in August and will continue through the school year. Activities have been developed to promote physical fitness, proper nutrition, mental wellness, and socialization skills. The program operates in the East Jordan Elementary School and the East Jordan Civic Center.

The Children's Trust Fund was created in 1982 to fund local programs which prevent child abuse and neglect. Although created through State of Michigan legislation, CTF is an independent, non-profit, autonomous agency.

Drivers warned on deer-car accidents

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officials are warning motorists to watch out for deer as they travel throughout the state, especially during November.

Reports indicate the most car-deer accidents of any month occur in November in Michigan with a total of 6,379 such accidents reported in November 1985.

Five persons were fatally injured in car-deer mishaps during 1985, and 1,255 people were injured. Kent County reported the most car-deer accidents last year with 967, but accidents occurred by the hundreds in almost every Michigan county.

Charlevoix County had 280 accidents in 1985 and nine injuries. There were no fatalities in the county.

State Police Traffic Services Division suggests using caution particularly during the first few hours before sunrise and after sunset. Consider slowing speed, especially when approaching a deer crossing sign, watch for shiny eyes ahead and be prepared to stop. Tooting the horn may help. Deer often move in numbers, so travelers should watch out for the "trailers." And buckle your seat belt.

If you hit a deer, it's yours, but you should call the State Police, county sheriff, or DNR conservation officer to report the accident, and try to get both the vehicle and deer off to the side of the road.

Property damage from car-deer collisions last year was an estimated $34,761,000. Societal damage (including deaths and injuries) brought the estimate to more than $50 million.

At your service: District Health Dept. No. 3 offers varied services

by PEG OHLE

Eight thousand, three hundred and ten young children screened for vision defects; 1,818 participants in the women's, infants', and children's food supplement program; 5,181 inumunizations for communicable diseases; 1,546 visits by home health aides for personal care of patients; 1,096 tests of drinking water; 1,563 examinations of food establishments; 46 emergency medical technicians trained.

These are but a few of the services rendered during the past year by District Health Department No. 3 personnel to residents of Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego Counties, as shown in its annual report submitted recently to the County Board of Commissioners.

Services of the Health Department are divided into three categories: Personal Health, Environmental Health, and Health Education.

Personal health provides clinic services for children and adults of all ages; school screenings for vision, hearing, and scoliosis; health teaching and counseling to high risk mothers and children; communicable disease (including venereal disease) investigations; mental health followups; prenatal and postpartum care for women who are eligible; and nursing services to pregnant adolescents and their babies.

Also, therapeutic home care, including therapy, for children and adults; personal care services to the elderly; vaccinations; blood pressure screenings; health screenings for senior citizens (30 percent of those screened were referred for medical care); and general promotion, planning, and coordinating of health care activities in the community.

The environmental health staff performed services in the areas of groundwater, food, shelter, land use, solid and hazardous waste, insect and vector control, public bathing beaches, indoor air quality, and occupational concerns. Over all, services total 14,579, an increase of 1,200 over the previous year.

These environmental programs are designed to play a significant role in reducing human exposure to disease organisms, toxic chemicals, and physical hazards at home, work, school, and in recreational surroundings. Some examples are control of foodborne diseases in eating and drinking establishments: asbestos, and formaldehyde; identification of physical safety hazards at playgrounds, public bathing beaches, and children's camps; and recommendations on proper use, storage, and disposal of toxic chemicals.

Probably the most frequent environmental health contact made by residents is for on-site sewage permits. A total of 1,040 such permits were issued by District Health Department No. 3 sanitarians last year.

In the field of health education, activities were focused on child passenger safety, emergency medical services, and general health education.

More than 4,000 school age children were told the importance of using seat belts; 15 adult groups and two driver's education programs also received seat belt information; 1,800 women and children on the WIC (women, infants and children) food supplement program received an education program and materials involving child passenger safety and the correct use of car seats; similar information was made available at four health fairs throughout the district.

Three 126-hour basic emergency medical technician courses were completed in the district. Also, nine day programs with a total of 48 continuing education credits were offered to district emergency medical technicians. Over 530 attended these programs.

The health education staff issued 30 new releases on such topics as immunizations, poison prevention, and Reyes Syndrome. Newsletters to food service establishments and emergency medical services were also distributed. Classes and presentations on safety, first aid, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, sexually transmitted diseases, and proper food handling techniques were presented to 1,200 individuals.

The administrative office of District Health Department No. 3 are located in Charlevoix. It is headed by Gerald M. Chase, public health administrator; Carol Paxton, director of personal health services; and F. Dean Mikulski, director of environmental health. Bert Notestine, the health educator has his offices in Petoskey.

The over-all head of District Health Department No. 3 is Dr. Brian L. Youngs, who has his offices in Gaylord.

Roaring '20s revisited

The Roaring '20s will be returning to Charlevoix this weekend for a one-night stand when the Charlevoix High School Varsity Performing Arts team presents its annual variety show at the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22.

There will be dances, songs and skits featuring silent movies, and gangsters all reminiscent of the era of bootleggers and speakeasies.

The show promises to be an exciting one with its fast-paced skits that will relate the story of those days when short hair and shorter skirts were the style.

Tickets for the show are $3 for adults and $2 for students and for senior citizens, many of whom will remember the roaring '20s.

Developmental screening is planned

There will be a developmental screening clinic sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for all children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1988.

The clinic will be held Dec. 10, 1986 and Jan. 14, 1987 at the Char-Em building on Mercer Boulevard in Charlevoix.

The purpose of this clinic is to provide information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three-year-old children, and to have your child informally screened in order to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years.

This is a free service with appointments made on a first-come, first-served basis.

If you are interested in attending the clinic, please contact Pat Gauthier, 547-9947, at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or for further information.

Party planned

The annual Feather Party will be held at the American Legion, 106 E. Garfield ave., at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 20 under the sponsorship of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, Louis McKenzie has announced.

The event is a bingo game in which participants play the game for turkeys, chickens, and hams and cash prizes.

The public is invited to attend.

City resolves building hassle

by DOUG TRUAX

The dispute over payment of the contractor and architect working on the city's new public safety building was resolved at city council's working session Monday night.

Council agreed to release an $82,859 payment to the contractor and $2,165 to architect H. Jack Begrow after having withheld payment for one week because of discontent with the quality and speed of construction.

Begrow presented council with an update on the project and said that completion was expected on Dec. 12. Also attending the meeting were Gordon Mead, project manager for Goodin and Bigelow Construction Co., Inc., and part-owner Glenn Goodin.

Councilman Norm Probert, who raised the initial questions concerning the construction last week, continued to question the contractors and architect on details of the building. He asked several times throughout the session, "Are we getting what we paid for?"

Begrow replied that the city was and that the contractor had done excellent work including doing some additional construction on the kitchen not called for in the plans. "I think these are the tradeoffs you get with a good contractor," he said.

Probert questioned whether the ceiling that was installed was built to specifications and contained fire rated materials. He also pointed out that there was no vapor barrier between the tile and insulation, a situation he said could void the guarantee and cause excess moisture.

Probert also produced pieces of the ceiling grid system and said some of it was 15 gauge and some was 10 gauge.

Begrow noted that the city received a $2,400 credit on the ceiling after it was agreed to substitute a cheaper sheet rock ceiling for the acoustical

Contamination sites identified

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has released the 1988 proposed priority lists of Michigan Sites of Environmental Contamination including several in the Charlevoix area.

The lists are required under the Michigan Environmental Response Act program. They provide an identification, risk assessment and priority ranking of sites of environmental contamination in the state needing cleanup.

Sites are put in two groups. The first ranks sites requiring evaluation and interim response activities in order of relative risk posed to human health and the environment.

Local sites on this list include: the former Arts Dry Cleaners in Charlevoix for perchlorethylene (PCE) and trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination; ground water and residential wells in Bay Shore for ethylbenzene, xylene and benzene; the now closed East Jordan disposal site; and the former Charlevoix Chemical Co. for TCE, xylene styrene and toluene.

The second group identifies sites where evalutation and interim response activities are also necessary, but where available data indicates the risks are lower than those in group one.

This group includes the Charlevoix municipal well field for PCE contamination; Harbor Industries in Charlevoix for PCE, touene and trichloroethane; the Ironton Charlevoix County Road Commission garage salt piles; Impac Tool Co. in Charlevoix for TCE, Hooker Cleaners of Charlevoix for PCE; DME Co. of Charlevoix for PCE; East Jordan Tool and Die for methylene chloride and cloroform; and the former Charlevoix dump.

Another list contains the sites at

The Charlevoix Jaycees again this year provided needy area families with a frozen turkey and the basic fixings for a Thanksgiving meal. Shown shopping at Glen's Market are Cheryl and Dan Barron who were assisted by Ed Swentek, center, manager of Glen's meat department. The Jaycees bought 41 turkeys and several cases of canned goods and instant potatoes at reduced prices. They distributed the food on Monday to names provided by the Department of Social Services, the Women's Resource Center and other community agencies.

It's on to Houghton Lake for the Class C Regional tournament for the Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team after they defeated Alcona 62-45 in the district finals at Gaylord Tuesday night.

"It was a team effort. Amy (Pischner) had 32 points, her career high, and Barbie (Boss) 20 points. The others were feeding them the ball. They were a little shaky in the first quarter but after that they took off," Coach Hank Wagner said of the win.

Charlevoix took a slim 16-14 first period before pulling away 32-24 at the half and 46-33 going into the final period.

The Rayders outscored Alcona 26 to 17 from the floor and had 10 of 14 from the line. Alcona had 11 of 16 free throws. The Rayders had 14 and Alcona 16 personal fouls.

Shana Krone had 15 points and Colette Inda 14 for Alcona.

Pischner's 32 points gives her a career total of 849. Four more than Ann Wagner had.

Charlevoix is scheduled to meet Benzie Central in the opening game of the regional tournament at Houghton Lake at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, December 2.

Benzie defeated Elk Rapids 38-35 to go to the regional tournament.

Mayor calls it quits

Mayor Hal Hill told council Monday that he had attended his last meeting as mayor.

Noting that in two years he had missed only two meetings, Hill said family matters dictated his leaving the area until after the first of the year when mayor-elect Ralph McRae takes over.

Councilman Ray Wood, who serves as mayor pro-tem, will fill in for Hill until then.

Tom Comstock of Comstock Construction Co. is shown in the pump room of the Charlevoix water treatment plant under construction on Lake Michigan. The lake water plant, scheduled for completion by the end of the year, will replace the TCE contaminated city well.

Lake committee proposes new boat controls

by PEG OHLE

The concept of regulating boat traffic on Lake Charlevoix by a complicated use stamp system has been abandoned.

Last week, the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee decided to recommend control regulations based on existing facilities, shoreline frontage, and decisions by local township and city officials.

Existing docking facilities and marinas would remain as they are, as would the number of boats owned by any individual or group, "grandfathered" into any future regulations.

The six suggestioned future regulations, as recommended by roll call vote of the Lake Committee, are:

–One boat dock per lot for all single family residences.

–Boat slips, car and car trailer parking spaces at each existing private, commercial, condominium, and public marinas will remain at their present number or at the number which is permitted for construction at the time of plan adoption by a local unit of government.

–Projects which exceed these standards will need approval of the city or township planning commission, the recommendation of the county planning commission, and approval by the city council or township board.

–In order to monitor boat density uses, one boat slip or car trailer parking space should be allowed for 100 feet of frontage.

–The number of car trailer parking spaces at each public, private, or commercial access site will remain at the present number, or at the number which is permitted for construction at the time of plan adoption by a local unit of government.

–For all future multi-family development, new marinas, marina expansion, and other commercial and make future adjustments to the above recommendations, it is recommended the Charlevoix County Planning Commission annually survey the number of boats in use on an average peak season day on Lake Charlevoix.

These recommendations passed by a nine to two vote, with John Haggard, Charlevoix business man, and Rick Smith, Boyne City marina operator, casting nay votes. Haggard held out for one boat slip for 50 feet of frontage in multi-family developments, and Smith, who represents developers on the committee, said that in that capacity he

Charges dropped against freighter captain

Two charges of negligent homicide filed against the captain of a Yugoslavian freighter were dropped after a judge threw out evidence that a prosecutor says was critical to his case.

The charges against Seman Franko were dismissed Thursday by 90th District Court Judge Harvey Varnum shortly after Varnum granted a defense motion asking that statements Frank made to the U.S. Coast Guard be ruled inadmissable.

After the judge granted that motion, Charlevoix County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman asked that the charges be dropped.

Franko was accused in the Aug. 20 deaths of two fishermen aboard a fishing tug that collided with or was swamped by the freighter.

"Captain Franko was very pleased," defense attorney Robert Dunn said Thursday night. "He felt all along that this would be the outcome. That's why he came back. I always expected the dismissal.

The defense had contended that Franko made statements to the Coast Guard without having been read his rights. The testimony of Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Terry McKay on Franko's statements had been considered the key to the prosecution's case.

The Coast Guard, however, prohibited McKay from testifying until its separate investigation is complete, probably in January.

Lieberman had asked Varnum to postpone a preliminary examina-

Tug wreckage shows heavy damage

The Razel Brothers, a 33-foot fish tung which sank in Lake Michigan Aug. 20 in 50 feet of water seven miles northwest of Whiskey Island, has been severely damaged, a team of divers discovered recently.

The damage was discovered on Nov. 18 by a team of commercial divers and a sheriff's deputy, Sheriff George T. Lasater said Monday. The commercial divers had been engaged by the owner of the Yugoslavian ship which collided with the tug resulting in the death of three commercial fishermen.

Sheriff Lasater reported that the damage was "extensive" compared to that observed on earlier dives just after the sinking when officers searched for the body of one of the commercial fishermen lost in the accident.

The damage observed then, Sheriff Lasater said, was "no comparison to what it is now ... it's night and day."

Sheriff Lasater said an investigation of the damage will be undertaken, and he has requested divers from the Michigan State Police and the Department of Natural Resources to assist in collecting evidence at the scene on behalf of the sheriff's department.

The collision occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m. Aug. 20 when the 620-foot freighter, Jablanica, upbound from lower Lake Michigan enroute to Duluth for a load of grain, collided with the tug.

Massage: a gentle approach to healing

"Massage is part of health maintenance, like taking care of your teeth".

That is how Ann Shannon explains her profession of certified massage therapist. But, unlike caring for teeth, Ms. Shannon says massage dates back to the days before Christ, when Hippocrates, called "the father of medicine", used the technique in tending to bodily ills.

Ms. Shannon explains massage therapy as follows:

The best known type is Swedish massage, which consists of moving superficial tissue by long, strong strokes. It was brought to the United States in the 1870's, and today is widely used to relax muscles and treat such common ailments as tendonitis, sciatica, tennis elbow, edema, fibrosis, healing scar tissue, and back and other pains due to pregnancy, among others.

Deep massage of connecting tissues (all muscles, bones, organs, and nerves are connected by this tissue) can untangle bound-up muscles and improve their range of motion.

Reflexology is a special type of massage, primarily of the hands and feet, which stimulates these nerve endings and which can help the whole body.

Polarity therapy is a more esoteric form of massage. It involves working with electromagnetic energy within the body. The therapist creates an electrical circuit between herself and her client's body.

Shiatsu massage therapy is similar to accupressure, in which the massage therapist works with meridians of the body to stimulate or achieve balance in the body.

Ms. Shannon learned massage therapy at the Florida School of Massage, a branch of The Florida Institute of Natural Healing. She has lived in northern Michigan for the last three years, working part time in a clinic in Gaylord. She has now opened her own practice in Charlevoix, sharing the facilities of Jane Sooy in the Market Mall. Her telephone number is 547-5025.

Ms. Shannon is tall in stature and her fingers are long and strong, the better to carry on her chosen profession. She emphasizes the importance of touch. "When one is touched, the neurons are stimulated and endorphlna are released, stimulating the pleasure centers in the brain. That's why hugging is so important", she points out.

When not working, Ms. Shannon likes to exercise, ride horses, dance, and read. She also receives treatments from a fellow massage therapist.

Ms. Shannon suggests massage gift certificates for the persons on your Christmas list who seem to have everything.

New business brings tradition to market home

Traditions Galore will introduce their unique handcrafted items to the public at an open house to be held at the Richard and Sheilah Bogart home at 08225 Petoskey Road next door to the VFW on Friday and Saturday. The hours on Friday will be noon until 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The uniqueness of Traditions Galore is that you may host a showing of items in your home, have numerous selections personalized or order items in colors or combinations of your choosing.

What is Traditions Galore? It's a business established by Sue Miller of Charlevoix and Kathy Harris of Petoskey who have turned their hobbies into an avocation that they feel is a service that is needed in this area.

"We are prepared to bring numerous samples of our offerings into your home where you and your friends will have an opportunity to examine the items without standing at a counter in a store crowded with shoppers, ask questions regarding the offerings and order them to meet your personal needs," Miller and Harris said. "We offer a door prize at each party and a gift certificate to the hostess" they added.

Traditions Galore, as the name implies, features items that are traditional. Among the offerings are "grow sticks" to measure the growing history of your child; porcelain and wooden decorations; primitive paintings; decorated straw hats for wall or door decorations; aprons, pillows, doorstops, Scherenschnidte (German paper cutting), lawn geese, silk-screened sweatshirts and both grapevine and evergreen wreaths. All items are handcrafted by Miller and Harris or their consignors.

The new company is really a family venture, Miller and Harris agree. "Without our husbands (Mike Miller and Nick Harris) and the kids (each has three) to give us a hand, we couldn't be doing this," both said.

"We're available. Give us a call and make plans for a party anytime," they advised. Miller's number is 547-6167 and Harris' is 347-7947.

Pricing Your House Right

The value of your house is not what you think it is — or what the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood, and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody — but nobody — is more acutely aware of the current housing market than your local Realtor. A capable Realtor can bring in his own appraisal expert or even a team of salesmen who will individually price your home and then reach a fair concensus. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

If possible, your price should include curtains, draperies, refrigerator, air-conditioners, dishwashers, built-ins. It's a better package deal and may hasten the sale.

Opinion

Charlevoix offers unique shopping 'Round Town

BY EDITH GILBERT

FRANCES AND RUSSELL SECREST have moved their lovely gallery a bit closer to Charlevoix, because they needed more space. Many of us have watched the new building, designed by Dave Trautman, take shape on U.S. 31, overlooking Little Traverse Bay. "The view is more dramatic than I ever dreamed!" says Frances. "Our customers tell me they get the feeling they're aboard ship."

When completed, the showroom will have 5,700 square feet. Filled with a myriad of things, including jewelry, birchwood baskets, candles, sheepskin hats, mittens and slippers for men, women and children– the common denominator is that everything is hand-crafted and made in America.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for a centerpiece for your Thanksgiving table, there's a light oak, slender, turkey to be had, carved by Julius Skroderis, who is from Brutus. In a whimsical mood, you might toss a wreath of berries around his hand-crafted neck.

The owner of Artisans Gallery, graduated from the Rochester Institute of Technology's School for American Craftsman. He loves to design gold and silver jewelry, especially diamond wedding rings. Daughter Lorna also attended RIT where she received her master's degree. You'll see some of her boxes, lamps and mirrors made of exotic woods at the gallery, too.

Gradually, the Secrests are adding contemporary furniture to their inventory. I fell in love with a tea cart that was light as feather. It had just been unpacked —

Russell and Frances met in Muncie, Indiana. Because so many friends vacationed in northern Michigan, they decided to visit our area, too. They settled here in 1970 and have been so busy ever since, they barely find time to go snowshoeing on a Sunday afternoon in the winter or wild berry picking in the summer.

IF YOU STOP to think about it, there are many neat places one can do one's Christmas shopping right here in Charlevoix and nearby. One doesn't have to chance driving downstate, when we have Brumm's Studio south of us, and Artisans Gallery north of us the Koocky Gallery and the Bridge Street Artists in between. Not to mention the Shop of the Gulls and the Apple Tree; Mettler's and the Clothing Company (see how it rhymes!).

Then there's always Murdick's Fudge for our chocoholic friends, maple syrup for our out-of-town friends, and T-shirts for everyone else.

And remember all the gifty items carried by our local drug stores, hardware stores, grocery stores and florists, such as perfume, cookware, wines and plants.

In fact, there's going to be a Charlevoix Christmas Celebration Saturday, Dec. 6, which sounds like a lot of fun. There's an early winter this year, heaven knows, with lots of snow to put us in the right mood, so let's do ourselves and the local merchants a-favor and get our holiday shopping done early too. Then we can relax and truly enjoy the festivities.

SPEAKING OF FESTIVITIES, the popular Holly Ball at the Perry Hotel is being revived after a lapse of 15 or so years. The dinner dance is Thursday, Dec. 18, and the full six-piece Epsilon Jass Band will play their very danceable music.

Anyone who wishes to get up a table or make reservations, may call 347-4337. The price is $35 per person and the proceeds benefit the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Black tie is optional, which reminds me – did you know that this year we celebrate the 100 anniversary of the tuxedo? Legend has it, that tobacco heir Griswold Lorillard, who summered in Tuxedo Park, N.Y., shocked polite society in 1886 by appearing at a formal dinner in a tuxedo instead of tails! Chances are that you'll see some tuxedos at the ball, but you'll be relieved to know it's not required.

MY FAITHFUL READERS will recall that in Sept. I mentioned that Adele Lepman (Kiteley) was accepted as a student at the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Clown College to which there are 8,000 applicants annually and only 60 are accepted. After an intensive ten-week course, only 10 students are chosen to travel for one year with the circus. And fortunately, Adele was one of the chosen few!

Mama and Papa Lepman attended the graduation, as well as Aunt Kay Loeb. The graduation, from what I hear, was quite unusual. No cap and gown. Instead all the graduates received their diplomas dressed as clowns! Of course, families couldn't identify their offspring with all that makeup, so each clown was given a number. Maybe that's where the expression "I've got your number" originated.

Music critic Clockwise

By Bob Clock

If you think your life is hard, you should try living with a cat who thinks she is a music critic.

Sunday afternoon while Judy and the kids were shopping, I decided to take advantage of my unaccustomed solitude and play a few bars on the piano. It's not often I get to play, what with the television competing with the stereo day in and day out.

Besides, the house was terribly quiet.

So I sat down on the piano bench, did a few dramatic finger bends and launched my own arrangement of "Old Man River," complete with vocal accompaniment.

I had just reached the point where I was "a little drunk" and had landed in "jail-ul" basso profundo, when a ball of fur materialized on the piano bench next to my right elbow. It was Magic Shadow, our grey mouser. To tell you the truth, I was more than a little surprised that Magic Shadow had suddenly taken an interest in music. I was also happy to have an audience.

So I continued playing and singing until, Ouch! Magic Shadow had her teeth wrapped around my elbow and wouldn't let go.

"Cut it out, you uncultured ingrate," I cried, shaking her loose. "If you don't like my piano playing you can plug your ears with catnip and hide in the basement."

Magic Shadow leaped to the floor and I thought I was rid of her.

But a few minutes later when I was "tired of living and feared of dying," I felt another sharp pain, this time in my left elbow. Magic Shadow had returned and was attacking my other arm with both tooth and claw.

Another nasty scuffle ensued and I pursued the cat into the kitchen where I found her mewing plaintively next to her empty cat bowl. She wanted lunch — no two ways about it.

I suppose I should have known better than play "Old Man River," knowing how cats hate water. I might have had better luck with "Kitten on the Keys" or "Alley Cat."

But I doubt it. "Music hath charms to sooth the savage beast," but cat food works better.

IT MAKES ME SAD to see all of the Christmas decorations going up, particularly since my front porch is still festooned for Halloween.

I guess I'm really perturbed by people who are so well organized that they get their wreathes hung and trees decorated before the holidays.

The folks I envy are those who are able to postpone Christmas legitimately for several months, until "Susie gets home from Europe" or "Dad gets out of jail."

If the truth were known, they're just looking for a scapegoat.

I once had a great aunt who decided unilaterally to delay the holidays until I got out of the army. She wasn't any better organized than I am.

So we had our Christmas goose and plum pudding in July. The goose was a little older and tougher than it should have been, but otherwise the meal was a success.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

With all of the snow we've already had it is easy to "think Christmas." Greenleaf Gardens will be delivering all garland orders this week. The more stores that decorate the more beautiful Charlevoix will look for the Holidays. Please participate if you can.

Ed Whitley and his crews have been busy installing the tree lights on Bridge Street. Thanks to a generous donation from KCB and Pat McKeown Ford, Inc., the Christmas Tree in East Park will have more lights this year and an added star on the top.

The window decorating contest will be judged Friday evening Dec. 5. Who will be the recipient of the traveling trophy for the best dressed window? The results will be announced Saturday night, 7 p.m. December 6 in East Park. The following categories will be judged: professional; restaurants; lodging; gift stores, hard goods; soft goods; auto dealerships; financial institutions; food stores and industrial. Judges will be looking for the best display of the merchant's product and exterior lighting.

The Merchant Association and the Chamber staff have been working hard to organize the Charlevoix Community Christmas Celebration on Dec. 6. We ask that you support your local businesses and shop Charlevoix for all your gift-giving needs.

Letters to the editor:

Abortion profanes sacrifice of our forefathers

Dear Editor:

I take no pleasure in presenting my opinion that we are marching down the road to moral anarchy in America.

Some examples might be cited - drug abuse, pornography, homosexuality - but nothing so profoundly convinces me of how far we have turned our backs upon God in America as does the issue of abortion.

Man is so self-destructive that he is simply not capable of setting himself up as his own god. We need a divine standard to pattern our lives after.

Yet in our present day arrogance, we have come to believe that we can decide for ourselves what is best for us. We no longer need God.

Such thinking will destroy us.

I sometimes wonder if the civil war poet Walt Whitman would hear the sounds of American singing today. He said that this Union was welded in blood, that there was a solemn price paid.

A solemn price indeed, for the civil war was a most terrible war - the bloodiest in our nation's history - 495,332 casualties in four years of fierce struggle.

Do you know that since abortion was legalized in 1973 that we have caused enough casualties by means of abortion to have fought 40 civil wars?

The fact that abortion is legal does not mean that it is moral.

I submit to you that we profane the sacrifice of our forefathers each and every time a selfish abortion is performed in this country. And 95 percent of the abortions performed in America are for selfish reasons.

I cannot see into the future. I do not know how much time we have. But I tell you this - if we continue to march to the sounds of an arrogant drummer - we will not survive as a nation.

America needs a new heart and a new spirit.

Blind progress opposed

Dear Editor,

Thanks, Megan Adams, for your recent letter in the Courier on condos. Not only will we have waters full of swill and debris, but our streets and sidewalks, too. Or perhaps no one noticed the trash along our three-block business district and park all summer long.

While we are speaking of business - where is it since Labor Day? I thought the building of condos was supposed to generate business. They certainly aren't helping our economy now, nor will they until Memorial Day. What a mistake all this building is. It doesn't make sense.

I've spoken to many people who all agree that they have a helpless feeling. We must not pose blind opposition to progress but we must pose opposition to blind progress.

Coast Guard can search boats any place, any time

Dear Editor:

In regard to your article in the Wednesday, Nov. 12 edition of the Courier dealing with the boarding of the sloop Touche in Lake Charlevoix, we, as sailors and boaters not only on the Great Lakes but on any waters that border on our nation, should be aware of the fact that the United States Coast Guard does not need probable cause before they stop and search any boat.

A man's home may be his castle but this does not apply to a vessel on the water. Like it or not, the federal courts of this country have upheld the right of the Coast Guard to search any vessel at any place, at any time, and the search does not have to be accompanied by probable cause. Literally, the Coast Guard could stop you if they didn't like the cut of your jib.

Boardings such as occurred to the Touche are clearly nothing new to those sailors who sail along the Atlantic Seaboard or the Pacific Coast. Like it or not (and I presume most of us won't like it), future intrusion by the Coast Guard is a fact of life and here to stay.

Fish net picture identified

Dear Sirs:

Regarding the enclosed picture which was printed in November 12 issue (Of men working on fishnets).

This picture was taken in late 1946 or early 1947. We know because Joe Shores, my husband, is in the right foreground in white shirt. The other three are George Case, Louis Case, and Simon Wabaniski.

The name of the fish tug was Lucille H, owned by the late Ras Hendrickson of Charlevoix. The picture was taken by Bill Oakes of Rexall Drug Store.

Pour dry red or white dinner wine (such as Burgundy or Sauterne) into tall glasses, about one-half full. Fill with chilled, plain, carbonated water. Red wine is good with a fruit carbonated drink. Add 4 drops of green food coloring to the white wine, and two drops of red for the red wine. Fill a tall glass with 8 ounces of crushed ice, pour in your choice of the red or green wine cooler of your choice, add a straw, add a spoon, and enjoy. A mixture of red and green snowcone coolers is quite attractive as an after dinner drink, or at holiday get-togethers.

Nackermans celebrate 60th

Frank and Grace Nackerman of Beaver Island celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary this fall with a family party at their son's home in Lake Orion. The party was hosted by their children and was preceded by a Mass at St. Joseph's Church.

Grace and Frank were married on Nov. 26, 1926 at St. Vincent's Church in Pontiac and have lived on Beaver Island since that time. Frank retired as Postmaster of the Island in 1973 and Grace retired as postal clerk at the same time.

They have five children: Barbara, Rod, Rosemary, Ellen and Colleen; twenty grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren.

St. Mary's hosts bazaar

The holiday spirit will reign at St. Mary's Parish Center Friday, Dec. 5, when the Parish Club and the Rosary Altar Society presents a casserole and salad luncheon and bazaar.

The luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. "A wide variety of home-prepared hot casseroles, delicious salads, relishes, rolls, breads, dessert and a choice of beverage are included on the menu," Karen Campbell, general chairperson of the event, said. Tickets will be $3.50 for adults; $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children six years and younger. Connie Doan is president of the Parish Club.

The holiday bazaar will open at 11 a.m. and continue until 2 p.m., according to Rita Orlowski, general chairperson. It will also be open from 5 until 7 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. until noon on Sunday, Dec. 6 and 7.

"Members of the society have been conducting work bees for several weeks preparing a host of items suitable for gift giving," Orlowski said. She listed such items as the popular kissing wreath, grapevine wreaths, table centerpieces, time-saving gadgets for the kitchen, Christmas decorations and hand knitted and crocheted items of every description. "It will be a full-scale bazaar with five booths including one with home-baked goodies and a sweet booth with homemade candy," Orlowski added. Theresa Shawhan is president of the Rosary Altar Society.

"This promises to be a real holiday event. We hope you will join us," Doan and Shawhan said.

Charlevoix dance classes planned

Classes for children in basic dance movements and beginning ballet will soon be offered in Charlevoix by an instructor from the McCune Arts Center.

Shortly after the first of the year, Diana Heinzelman will set up classes in one of the public schools under the direction of the County Youth Activities office. The classes, which will be open to boys and girls of all ages, will cost $4 each.

Youth Activities Director Mike Davis has also announced that in late winter or early spring, he will set up a gymnastics program for Charlevoix children.

The Youth Activities Program, which is funded partly by the state and partly by the county, is designed to provide athletic and other activities for children to fill up their out-of-school hours.

could not recommend restricting future marina growth.

Charlevoix realtor Gene Steele, an observer at the meeting, expressed his displeasure with the recommendations by saying they would preclude any further lake development. Members of the committee refuted this statement.

While the casual observer may consider the above six recommendations somewhat complicated, they are simpler than the earlier proposed use stamp system. This system proposed issuing one stamp for every acre of Lake Charlevoix surface, a total of 17,260 stamps. These stamps would have been allocated equitably among riparian property owners, marinas, and day users of the lake. They would also have been allocated according to boat size because different sized boats require different numbers of footage of lake surface on which to operate.

According to Leah Green, vice-chairman of the Lake Committee, last week's recommendations for the most part complete the committee's study of Lake Charlevoix water use.

The next component of the study will deal with shoreline soil types to determine the best uses of the various lake shore soil areas. For this study, Mrs. Green says the committee will use the "Bible" of soil information, "Soil Survey of Charlevoix County", issued in 1974 by the United States Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee has been meeting regularly since January, 1985 to work out a plan that would protect the lake from over-use and resultant pollution.

"We had hoped to have a plan in two years", Mrs. Green explained, "but it will take a little longer. At least we can now see the end".

Still to be decided by the committee is whether the suggested plan will be concerned only with the lake and lake shoreline, or whether it will encompass the entire Lake Charlevoix watershed area.

Contamination sites identified

which evaluations have been completed, interim response undertaken, where necessary, and where final cleanup is now required.

This list includes the TCE contamination of the Charlevoix well field which will soon be replaced by a new water treatment plant using Lake Michigan water.

The DNR lists are available for public review and comment through Jan. 2, 1987. This input will be used to develop the final priority lists which will be submitted to the Legislature in February and serve as the basis for Gov. James Blanchard's budget recommendation.

The fiscal year 1988 proposed lists contain 1,539 site entries as compared to 1,260 listed for FY 1987.

The contamination at these sites is the result of a variety of land and water resource uses.

Above ground and underground storage tanks are the point of release of the contamination at 20 percent of the listed sites; landfills account for 20 percent; the source is unknown at 15 percent; and the remaining sites have been contaminated by salt storage, agriculture or food production or manufacturing processes.

Public hearings on the proposed priority lists will be held at Escanaba on Thursday, Dec. 4 and at Lansing on Thursday Dec. 11. DNR representatives will also present information sessions at a variety of loctions around the state. Further information is available from the DNR, Groundwater Quality Division, Remedial Action Section, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI 48909.

Building hassle resolved tile one in the original specifications. Part of the tradeoff for the cheaper ceiling, Begrow said, was that it was not fire rated, although the building inspector said a fire rated ceiling was not required.

"My feeling is that the tile system has gone in and there is no problem with it," he said.

He bristled at the repeated questioning on the ceiling. "It is very easy for you to come back after we've made the decision and say we should have spent more money.

"You've had the plan for four, five or six months. Why are you asking questions now?"

Gooding suggested the contractor and the architect consult with the ceiling tile manufacturer to check on the warranty.

Toys sent to flood victim kids

The Charlevoix County Farm Bureau is joining forces with other county Farm Bureaus to collect new toys for farm children in southern Michigan whose families were affected by fall floods, "Many families who were affected will not have the money to spend on the extras this Christmas. With this project, we hope to make Christmas a happier one for those kids," a Farm Bureau spokesman said.

Michigan Farm Bureau Regional Representative Paul Wegmeyer of Gaylord, will pick up the toys in the northern counties and deliver them to the Saginaw Valley where a MFB regional representative will distribute them to those families most in need.

Those willing to donate are asked to drop off their donations at the following places: Charles Elzinga Insurance Agency in Charlevoix, Mike Hausler Insurance Agency in Boyne City or the County Farm Bureau office in Ellsworth.

The deadline is Dec. 1. Gifts should be wrapped if possible. Indicate whether it is to a boy or girl, and the age bracket of the child to receive the toy. Toys for children from infant to teen are being sought.

If you have any further questions please contact the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau at 588-8548.

In his motion, Lieberman said McKay's testimony is "crucial to the furtherance of this action and to the ultimate determination of the truth of the matter."

Mason speaks to Rotary

Roger Mason, pitcher for the San Francisco Giants, recently addressed the Rotary Club of Charlevoix. Mason was introduced by Rotarian Chuck Theinm who knew him as a young man in Bellaire. A native of Bellaire, Mason broke into the major leagues with the Detroit Tigers in 1983. He was traded to the Giants in 1985 and is presently home in Antrim County while undergoing physical therapy for an elbow injury that interrupted his pitching duties for the Giants this past season.

Navy attracts Charlevoix grads

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix High School is good recruiting grounds for the United States Navy.

In the last few months, ten men who are either graduates or present students of the high school have signed up to "Join the Navy and see the world", according to Ron Hoffman, recruiting officer from the Petoskey office.

The most publicized recent recruits are the McClanaghan triplets, Tony, John, and Gene, who will graduate in June, 1987 and enter the Navy's six-year nuclear program.

"This program is our hardest program", Hoffman says. "Those we take must have a good math background and an exceptionally clean personal background, and in addition to our regular test they have to take another, more difficult test".

Joe Simpson, also a Charlevoix High School senior this year, is another nuclear program recruit. Ronald Stoneham, who graduated in 1965, signed up for the nuclear program in October of this year.

Ken Gray and Marc Himebaugh, who graduated in June of this year, have already entered the nuclear program.

Mike Horton, another 1986 graduate, has joined the communications program of the Navy, and a 1986 graduate who wants to be un-named, has joined as a seaman.

The most recent Charlevoix recruit is Neild LaCroix, who graduated from high school in 1984. He will enter the Navy's seal program, a special warfare program involving diving and other water skills.

Ann Bolton, a former Charlevoix High School student who graduated from an out-of-state school, was the only recent woman recruit. She entered the aviation program.

Hoffman said he visits Charlevoix High School about every two months to talk to students who are considering joining the Navy. "Charlevoix students get good test scores", he added.

The popular six-year nuclear program begins with two years of schooling at a Navy base in Orlando, Florida. Upon completion of this schooling, participants receive an enlistment bonus of $3,700. They enlist with an E-3 rating, which carries a base salary of $766.80 a month, plus housing, food, medical, and other allowances. "It all adds up to between $1,100 and $1,200 a month to start, Hoffman explained.

Most other Navy programs, such as aviation and communications, run for three or four year periods. Recruits enlist with an E-1 rating and a base pay of $608.00 a month, plus housing, food, medical, and other allowances.

The McClanaghan triplets -- Tony, John and Gene -- are sworn in after entering the Navy's nuclear program.

County Republicans pick leaders

by PEG OHLE

Barbara Timms was elected last week to serve as chairperson of the Charlevoix County Republican party.

Mrs. Timms succeded Don Voisin, who assumed the job of vice chairman. County Clerk Jane Brannon retained her duties as secretary, County Commissioner Oral Sutliff remained as treasurer, and Joanne Balach kept her job as finance chairman.

All officers will serve for two years.

Republican party officers and all Republican elected county officials make up the Republican Executive Committee. In addition to those named above are County Commissioner Donald Smith, County Commissioner Larry Matthew, County Commissioner Tom Breakey, County Commmissioner-elect Bud Heeres, Sheriff George T. Lasater, Prosecuting Attorney Kraag Liberman, Treasurer Anah Potter, and Register of Deeds Charlene Gaskin.

Charlevoix County Republicans are engaged in a busy program.

In the August Primary, Republican voters elected 28 fellow Republicans precinct delegates to the County Convention, which was held on August 13 for the purpose of selecting five delegates and five alternates to the Republican State Convention, held the following week. Those delegates were Voisin, Haggard, Don Smith, William Ohle, and William Huber. Alternates elected were Cass Toton, Art Rouse, Don Hufford, Lee Moerland; and Margaret Ohle. The delegates participated in selecting Republican candidates for Lt. Governor, Secretary of State, Attorney General, State Board of Education, and board members of the three State Universities.

The next County Convention will be held in January or February, at which time delegates and alternates to the next State Convention, in February, will be elected. This State Convention will name the State Chairman, Vice Chairmen, and State and District Committee members.

The final responsibility of the County's 28 precinct delegates elected in August will be to attend a County Convention early in 1988, at which time delegates to another State Convention will be selected. This convention, scheduled for early in the year, will select State delegates to the Republican National Convention, to be held that summer in San Francisco. At that time, a Republican presidential and vice presidential candidate will be named.

Community Food Pantry readies for Christmas

The Charlevoix Community Food Pantry Advisory Council is busy preparing for its annual Christmas project which provides needy households with all the makings of Christmas dinner as well as extra food and gifts for children.

"In the last three years, the project has grown to include the efforts and generosity of many individuals and organizations in addition to the community churches which sponsor the pantry," a spokesman for the council said. "Christmas seems to be a time when 'greater Charlevoix' joins hearts and hands in the act of sharing in the spirit of the One whose birthday we celebrate," the spokesman added.

The council invites the participation of any individual or group who cares to join forces with them. The Welcome Wagon, for example, has donated most of its proceeds from their Apple Fest booth to the project.

The contribution by this group of new Charlevoixans has gotten this year's project off to a fine start, the spokesman continued.

The Council also asks any organization planning to engage in a similar operation separate from the community project, to advise them of their plans so there will be no duplication or any needy family missed. Please call Joe Spurgeon at the Rainbow Shoppe, 547-2815, for more information or to report your plans.

The special needs are canned goods, staples and money to purchase perishable foods and children's gifts. Workers are also needed to shop, wrap gifts, pack food and help with delivery to those unable to pick up their parcels. Knitters who can make mittens, caps and scarves will also be greatly appreciated.

New Round Lake project gets council approval

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council unanimously approved Monday a new site for Fairport Marine Electronics on Round Lake, despite the threat of a lawsuit from an attorney representing a neighboring condominium.

The three-story structure will house the marine electronics business on the first floor and part of the second floor. The remainder of the second floor and the third story will be used as a private residence.

The site plan calls for the removal of two existing buildings, one at the edge of Round Lake and the other near Belvedere Avenue. The new building would be built next to the LeHavre condominiums, with its deck some three feet from the water's edge.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission had given prior approval to the plan and the Zoning Board of Appeals authorized a variance to allow three floors in the marine commercial district which restricts buildings to 35 feet in height and two stories. The proposed building does meet the 35-foot height restriction.

William McTaggart, an attorney representing LeHavre condominium owners, called on council to send the site plan back to the planning commission. He said the LeHavre condo owners objection to the plan was its location on the property and not the building itself or the density.

McTaggart said the structure should be moved to the opposite (western) side of the property or farther back from the water. "The whole point ... is it unreasonably confiscates the view and it doesn't have to," McTaggart said.

Frank North, one of managers of Fairport Marine, told council the location near the water was "strictly from the standpoint of doing business."

He said there was "absolutely no malice intended on vision" and added that moving to the other side of the property would affect a single family residence there.

North said the site plan called for underground garages to be build on the Belvedere Avenue side of the property. The garages would replace an existing building, North said, and would open up the view of Round Lake from the street. They would provide secured parking for boat owners and would be covered with sod.

The site plan calls for 33 parking spaces, well above the 15 required by the marine-commercial zoning.

North said the project would cover only 1 percent more of the land than is currently covered.

Bob Wexstaff, a resident of LeHavre, question what would become of the open space on the property "downstream."

He suggested that someone, perhaps a future owner, might "come back and want to put more buildings on the property."

North said that Fairport Marine had "no plans at all for future buildings."

Road crews ready for winter's fury

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Road Commission has 30 snow plows and other equipment "at the ready" to battle the coming winter's snowstorms.

That's the word of Fred Welch, manager of the Road Commission.

"Every spring, when we're finished using the plows, we bring them in, repair them and paint them (red) so they'll be ready when we need them. We have 18 plows at our Boyne City headquarters, 10 at our Ironton yards, and two on Beaver Island.

When the heavy snows hit and the plows go to work, it costs $2,500 a day for labor alone, Welch says, and when the storms come on a weekend, the labor costs go up to 3,750 a day.

Charlevoix County has 179 miles of primary roads and 543 miles of local roads. Keeping them in shape costs about $833 a mile annually for the primary roads, and about $500 a mile annually for the local roads, Welch estimates. In addition, the Road Commission maintains the state and federal highways within the county (US-31, US-131, M-66, and M-75), for which it is re-imbursed.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission is cutting back on its use of salt for highway use, using a mixture of one to seven with sand. It is applied from trucks with two-speed dispensing controls to prevent over-application. Salt is constantly blamed for ruining automobile finishes and polluting the environment, especially lakes and streams.

Road plows are of two different types, the "V", which throws snow in two directions, and the one-way, which throws it one way to the side. Road crews are instructed to concentrate on hills, curves, and intersections in both plowing and sanding. Whenever possible, they remove the snow to the bare surface.

The County Road Commission receives most of its operating money from the State of Michigan, derived from gasoline taxes and license plate fees. Occasionally, the county is asked to contribute toward the purchase of a piece of equipment, and in recent years, townships have been contributing portions of the cost of upgrading local roads.

However, no local property taxes are generally earmarked for roads.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission is managed by three members, who are appointed by the County Board of Commissioners to six-year terms. Present members are Robert Stowe of Charlevoix, Delbert Ingalls of East Jordan, and John Kujawski of Boyne City. Fred Welch, as engineer-manager, handles the day-to-day operations of the Road Commission.

The site plan for the new Fairport Marine building.

School weighs student trip to France

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education will meet with members of the French Club, their instructor, Yvonne Wendt, and parents of the students at 8 p.m. Monday to discuss further the request to take the club to France during the spring break.

Twenty-eight students have said they want to make the trip. The decision must be made prior to Dec. 15, the deadline for making reservations.

In the interim, the board proposes to check to determine what other schools are doing and to discuss the issue further with parents prior to making a decision on the request.

In other action by the board, Roger Gowell was hired as assistant track coach, Henry Wagner as junior high boys basketball coach and Becky Gengle and Jan Erzleben as junior high girls basketball coaches. Richard Swenor conveyed the recommendations of the extracurricular committee to the board and discussed other issues relating to the program.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren spoke briefly on proposed legislation being considered for the financing of schools. He said he felt the DeGrow bill that would send monies over a given State Equalized Valuation to the state for redistribution would not be approved. A second bill that would allow the state to levy 18 mills on the county's SEV with the funds going to Lansing for redistribution to districts across the state at the rate of $3,000 per child was being considered. The school district's need above these funds would then have to be approved locally.

School districts "out of formula" - those receiving state aid - would benefit by the legislation. The Charlevoix district which is not out of formula would gain nothing and be forced to levy additional taxes to retain its present curriculum, Van Wieren said. The school presently levies 15.25 mills in addition to its allotted millage of 91.1 mills.

David J. Smith, high school principal, advised that he was seeking a Spanish-English teacher to replace Ted Miller who is leaving in the spring to teach at a Japanese university for a year. The school year there begins in April.

Girls beat Benzie Central in regional

The Charlevoix Rayder girls' basketball team will return to Houghton Lake Friday night to take on the winner of the Evart-Houghton Lake game after defeating Benzie Central 46-43 in the opening game of the Class C Regional Tournament.

"It was a team effort that brought us through with the win," Coach Henry Wagner said.

The Rayders took a 10-8 first period lead, but were out-scored 12-2 in the second quarter to give Benzie a 20-12 halftime advantage.

As the second half opened, the Rayders got on track and tied the score 27-all going into the final period when they had as much as a six-point lead at one time.

Wagner credited the fine defensive effort of Stephanie Martin for slowing down Benzie's excellent guard, Erica Guzinski, slowing their scoring potential.

In the fast break, Amy Pischner's rebounding and determination to break through gave her 12 points in the final period and put the Rayders ahead.

But with two minutes to go, Pischner fouled out for the first time in her basketball career. In all, she had 29 points, 21 of them in the second half.

Charlevoix had 19 field goals, eight of 18 free throws and 23 personal fouls. Benzie had 16 from the floor and 11 of 27 from the line, with 19 personal fouls:

Guzinski had 23 points for Benzie.

The regional finals will be played at 7 p.m. Friday.

Community Center gets $10,000 grant

The Charlevoix Community Center got a boost last week as the board of directors of the Rainbow Shoppe voted to donate $10,000 toward the project. The Rainbow Shoppe is a cooperative effort by local churches to provide low cost clothing and emergency funds to families in need.

A group of concerned citizens has been meeting in recent weeks to establish a community center which would include facilities and programs for young people, senior citizens and others in the Charlevoix area. The group is also investigating the possibility of combining the community center with a swimming pool.

Teachers answer the bell even though kids are gone

Charlevoix teachers went to school Wednesday not to teach but to learn.

It was an in-service day for the faculty of the high school, middle school and elementary while the kids were enjoying a day off before Thanksgiving.

Teachers use the in-service days to hear from speakers at the leading edge of various educational fields, said MaryAnn Chew, chairman of the in-service committee and a fourth-grade teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School.

"It's a day that's vital to teachers, to get together, to share ideas and new insights," she said.

Elementary teachers heard Rita McNeely of East China Township schools discuss effective teaching techniques and cooperative problem solving. McNeely is a math and science coordinator with the East China schools and spends additional time consulting with other school systems.

Sandra Schoenfeld of McDougal, Littell & Co., an Illinois educational firm, briefed elementary teachers on spelling research at the afternoon session. The company has developed a new spelling program which the school system may adopt. Some Charlevoix teachers are using some aspects of the program already.

At the morning high school session, Kari Walker, executive director of CHIP Counseling, and JoAnn Lutze, prevention educator, discussed ways in which teachers can identify potential alcohol or drug abusings students. Lutze discussed the various stages and behaviors that accompany drug abuse.

Physiological aspects of drug abuse were also discussed, along with how the family of a drug abuser handles the problem.

At the afternoon session, Dave Boehm, director of industrial relations for Bendix-Courter Operation in Boyne City, spoke on what schools should do to prepare kids for work in industry.

Middle school teachers had the option of visiting other schools in other districts or joing high school teachers at the high school for their in-service session.

Elementary school teachers try some creative problem solving exercises.

Dunes hearings planned

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) plans a series of public information meetings in December to discuss the need to manage development in order to protect Michigan's fragile coastal sand dunes.

"Michigan's coastal sand dunes, highly attractive for home building, recreation and industry, are extremely sensitive to development," commented DNR coastal sand dune specialist Christy Fox, "and improper use can result in damage to the dune, as well as to structures placed in the dunes."

"As development pressures on the dunes increase," she added, "the need to guide this development through sound management is essential, and this is why the Department has initiated a review of management options to protect the state's sand dune resources."

The meeting will focus on problems and potential solutions to managing development of sand dunes and offer an opportunity for the public to comment on the various alternatives.

Additionally, House Bill 5667, introduced by Representatives Lynn Jondahl and Paul Hillegonds, which would amend the Sand Dunes Protection and Management Act (P.A. 222 of 1976) will be discussed. The bill would expand Act 222 to include sand dune development to already existing sand dune mining restrictions.

The meeting schedule in northern Michigan includes:

December 9 - Ludington, 7 p.m., Mason County Courthouse, 300 W. Ludington Avenue.

December 16 - Petoskey, 7 p.m., Petoskey City Council Chambers, City-County Building, 200 Division Street.

December 17 - Frankfort, 7 p.m., Frankfort High School Community Room, 534 11th Street.

Rita McNeely explains her approach to effective teaching.

Choir to present Festival of Carols

The sounds of Christmas will fill the sanctuary of St. Mary's Catholic Church at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 7 when the Charlevoix area community chorale and orchestra presents its annual Festival of Carols.

The program will consist of carols old and new, according to Director Ellen Addington. Among them will be the first performance anywhere of Willa Hutson's annual Christmas greeting carol, "The Homeless One" and Elizabeth Humphrey's "A Very Merry Christmas Fugue" as well as the first performance in America of "A Carol of Joy" written by British church woman, Joy Martin, and set to music by Bunty Newport. This carol will be sung by Rev. Philip Schairbaum, Addington said.

By popular request, the group will sing, "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," the Clement Moore poem set to music by Ken Darby and arranged by Harry Simeone. Philip Kluczynski's "Santa ho ho's are worth the price of admission," Addington commented.

The orchestra will present two delightful Leroy Anderson compositions, "Sleigh Ride" and "A Christmas Festival," as well as accompanying the chorale and congregation.

The addition of handbells, drum, finger cymbals, tambourines, strings, bass, recorder and bassoon to some of the choral numbers enhances the charm of these selections, she added.

The members of the group come from the entire area: East Jordan, Boyne City, Ellsworth, Central Lake and Charlevoix.

Claire Boyer, an exchange student from France living with an East Jordan family, will be playing the violin with the orchestra and singing with the chorale.

There will be no charge for the program to which the public is invited to attend. An offering will be accepted and contributed to the Charlevoix Christmas Food Pantry sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

Santa's workshop set

Santa's Secret Shop for children will be offered again this year at the Charlevoix Elementary School. The shop will be open Saturday, Dec. 6 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

At this special shop, youngsters can purchase inexpensive gifts (price range 10 cents to $4) for family and friends. Youth from the First Congregational Church will be available to help youngsters select and wrap their gifts.

Offered in partnership with Santa's Luncheon at the school on the same day, the shop will allow children to combine a visit with Santa and their own gift purchasing.

Parents are also welcome at the shop, but must remember that this project is primarily a service for the children of our community. A special waiting area for parents will be provided.

Shop Charlevoix

Charlevoix merchants pray for ice and snow like we are experiencing this week. They say it keeps the local Christmas shoppers from fleeing north or south to visit Petoskey or Traverse City.

We know seveal people for whom Christmas shopping wouldn't be Christmas shopping without visiting to some mall or another, often as far away as Detroit.

While Charlevoix is more often thought of as a mecca for fudgies and resorters than a holiday shopping destination, we think it's a shame more people don't start their Christmas shopping at home.

Charlevoix offers a surprising variety of unusual Christmas gifts and with a little thought and very little effort shoppers can find everything from fine art to gourmet food.

Walking up and down the uncrowded winter streets of Charlevoix and talking to the generally unharried and pleasant shop keepers is a lot more sane and enjoyable way to deal with the holiday rush than being overrun in some anonymous and stiffling mall. And it keeps the money at home.

Try Charlevoix this year. And get things off to a start with Saturday's Community Christmas Celebration, a well-conceived way for the town to get in the spirit.

Private fiefdom
Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

A few weeks ago when President Reagan entertained returning hostages at the White House, the press was taken sharply to task for exposing details of the sordid arms deal with Iran under which the hostages were freed.

With the president in attendance, one of the hostages admonished the press to "back off" from its insufferable questioning so that the president could go about the task of freeing more prisoners.

I'll have to admit that the warning gave me pause. For a few brief, fleeting moments I wondered if the press, indeed, had been too insistent on ferreting out the facts. But I dismissed the suggestion out of hand when I remembered the very important role the press played in exposing the nefarious skulduggery of Richard Nixon and Co. in the Watergate scandal.

Later, Reagan suggested at another press conference that more prisoners might have been liberated if the press hadn't interfered. It seems the press is always the whipping boy for presidents who refuse to play by the book.

Of course, the press didn't "back off" and last week the president was forced to reveal an even more detailed picture of the Iranian arms deal. Profits from the sale had been siphoned to Reagan's good buddies in Nicaragua — the Contras who are fighting to topple the legitimate government of that beleaguered country and reinstate another right-wing Somoza-type dictatorship.

Reagan, of course, denies that he had knowledge of the plot to rifle the U.S. Treasury to help the Contras militarily against the express wishes of the U.S. Congress.

The kettle this week is about to boil over, casting a pall over the upcoming holiday season.

With all deference to the office, it does not appear that the president has been entirely candid with the people. He certainly must have known what was happening — or it wouldn't have happened. After all, he has made Contra aid one of the major issues of his second term.

Can you imagine anyone on the White House staff taking such heroic measures to help the Contras — without telling the president?

I can't.

It is inconceiveable that anyone in the National Security Council would be dumb enough to pull such a stunt without the president's knowledge and approval. That simply is not the way this government operates.

Of course, committees are being organized and panels impaneled to dig out the truth. The president has promised complete cooperation on the part of the executive office. But given his track record for keeping his constituents in the dark, Reagan's credibility is on the line as never before.

Somewhere along the line, Reagan appears to have come to the conclusion that the federal government is his own private fiefdom, to be administered as he sees fit without reference to the Congress or the people who elected him.

The Iranian-Nicaraguan arms imbroglio is far more damaging to America's prestige abroad than the most calamitous events of the Watergate era. Watergate essentially was a domestic political ruckus, in which President Nixon was caught trying to conceal the truth. The ugly mess Reagan is caught up in not only involves contempt of Congress but also unwarranted intervention in the Iran-Iraq war, a careless disregard for the lives of Nicaraguan citizens, and the theft of tax dollars, yours and mine, from the U.S. Treasury.

I hope Reagan can come up with a satisfactory explanation for what has taken place. But at this point I cannot even imagine what it might be.

Letters to the editor:

Is our child justice system really protecting the innocent

Dear Editor:

I have something to tell every parent that I think they should and would like to know.

On November 19, 1985, I took my three children to a babysitter so I could further my education in college in Respiratory Therapy. After entrusting the care of my three children to the babysitter I returned only to find that one of my 15-month-old twins had been injured. Upon questioning my babysitter, I learned to my dismay she had left my children with her husband while she ran errands in town.

When I questioned her about the injury, consisting of a bruise covering almost one whole side of his face with the bruise running to the back of his ear and a little under his neck, and also a swollen nose and a black eye, it was said he had fallen on a toy truck.

Concerned over the severe bruise I immediately took my son to the doctor, worried about the possibility of a concussion for he also had a bump on his forehead, and with the bruise on the side of his head behind his ear. The doctor checked my son and in his report suggested the babysitter be questioned for abuse.

At this point I called the Department of Social Services to report suspected abuse. After not receiving any contact back for approximately five days I took my son to the DSS office at which time a DSS worker said, "Oh my God we had no idea it was this bad." They proceeded to take seven polaroid pictures of which they kept five and gave me two because they were unclear. At that time I was told of an investigation that would be started and that the police would be brought in to help. So upon leaving there I felt, thank God something will be done and in time some justice.

After one year of no official contact except for the numerous phone calls and personal visits I made and constant excuses from the officials from all offices involved, I am concerned that nothing is going to be done, and that's not only too bad for my son but for every child in the care of others.

The incident happened and was reported to DSS on Nov. 19, 1985.

On Nov. 25, DSS reported to the East Jordan Chief of Police at which time the chief of police questioned the babysitter and asked him to take a polygraph on Dec. 13, 1985. When it came time to take the test, he claimed he had other business. Therefore it was rescheduled for the early part of the year, and again he had other business. Then the test was rescheduled again and this time he flatly refused.

The chief of police filed a report with the prosecutor. When the prosecutor was questioned about the report in February, they had no record of the report having been filed. So now we wait for another report to be filed and a judgement from the prosecutor as to whether he will or won't prosecute.

In the course of waiting I called all the officials trying to understand why nothing was being done only to find that DSS had lost the pictures of my son. They told me that it was no big deal because they saw the bruise. On the other hand, the prosecutor said is is important evidence.

Then I find that after being requested to sign a doctor's release for the medical report that no one had bothered to send for it. The prosecutor says he sent many letters of request to the chief of police for the report but the police deny that. The prosecutor also says that the case was handled very poorly, but the other officials say they have done everything he wants.

So whose fault is it that nothing is being done? DSS for losing the pictures, or the East Jordan chief of police for never getting a doctor's report as he was supposedly requested so many times.

I would like to ask some basic questions and hopefully to get some sound answers.

Why a babysitter entrusted with the care of our precious children can be allowed to abuse them?

Why when given all evidence asked for by the prosecutor, won't he prosecute, also why after giving everything he asks, there's always another excuse as to why he can't or won't?

Is our prosecutor so worried about his conviction rate for the next election that he won't even try?

Who is our justice system protecting, the innocent? I'm not so sure.

No one — least of all the president — is above the law

Dear Editor:

One can understand why Ronald Reagan seems to be perplexed by the storm of disapproval swirling around the White House over his weapons-for-hostages exchange. And one can have a bit of sympathy for the captain of the ship of state who has had clear sailing for six years but is now seeing some of his yes-men all but jump ship.

After all, it is not the first time that this president has been involved in secret deals or secret military forays. But always before when his Irish eyes were smiling, he was able to brush off criticism by an appeal to patriotism and a witty one-liner. Why won't his blarney work now?

After all, he was applauded in most quarters by a secretly planned and executed invasion of the small, poverty stricken island of Grenada with its population of about 100,000 - an invasion by which he managed to make it appear that Uncle Sam was standing tall again.

After all, he was not called on the carpet by Congress, whose prerogative it is to declare war, when the CIA under his orders, secretly mined the harbors of another poor country, Nicaragua, population roughly a third of the state of Michigan - surely a hostile act.

After all, he was not chastised for secretly sending bombers over another small country, Libya, in an apparent attempt to "get" Muammar el-Qaddafi who is surely less of a threat than the Ayatollah and his Mullahs whom the President himself has dubbed "Murder, Incorporated."

After all, he got scarcely a slap on the presidential wrist when he secretly circumvented the Congressional embargo on arms shipments to the contras (some of whom are now being trained in the USA at secret locations, according to reports).

And after all, he is not the first president to deceive the American people. Richard Nixon was conducting a secret war in Cambodia for months before it became known to his own constituents. Lyndon Johnson, while making secret plans to send troops to bolster the faltering S. Vietnamese army was campaigning across the country solemnly declaring, "We are not about to send American boys nine or ten thousand miles to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves."

Yet now when he, the most popular president of the century, was merely trying to get the release of some hostages - surely an honorable goal - he is being pilloried by the media and, in effect, being called a liar by many of the voters who gave him two landslide victories at the polls.

Small wonder that Ronald Reagan is sorely perplexed by the uproar over his swap of weapons for hostages. But we, the people, must bear some of the responsibility for what has been done. Had our chief executive not been allowed to get away repeatedly with circumventing the law, both national and international, he would not now be standing in the dock trying to explain the unexplainable.

Unless the firestorm can somehow be controlled and unless the damage to the president's credibility can somehow be repaired, Ronald Reagan may fear what may be described as an Aya Tollgate down the road. Recalling Richard Nixon's fall from power, he may be tempted to try to deflect attention from the Iranian fiasco by staging another Grenada, this time in Nicaragua which has long been in his gun sights. In 1983 when criticism was mounting over the Marine barracks disaster, costing the lives of 260 of our boys, the invasion of Grenada took the Marines off the front pages.

Granted, such a scenario is far-fetched, but leaders who have enjoyed immense popularity are usually loathe to relinquish it. Fortunately, our Constitution has a built-in system of checks and balances which if properly observed, preclude the abuse of office. Fortunately we have a free press and at least a few fearless columnists like Mary McGrory who speak truth to power. And fortunately, we now have a congress which seems inclined to keep a tight rein on the Executive. But most important the American people now seem to be alerted to what is fundamental to democracy which is that no matter how popular personally, no one - least of the president - is above the law.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Lutz

Wojun - Lutz

Maria Wojan and Jeffrey Lutz were married Oct. 4 at St. Marys Church in Charlevoix. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Casimir J. Zawacki before 200 wedding guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Walter J. Wojan of Charlevoix and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lutz of Charlevoix.

The altar was decorated with baskets of burgundy, white and royal blue mums and the pews were marked with royal blue and silver bows. Cathy and Marcy Wojan, nieces of the bride, handed out wedding program before the ceremony.

Approaching the altar on the arm of her brother, Kenneth R. Wojan, the bride wore an embroidered organza gown with beaded silk venise lace; leg-o-mutton sleeves and a basque waistline. Her chapel length train was trimmed with cascading ruffles and her veil was attached to a wreath of silk flowers and pearls with a pouf of illusion and a ribbon bow. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Wedding music was played by the organist, Jeannie Lignell and soloist, Phyllis Pidek.

Connie Cunningham, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Kim Videau, sister of the bride and Heather White, niece of the bride. They wore matching royal blue taffeta gowns with matching lace gloves and carried bouquets of royal blue mums, stephanotis, baby's breath, burgundy mums and mauve Kalanchoe. They wore mums and stephanotis in their hair.

Kim Cunningham and Jennifer Wojan, nieces of the bride, were flowers girls and wore royal blue flowered dresses and carried baskets of royal blue and burgundy mums.

Leon Purvis was best man and groomsmen were Terry Weber and Ryan White, nephew of the bride. Ushers were Mitchell Cunningham, brother-in-law of the bride and Dennis Wojan, brother of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at the American Legion Hall, given by the parents of the bride and groom and hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jan White, sister and brother-in-law of the bride and Janet Karlskin, sister of the bride. Char Cunningham, niece of the bride, attended the guest book.

The newlyweds traveled to the Upper Peninsula and Minnesota for their honeymoon and now reside in Charlevoix. The groom is a professional taxidermist and owner of a studio in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Louiselle

Smith - Louiselle

Susan Smith and Richard Louiselle were married Oct. 11 at their home in Charlevoix. Judge Harvey Varnum performed the ceremony before an autumn setting of pumpkins, Indian corn and corn shocks.

The bride is the daughter of John W. Smith and Elaine Smith of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Niley Louiselle of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an antique ivory tea length organdy gown with a high neckline trimmed with lace and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of white tiger lilies, pink roses, alstroemeria and spring rye fern.

Danya Drost attended the bride as matron of honor and wore a burgundy tea length dotted swiss dress with a lace yoke and overlay. She carried a bouquet to match the bride's bouquet. The bridal flowers were arranged by the bride.

Kyle Louiselle, son of the groom, was ringbearer.

Tom Louiselle, cousin of the groom, was best man.

A reception, given by the bride and groom, was held at the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club, assisted by family and friends.

The newlyweds traveled to Shipshewana, Ind. for their honeymoon and are now residing in Charlevoix. The bride owns and operates Country Blossom in Charlevoix and the groom is self-employed. (Photo courtesy Victor Ruggles)

Home heating assistance available to families

Home heating assistance is available to income eligible households who are experiencing extremely high home heating costs in relation to their income. Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA) is currently operating the Targeted Fuel Assistance (TFA) Program, one component of Michigan's 1987 Home Energy Assistance Program administered at the state level by the Department of Social Services and Department of Labor Bureau of Community Services.

TFA will provide a one-time only fuel assistance benefit up to $200 per eligible household. NMHSA has been allocated a total of $105,000 to be spread across the 10-county service region which includes Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Missaukee, Roscommon and Wexford Counties.

Eligibility for this assistance is determined in part by the total annual gross income, before taxes and other deductions, and the number of people residing in that household. For a household of one, the gross total income must be less than $6,700 per year. For each additional household member, add $2,350 per year. The maximum gross income for a household of four, for example would be $13,750.

Also factored in is the annual cost of all fuels used for heating the home (minus the Department of Treasury's Home Heating Credit or Department of Social Services Special Heating Allowance) must exceed 12 percent of the total gross annual income. Electric costs can be included only if electric heat is used.

Because the eligibility calculations are difficult and somewhat confusing it is recommended that those who want to apply for the program contact NMHSA at 347-9070 or 1-800-632-7334 to help determine whether or not they qualify. Those who do qualify for Targeted Fuel Assistance must be able to provide proof of income and documentation of fuel costs.

Basketball squad returns one starter as new season begins

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder basketball team will open its 1986-87 court season at home on Friday when the East Jordan Red Devils come to town.

The 13 candidates for this year's squad have been practicing regularly in preparation for the opener, Coach Dave Smith said.

Of the 13 players, all juniors and seniors, there is only one starter from last season, senior guard, Jim Ciuk. Other seniors are Jim Gibbs, 6-0 forward, Joe Miller, 6- center and Rick Quinn, 6-0 forward who saw limited duty last season.

The other candidates are up from JV ranks. They are Scott DeYoung, 6-3 forward or center; Dan Drury 6-2 forward or guard; Roger Smith 6-0 forward; Mark LaBlanc, 5-10, Owen Phillips, 6-0 and Marty Joy, 5-7, all potential guards; Chad DeVries, 6-3 and Eric Voorheis, 6-2, candidates for center; and Roger McBride, a 6-3 transfer with no court experience, a possible forward.

"They look good. They're a little young and inexperienced," Coach Smith said of his team. At this point he has not named his starting lineup.

Smith said the team had a good summer and played in five tournaments resulting in 19 or 20 games. "There was a lot of competition in the tournaments which was a good experience for the players," he added.

Smith added that he has a lot of good shoosters. The rebounding looks good, he said, especially by Miller, Quinn and DeYoung and the team can run. "If we can just put it all together we should do well," Smith concluded.

The Rayders last year had a 10-4 record in Michigan-Huron Shores league play, won a District Class C title and had a 17-7 overall record for the season.

The renovation of Kipke Field and the athletic complex at the Charlevoix High School included a new scoreboard, courtesy of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Following the installation of the first coat of asphalt on the new eight-lane track, late in October, the renovation program was brought to a close for 1986. The top coat of rubberized asphalt, completion of sites for field events, installation of a fence around the outer perimeter of the track and the landscaping of the area remain to be completed in the spring.

Wrestlers bring back lettermen, look for improved performance

This year's team looks promising with eight returning lettermen, Coach Greg Bryan said of the Charlevoix High School wrestling team which is preparing for its opening meet at St. Ignace with Onaway on Thursday.

"Though this is a young team with only two seniors including heavyweight Bill Marquardt, the only four-year man on the team, we have a very strong sophomore-junior group who will be vastly improved after last year's experience," Bryan said. "The nucleus of the team will include Jason Whitley (138), a sophomore, and Derek Dutcher (185) a junior, leading the way. The return of Toby Young from Tennessee will be a great help in the 98-pound weight class. He was undefeated as a middle school wrestler and was 24-6 last year in Tennessee. With Marquardt at the heavyweight spot, we should be strong at both ends of the weight classes," Bryan said.

The only empty weight class at this time is the 126-pound class and Bryan is hopeful that will be filled. In that event, the team would have all 13 classes filled.

First year wrestlers Brian Livingston (112), a freshman, and Scott Mitcheltree (155), a senior, look promising. Shaan Bier (132), a senior, Jamie Montieth (145), a sophomore, and Jim Tilton (185), a junior, should improve steadily and perhaps surprise some people before the season is over, Bryan commented.

"I don't want to get my hopes too high, but this looks to be the best team I've had since coaching here in ability and especially in attitude," Bryan said. "If everyone stays healthy it might turn out to be a good year."

Team members include: Freshman: Tony Mervyn (105), Livingston (112), Tom Jarris (124), Jim Marquardt, (185).

Sophomores: Scott Novotny (112), Montieth (145), Whitley (138) and Robin Mervyn (167).

Juniors: Jim Tilton (185), Derek Dutcher (185), Steve Hopkins (138), Tom Alicia (167), and Toby Young (98).

Seniors: Marquardt (hvy wt), Shaan Bier (132), Steve Mellios (155), and Scott Mitcheltree.

Nanny's takes overtime win; Depot, Pepsi also victorious

Another overtime game highlighted action in the Charlevoix Independent A League Monday as Nanny's edged Buday's NCE 58-57. In other games, the Depot of Boyne City defeated Kit Carson 74-57 and Pepsi of Petoskey dumped Dr. Dave's Green Grinders 74-63.

On the overtime game, Nanny's tied the contest 28-all at halftime after trailing 12-10 at the quarter. Buday's came back as the second half got underway to take over 49-42 going into the final period when Nanny's came through with 20 points to Buday's 13 to tie the score 52-all at the buzzer. In the overtime Nanny's outscored their opponent 6-5 for the one point win.

Tom Burley had 22 points, Mike Dobzick 13, Tom Steffen 11 and Ken Kruzel 10 for Nanny's. Randy Holecheck had 20 points and Tex Drenth 15 for Budays.

The Depot trailed Kit Carson 13-12 before taking over 34-22 at the half and 57-35 going into the final period. Carson outscored the Depot 22-17 but too late to stop the Depot attack.

Tom Beyer and Dean Hicks had 16 points each and Tony Williams 12 for the Depot. Butch Klooster and Vince Left had 10 points each for Carson.

Kim Thomson and Mark Long had 21 points each as Pepsi of Petoskey led 18-13, 27-24 and 51-44 over Dr. Dave's Green Grinders.

Dick Swenor had 20 points, Mike Loper 13 and Dan McKenzie and Bernie Ward 10 points each for the Grinders.

Paul Lindberg, Inc., will meet Marsh Construction and First State Bank and Dairy Queen will play Wednesday in the B League; Kit Carson Lumber and Nanny's, Depot of Boyne City and Pepsi of Petoskey and Buday's NCE and Dr. Dave's Grinders will play Thursday, Dec. 4. On Dec. 8 Rich's Topside will meet Dairy Queen and Lindberg and First State Bank on Dec. 8.

Fairport Marine project approved

Walt Hufford, chairman of the planning commission, told council his group liked the plan. "Its really enhances the view from Belvedere Avenue," Hufford said, "and we like the underground garages. From that point of view it's a neat plan."

Hufford said the planning commission had not seen any evidence of how the project would adversely affect anyone's view. The planning commission, he added, would like to see less parking and more landscaping.

Hufford questioned whether the council could put any restrictions on future building on the property. "Any restrictions you (council) put on, another council can take off."

City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese told council that McTaggart had told him he might make a legal challenge to the three-story variance granted by the Zoning Board of Appeals. VanTreese said any legal challenge would come through Circuit Court.

"Unless there is a showing of hardship of some kind," McTaggart said, "I don't think the Zoning Board of Appeals has the authority to grant the variance."

Councilman Robert Timms complimented the project's parking. "It's nice to see enough parking rather than too little," he said.

Councilman Norm Probert called the plan "very well designed" but asked that council add a provision for a sidewalk to be built on the property along Belvedere Avenue. "We are a walking town. I cannot see the idea of a development being put in without the ensideration of the public walking up and down the street," he said.

Council approved the condition of the sidewalk.

Councilwoman Shirley Roloff called the site plan one of the best she had seen since serving on council. She said it was the only one that improved the public's view of the lake.

As to the blocking of the view of LeHavre residents, Roloff commented, "When you buy a piece of property you don't buy the view."

"I am deeply encouraged and hopeful about the Charlevoix Community Center becoming a reality," Rev. Bruce Hamilton, one of the organizers of the effort, said, after hearing of the $10,000 donation.

Rev. David Yingling, another organizer of the group, said the money from the Rainbow Shoppe will be kept in a separate account and can be used for anything from hiring personnel to building a facility to establishing programs.

The next meeting of the community center organizing group will be Saturday Dec. 13 at 3 p.m. in the basement of Village Inn Pizza. The group will hear from a person who has been involved with a successful community center in Bloomfield Hills, Mich. The public is encouraged to attend the meeting.

School Board considers trip

Dr. David Strawbridge attended the meeting to discuss a proposed community swimming pool. He said that at the present time it was in the "thinking process" but that the proposal does have support and the project might include a community center for both youth and senior citizens as well as everyone else in the community. It was suggested that the district levy special millage to build and support it such as the library is supported by a voted millage. The Rev. Bruce Hamilton was present to support the proposal.

In other action, the board approved an overnight trip to the state girls basketball tournament for the girls basketball team Dec. 11 and 12.

It was announced that the proposed band trip to Toronto in May had been cancelled due to lack of interest.

The next scheduled meeting of the board will be held Dec. 15.

Big Rock contributes to United Way

The employees of the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant pledged a total of $8,269 to the United Way during its current fundraising campaign. The employee contributions exceeded the plant's goal by 45 percent.

"Our employees have a strong commitment to their community and they have demonstrated it very well during this United Way campaign," said David P. Hoffman, plant superintendent.

The majority of the pledges - $5,790 - will be directed to the United Way of Charlevoix, the community in which most of the plant's 150 employees reside. The Emmet County campaign will receive $2,221. The remainder will be directed to other outlying counties.

"We make it easy to donate to the United Way because we offer payroll deduction," said Hoffman. "I think all employers should consider offering this option because it makes giving so easy and encourages larger contributions to this worthy cause."

Correction

The Charlevoix Courier recently published the names of students on the September-October honor roll at Charlevoix High School. In doing so, we inadevertently left out the names of the straight A students. Those listed as straight A students in the article were actually A- (3.67 to 3.99) students.

The straight A honor roll includes:

Seniors – Kristin Holmes and Kathy Washburn.

Sophomores – David Salmonson and Dylan Stewart.

Congratulations to all the honor roll students.

MichCon offers home heating assistance program

Over the past five years, disadvantaged Michigan residents have been able to turn to Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's "Heat Bank" program for assistance in heating their homes. Heat Bank earmarks funds donated by MichCon shareholders, and its customers, to help people who are not eligible for state or federal aid.

"We are proud of Heat Bank's track record," said MichCon Chairman and CEO, Alfred R. Glancy III, "and anticipate that many of our customers will want to donate an extra dollar or two in order to help those in need."

This year MichCon will allocate $1.2 million in heating credits toward the effort, with up to $250,000 additional funding available to match donations sent in by the public. Since the program's inception in 1982, MichCon has donated more than $6.5 million to Heat Bank.

In those areas served by MichCon outside of the metro-Detroit area, the American Red Cross extends a helping hand to those who need assistance with their heating bills. Over the past five years, MichCon and the Red Cross have worked together warming the homes of Michigan's disadvantaged.

Heat Bank is a one-time per year energy assistance program to prevent gas shutoff or to restore service. If an individual qualifies, a heating voucher is sent directly to the utility, ensuring heat for a customer's home. Senior citizens age 60 and over, handicapped, disabled, unemployed and self-supporting low-income customers may apply.

Heat Bank began disbursing funds Dec. 1, but only for those MichCon customers who have had their service shut off. Other customers may apply starting January 5, 1987.

For more information, northern Michigan residents should call or visit the nearest office of the American Red Cross, according to Russ Gilbert, Executive Director of the Red Cross. The telephone number is (616) 947-7286.

There are two methods MichCon customers can use to donate funds to Heat Bank. Pledge cards enclosed with the December bill allow customers to donate as little as $1 per month over a five-month period. One-time contributions to Heat Bank can be made by mailing a separate check payable to "Heat Bank," along with the regular gas bill payment.

When MichCon receives customer donations, the funds go directly to the Heat Bank fund in the donor's area along with the matching company funds. "Contributions are tax-deductible," said Glancy, "and they help disadvantaged people in the MichCon service area all over the state.

MichCon is a natural gas distribution company serving more than one million customers who live in more than 430 communities across the state of Michigan.

THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION

Charlevoix area worshippers celebrated Thanksgiving with a special service held at the Assembly of God church on M-66 the Wednesday prior to the holiday.

Ministers from seven area churches participated in the service along with the community children's choirs, the Congregational Church choir and the Assembly of God orchestra.

Rev. Duane Nelson delivered the sermon, "I have a thankful heart."

The combined Thanksgiving church service has been a Charlevoix tradition for many years.

The Charlevoix Community Children's Choirs, directed by Joanne Dannecker (shown) and Fran Tollas, performed at the church service.

Members of the Congregational Church Choir, directed by Ellen Addington, sang "Praise, My Soul, The God of Heaven."

Health Dept. urges immunizations

District Health Department No. 3 is warning parents of the continuing danger of childhood diseases and urging them to make sure that all of their children are fully immunized.

Brian Youngs, M.D., medieal director, is especially concerned at this time because of the recently reported measles (rubella) cases in Wayne County. Measles is an acute, highly communicable disease characterized by fever, cough, runny nose, red eyes, red spots in the mouth and a rash.

Measles can be a very serious illiness complicated by middle ear infections, pneumonia and inflammation of the brain. Measles, as well as polio, mumps, rubella, diptheria, pertussis, tetanus and Haemophilus Influenzae Type b Meningitis may be prevented by properly immunizing children. Due to the reported cases of measles in the state, it is important children age 15 months and older are protected against measles.

A vaccine can prevent measles in 95 out of 100 immunized individuals. Dr. Youngs feels that four groups of people have the greatest risk of developing measles including those who have not been immunized and were born after 1956; who received an immunization prior to 12 months of age; who received an immunization along with immune globulin; who were immunized with a killed vaccine, or a vaccine of unknown type, between 1963 and 1967.

The Health Department recommends a series of immunizations that should be started at two months of age. The schedule for active immunizations by four to six years of age includes a basic series of five doses of diptheria and tetanus toxoid and pertussis (DTP), and four doses of Trivalent oral polio vaccine (TOPV), and one dose each of Measles, rubella and mumps (MMR), and the Haemophilus Influenzae Type b vaccine. Parents-guardians should check each child's immunization record to insure they are properly immunized against all preventable childhood illnesses, especially measles.

For more information about immunizations, contact your physician or any office of District Health Department No. 3: Bellaire 533-8670; East Jordan 536-7371; Charlevoix 547-6523; Petoskey 347-6014.

Immunizations are offered in each county by the health department. In this area immunizations are offered at: Bellaire, Health Department Office, County Building, 1st Thursday, 9-11 a.m.; Charlevoix, County Building Annex, 1st Monday, 9:30-11:30 a.m.; Boyne City, Presbyterian Chureh Basement, South Park Street, 1st Tuesday, 9:30-11:30 a.m. and East Jordan, East Jordan Family Health Center, 601 Bridge, 4th Tuesday, 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Garden Club to install officers

Mrs. David Fowler, a member of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club for 25 years, will be installed as president of the club at the annual meeting to be held at the Fowler home at noon on Tuesday, Dec. 9.

Other officers to be installed will be Mrs. James Ledahl and Mrs. Raymond Slone, first and second vice presidents, respectively; Mrs. John Hall, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul Santek, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Franklin Curtis, treasurer.

A potluck luncheon at noon will precede the business meeting. Members are asked to bring only a dish to share with at least six at the potiuck luncheon. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Bruce MacArthur and Mrs. Donald Colse. Committee chairmen will presént annual reports at the business meeting.

Mrs. Julia Leedy, the installing officer, based the installation eeremony on the Fifteenth Century English carol, The Holly and the Ivy.

Of the forthcoming installation of Mrs. Fowler as president, Mrs. Leedy said that as an honorary member Mrs. Fowler's dutles should theoretieally lighten so she could enjoy a respite. However, Mrs. Fowler will again serve as president. Endowed with a number of new members, the club has a new surge of enthusiasm on its board, Mrs. Leedy said. At this time no one felt qualified to assume the presidency, she added. A year of work with Mrs. Fowler's seasoned experience and guidance will prepare the way for future potential leaders.

German dinner featured for Crooked Tree

A traditional German dinner, featuring roast goose, dumplings, and apple strudel will accompany a tasting of five German wines on Tuesday, Dec. 9, at the Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

A benefit for the Crooked Tree Arts Counell, the dinner and wine tasting follow a lecture on German Expressionists sculpture and tour of the Detroit Institute of Arts sculpture exhibit at the McCune Arts Center.

Maryanne Wilkinson, curator of the DIA German Expressionist Sculpture traveling exhibition, begins the evening at 6 p.m. with a lecture and guided look through the exhibit in the arts center. Dinner and wine tasting follow at the Perry Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

Wine consultant Linda J. Vigneau studied in Germany during 1965 to become knowledgeable about the wines produced in that eountry. Working with East Jordan sculptor Walter Midener, a native of Liegnitz, German, Vigneau and Perry Hotel Chef Steve Pellogram have planned a menu that includes several dishes commonly served during the holidays. A variety of wines have been chosen to complement the appetizers, entree and dessert.

Dinner is $20 per person, not including tip and gratuity. Reservations must be paid in advance by Thursday, Dec. 4. There is no charge for the lecture. For information, call 347-4337.

Home health care a tradition in northern Michigan

November 30 through December 6 is National Home Health Week. This year's theme for Home Health Week is "Home Health Care: An American Tradition, We're Bringing Healthcare Back Home Where It Belongs."

In the District Health Department No. 3 area (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties) home health care has been a tradition and priority since 1967. This makes the District Health Department the agency that has provided home health care for the longest period of time in northern Michigan.

Patients are being discharged from hospitals earlier than ever before, due to Medicare guidelines. This results in patients being sent home with more overall needs as well as more intensive health care requirements. Keeping up with this trend, District No. 3's nurses are continually updating their knowledge so as to deliver quality health care to all patients regardless of the intensity of their needs.

District Health Department No. 3's Home Health Program works closely with the patient's physician who outlines the specific program of eare.

Referrals for home care are made by physicians, hospitals, neighbors, family or the patient. The home care nurse makes the initial home visit and identifies the person's health care needs and develops a plan with the physician and patient to provide health care in the home.

Often referrals are made for physical therapy, speech and occupational therapy. Home health aides, who provide personal care, work under the direction of the registered nurse. These is also a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week on call service to meet the various needs of the patient.

Home care is paid for by a variety of sources which include Medicare, Medicaid, Crippled Children and private insurance. For those without insurance, or where insurance does not cover home care, the Department's home care program is often able to develop a plan so the care a person needs can be provided.

Senior meal costs outrun donations

by PEG OHLE

When the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging decided it had to stop serving Monday meals for the month of September, it did so as a last resort to keep expenses from running away from income.

At the end of August, the status report showed the Nutrition Program was already $3,066 "in the hole", with no more Federal money due and only collections from meals served as a source of income. Since meal collections fall far short of meal costs, every meal served would add to the deficit.

The Commission on Aging ended its fiscal year on September 30 with a Nutritional Program deficit of $4,545, which would have been even greater if the Monday meals had been served. The Commission has since received a supplemental grant of $4,159 from Northwest Michigan Senior Resources in Traverse City and collected $538.57 during its tag day, so it is starting another year with balanced books.

However, if collections for meals remain at their present level, the Nutrition Program will soon again be in the red. The Commission on Aging "suggests" that everyone receiving home-delivered meals or eating meals at a Senior Center contribute at least $1 toward the cost of the meal. However, the Commission cannot require that this amount be paid, and collections have been far below the suggested $1.

During fiscal 1985-1986, the average contribution for home-delivered meals was 47 cents, and for congregate meals, 95 cents, for an average meal contribution of 74 cents. The Commission on Aging served 44,697 meals during the year at a cost of $98,353.90, or slightly more than $2.21 a meal. This left a $1.47 per meal deficit, which was more than the federal grant of $52,534 could cover.

No evidence of need is required of those participating in the Nutritional Meal program. The meals are available to everyone over 60 regardless of income. They are served noonday Monday through Friday at meal sites in Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City. This past year, 8,017 meals were served in Charlevoix, 21,552 meals were served in East Jordan, and 15,128 meals were served in Boyne City. The Charlevoix meal site in the VFW Hall was not opened until last winter. Before that, meals were served in the high school cafeteria to a minimum number of senior citizens.

The low contribution figure for home-delivered meals is of considerable concern to the Commission on Aging because those meals cost more to provide, and requests for home delivery of meals are increasing.

Art Saworski, director of the Commission on Aging, notes that these meals are delivered to persons who are ill or who are handicapped in some other way and cannot get to the regular meal site. (It may be only that they cannot afford the bus fare to get there).

New candidates for home-meal delivery are now being screened by a social worker to determine their eligibility, but Saworski believes that many who have been receiving home-delivered meals for some time may not really be eligible for them.

"For instance, if an older person is living with another person who does not want to cook a meal, that older person can get one delivered", Saworski says.

With the increasing number of home-delivered meals and the full schedule of servings in the three cities, a larger percentage of senior citizens are taking advantage of the Nutritional Meal program, and many of them are regular five-days-a-week customers.

A report from Northwest Senior Resources, a 10-county agency of which the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is a member, reports that last year, 894 separate senior citizens ate meals at the Charlevoix County meal sites, and another 125 separate senior citizens had meals delivered to them at home. This total of 1,019 meal program participants represents almost 30 percent of the 3,419 over-60 senior citizens in Charlevoix County, as counted by 1980 census-takers.

Federal funding for the Nutritional Meal program, which is authorized under the Older Americans Act, has not been increased for four years, despite the rising cost of food and food preparation, according to Saworski. In an attempt to provide meals for all who want them and to live within its budget, the Commission on Aging is considering various types of fund-raising activities, even bingo.

However, it will probably be some time before a fund-raising program is set up, Saworski believes.

Council rebuffs Northern Cable's expansion plan

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council angrily rejected a request from Northern Cable TV to expand its equipment at Mt. McSauba in order to provide new cable channels to Charlevoix subscribers.

Council members were particularly upset at Northern Cable's proposal to raise rates on its basic package by $2.95 effective May 1, 1987. The cable company said it would raise rates at that time regardless of whether it received authorization for the new equipment.

The television service, which has had a monopoly on cable TV in Charlevoix, requested more space to install two additional satellite dishes at the Mt. McSauba recreation area and to expand the electronics building to house equipment for the new programming. They also sought an extension to the lease for the land on which Northern Cable operates its current satellite dish and equipment building. The property is owned by the City of Charlevoix.

State's Ferry Beach appraisal $100,000 below city's estimate

by DOUG TRUAX

An Department of Natural Resources appraisal of the Ferry Avenue beach property acquired by the City of Charlevoix is some $100,000 lower than the city's own appraisal.

As a result the city may come up short in funding the property for which it paid $264,000 including a purchase price of $200,000 plus $15,000 in real estate commissions to Ski and Shore and another $49,000 in holding costs.

The DNR appraised the property as part of processing the city's application for a grant from the Michigan Land Trust Fund. The city expected the trust fund to pick up 50 percent of the costs of the land, or $132,000. The lower appraisal could mean the state will fund only some $110,000.

The city paid for its own appraisal of the land by Lloyd Kirby in March 1985. He estimated the value at $319,000.

Carl Harmon, review appraiser for the DNR, would not reveal the exact figure of his appraisal until it was received by the city but said it was "slightly above" to the $215,000 purchase price.

The DNR appraisal was to be discussed at city council Monday night, but the appraisal which was sent Thursday, Dec. 4, was lost in the mail. City Manager Michael Wiesner said he never received the document and declined to reveal the figure until he had it in writing.

Wiesner said he received the appraised value from the DNR over the phone last week and had discussed it with council members.

He would not speculate on how the city might make up the difference if the DNR appraisal was not sufficient to fund 50 percent of the project.

Harmon said the difference between his appraisal and that done for the city could well be the time of year. The city's appraisal was done in March when the property was covered with snow. Harmon did his in early summer.

"When I originally looked at the property I noticed that much of it appeared to be wet," Harmon said. He asked for an assessment of it by the DNR Land Resource Program. They determined, based on soil types and vegetation, that the land was 74 percent wetland.

That conclusion, Harmon said, "reduced the amount of useful area, but it doesn't mean that it is useless.

"I don't think there is any way the full amount of the property can be used," he said.

Harmon said local concern about the appraisal had been felt in Lansing. "We've heard from local people who have been concerned," he said. One report given to him was that the property was the site of an old mill and contained a great deal of sawdust. Borings revealed some organic material, he said.

Downtown ice rink planned

by DOUG TRUAX

Ice skaters will soon be gliding across two rinks in East Park. The picturesque site, located between Round Lake and the shops on Bridge Street, was approved by city council Monday after Ike Boss, city recreation director, presented the plan.

The city ice rink has been located north of the high school for the past eight years. The new site is expected to attract more skaters and to draw business to the downtown area. Cost of locating the rinks in East Park could run $1,650 for a water line and snow fencing to protect children from the open water on Round Lake.

The city, following a suggestion by councilman-elect William Haggard, will also investigate using pumps to take water from Round Lake to flood the rinks.

The warming shanty and porta-potties will be located on Clinton Street, north of the park.

The ice rink on the upper terrace of the park will be 55 by 145 feet. The lower rink will be 50 by 175 feet. The total area is 16,725 square feet, considerably less than the 45,000 square feet used at the high school rink.

Boss was enthusiastic about the project. "We're a positive town. We're moving on to bigger and better things. Let's give it a shot," he said.

City Manager Michael Wiesner agreed. "I'm all for this project. I think that ultimately it could attract people to Charlevoix."

Boss said the rink could be in operation for the schools' Christmas holiday break. Preparing the base for the rink would require volunteers with snow blowers and shovels, he added. A snow-making machine from the Mt. McSauba ski hill would be used to lay down the first layer of ice. The job would be finished with water hoses.

Citizens question county landfill safety

by PEG OHLE

When a delegation of Eveline Township residents appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its last meeting to complain about "foreign" waste being deposited in the Charlevoix Garbage Service landfill, the long-ranging battle between township and landfill operators was again put in the county's lap.

For several years, Eveline Township has charged that the landfill, which is located within its boundaries, has been a source of ground water and air pollution. The charges eventually resulted in a lawsuit filed by the township against the landfill in late 1984. That lawsuit was settled out of court in April, 1985, when the litigants reached an out-of-court settlement with several stipulations covering landfill operations and ongoing testing.

In the past three years, township residents have voiced other concerns about the landfill operation, based largely on the fact that waste matters from a large geographical area of Michigan are being hauled to the Charlevoix landfill, including oil-soaked materials and other questionable refuse.

This problem was recognized by the county over a year ago, when the County Planning Commission passed a resolution asking that "Charlevoix County discourage and take legal action to prevent waste from entering Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill that is generated outside of its present service area". Such a restriction would increase the life span of the landfill by several years, the Planning Commission stated. When this resolution was made public, Dawson Way, owner of the landfill, called it "ridiculous" and stated his landfill is good for "20 to 25 years". Way also threatened to take legal action if the county tried to enforce the Planning Commission's resolution.

The county is concerned with the life span of the Charlevoix landfill because it is one of only two licensed landfills in northern Michigan (the other is in Leelanau County), and serves as the main disposal site for the county's solid waste as outlined in the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, approved by the State Department of Natural Resources in 1983. (The DNR is the overseer of solid waste management in the state).

When the County Planning Commission's resolution was presented to the County Board of Commissioners, it was read and referred to the county's committee of the whole. It has not been on the agenda since.

Eveline Township residents who recently appeared before the County Board asked why the Board was not enforcing its Solid Waste Management Plan. The plan contains three sentences referring to the Charlevoix Landfill and the area it serves: "The Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill takes waste from haulers servicing the City of School passes French Club trip decision to parents

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education decided Monday night following a meeting with parents of French Club members, to leave the responsibility for the proposed trip to France with the parents.

The Board adopted a resolution that said it did not consider the proposed trip a school sponsored activity. The resolution also stated that Superintendent Gordon VanWieren will send a letter to each parent indicating that the board assumes the parents will exercise their independent judgment as to whether supervision and chaperoning are proper and adequate for the trip.

The resolution was approved by a 5-0 vote with two members absent. Some 50 parents were present for the special board meeting. Yvonne Wendt, French teacher, said the trip had been planned to tour many points of interest outside the metropolitan area with only two days in Paris. In the past the major part of the trip was confined to the city and its environs.

VanWieren advised that he had consulted with the school's attorneys who said that while the trip had its educational value, the board members and the school district could be held responsible for the students. They recommended that the board divorce itself from the trip.

Reservations for the trip must be made by Monday, Dec. 15 for the trip scheduled during the spring break March 25 to April 2.

After the Board of Education meeting, parents remained for a meeting with Mrs. Wendt to further discuss the issue.

Twenty-eight students have indicated they plan to make the trip.

Mrs. Wendt and her husband, Richard, have chaperoned numerous trips for French students to Quebec and, for the past two years, to France.

Mrs. Wendt said later in the evening that parents, who had been in on the planning of the trip, decided to go ahead with the plans. She will however, make an effort to change the dates, possibly to March 30 through April 7, so the trip would not interfere with the state basketball finals. Otherwise, she said, all signals are go.

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS

Probably the deed to your property is filed away, all but forgotten. Probably you've never checked it since the day it served to pass title from the previous owner to you. Perhaps you didn't even check it then. There may have been no urgent reason to. Nevertheless, an apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper.

For instance, suppose the deed states the name of the seller, but doesn't contain his signature? Suppose the seller was under 21? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's an error in the way the deed describes the property?

Any of these defects — as well as many others — could make your deed invalid. But defective deeds are the exception, not the rule, so don't be frightened. Just be cautious. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional and a knowledgeable real estate lawyer.

Witthoeft Electric wins Charlevoix lighting contest

A display of 6,000 flashing lights strung with two miles of wire across a 10-acre parcel in Charlevoix Township that houses Charlevoix Electrical Service has earned the top prize in the annual Chamber of Commerce window decorating contest.

Owned by Ivan and Lucy Witthoeft, the light display best met the criteria of the contest — best display of merchandise and exterior lighting, according to ratings by judges Shiela McLelland, of McLelland's Home Furnishings, Doug Perrault of Greenleaf Country Gardens and Paula Holmes-Greeley, of the News-Review.

The Witthoefts, whose home and business is located on Old Orchard Road off of Waller Road, will hold the chamber's traveling trophy for a year, according to Claudia Kenifeck, chamber executive director.

Interested viewers can pick up Waller Road on U.S. 31 about three miles north of Charlevoix near the Church of the Nazarene, or can take Mercer Boulevard east from U.S. 31 to Waller Road. Old Orchard Road ends at Waller Road by the Charlevoix Township hall and park.

Three interested parties excluded from Fox lawsuit

by PEG OHLE

The lawsuit filed by Fox & Associates against Hayes Township will apparently proceed without the intervention of three parties who earlier had expressed an interest in the case.

The Michigan Court of Appeals recently denied a request by the Walloon Lake Association to file a brief on behalf of Hayes Township. Earlier, the Michigan Boating Industries Association had asked for and was denied permission to enter the suit. Attorney General Frank Kelley, who had received the court's permission to file a brief, did not do so, but did file an opinion he rendered in a similar case.

Other briefs in the case have been filed by Sally Ginn, a Hayes Township property owner, as well as Fox and Hayes Township.

The lawsuit, which is now in the Michigan Court of Appeals, will probably be heard early next year, according to a court spokesperson. It has been in the courts for almost two years, and concerns the right of Hayes Township, through its zoning ordinance, to regulate the number of boats which may be kept at moorings, slips, or docks on the waters and shoreline of Lake Charlevoix, and to limit the use of the waters and shoreline by non-riparians.

Specifically, the ordinance allows only one living unit with lake access and one boat slip for each 100 feet of frontage owned.

Fox owns 338 acres of land with 2,800 feet of shoreline in Hayes Township and proposed to build a condominium complex with 126 units having access to Lake Charlevoix. He was denied a zoning permit for the project because the project did not meet with requirements of the township zoning ordinance, an action which Fox claims made the project economically unfeasible and denied him his constitutional rights.

Fox filed suit in Charlevoix County Circuit Court in January, 1985. The case was later moved to Cheboygan County Circuit Court because of a conflict of interest on the part of Charlevoix Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas. In January, 1986, Judge Robert C. Livo of the Cheboygan court ruled the Hayes Township zoning ordinance constitutional, following which Fox & Associates appealed.

Attorneys in the case are Seberon Litzenburger of Petoskey and Thomas Pointner of Charlevoix, representing Fox, and William McTaggart of Boyne City and Peter Steketee of Grand Rapids, representing Hayes Township.

Santa rides fire engine Saturday

The wail of a siren will replace the jingle of sleigh bells on Saturday when Santa Claus arrives in Charlevoix via the firetruck to meet with youngsters of the are at the community Christmas tree in East Park.

There, Santa, with the assistance of Charlevoix volunteer firemen, will distribute boxes of candy and nuts to the children.

Santa is scheduled to arrive at 1 p.m. in East Park.

Immediately following, at 1:30 p.m., the Charlevoix County State Bank will take the youngsters on a make-believe trip to outer space with the movie, "The Trans Formers," featuring Leonard Nimoy at Cinema III.

In announcing the free movie, Gordon Wellman, bank president, said this was the bank's gift to parents who could drop the youngsters off at the movie so they could shop in Charlevoix.

Seniors hit the road for lunch

Senior citizens in the community are invited to attend the progressive luncheon planned by the Horizon Club on Friday, Dec. 19.

The luncheon will be served at the three Senior Centers in the county.

The transit bus will leave Charlevoix at 11 a.m. from the senior center at the VFW post home for the trip to Boyne City where hors d'oeuvres and drinks will be served before going on to East Jordan for the entree and main course. The travelers, including those from the Boyne City and East Jordan centers, will then return to Charlevoix for dessert and coffee. The cost of $3 will include the meal and transportation.

Charlevoix Floral gets new ownership

The purchase of Charlevoix Floral, located in the Oleson complex at 104 Antrim St. has been announced by the new owners, Dorothy and Bob Trost.

The couple purchased the business from Mary Novotny who has operated the shop for the past four years.

"We will continue to offer flowers for all occasions," the couple said. Lois William, floral designer for the past 7½ years will continue to assist patrons in planning and arranging flowers for all special events. Novotny will continue to assist the new owners for the present. Lori Trost, who has worked in the shop during the summer and during school recesses, will also be associated with the business.

The shop offers not only a wide range of fresh flowers but silk flower arrangements as well as a variety of containers.

"We are planning a special corner where brides, homemakers and others may sit down with our designer and discuss their floral needs," Mrs. Trost said. She added that they will strive to meet individual needs as these needs arise. "Just give us a little lead time and we can supply the majority of your requests."

With the Christmas holidays approaching, the shop is prepared to offer fresh flower and greens arrangements, all the usual holiday flowers such as poinsettias, Jerusalem cherry trees, pepper plants, peace lilies and gardenia plants in addition as cyclamen, Christmas tree plants, begonias and Christmas cacti as well as traditional plants available throughout the year.

They will also offer dish gardens, hanging plants and large decorator plants.

Fresh flowers will include several varieties of roses, carnations, mums, daisies, alstroemeria and fresh holly. Others may be special ordered.

"There are so many things available that we can't list them all. We invite you to visit the shop, get acquainted and discuss your floral needs with us. We promise you the best service possible, the freshest of flowers and the healthiest of plants. If you're not satisfied, tell us about it and we will remedy the situation. We're here to serve you," the Trosts said.

The shop will be open until 9 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 19, and every night of Christmas week except Christmas Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Trost are well known in the community where they have been residents for more than 19 years, having come to Charlevoix from Manitowoc, Wisc. Mrs. Trost has been employed as a waitress at various local restaurants. Mr. Trost is employed by a local industry.

Robert and Dorothy Trost, new owners of Charlevoix Floral, stand with their daughter Lori (kneeling right) and designer Lois Williams.

'Tis the season to be jolly

'Round Town

by EDITH GILBERT

'TIS THE SEASON to be jolly, and the first jolly Christmas party I attended this season was given by the Charlevoix Historical Society in their darling gingerbread building. Present were 35 peppy, active, old-timers who sang and danced to the tune of an upright player piano purchased from Eleanor Ratigan's personal collection.

Surrounded by so much nostalgic memorabilia, I was reminded of one of the great Charlevoix confrontations that occurred periodically between those two good friends, Eleanor Ratigan and Earl Young. It must have been in the 40s.

The Ratigan's rented one of Earl's houses on Park Avenue briefly. Impulsively, Eleanor decided her living room needed painting – quickly. No sooner said than done! After the Ratigan's moved out, Earl walked through the house and what did he see? Would you believe, Eleanor had painted the walls, around the cupboards, around the desk, around the clock and around all the pictures! Such a sight...

My lively reflections were interrupted by the sound of jingle bells and Santa Claus, himself, arrived. He handed out candy and nuts to the group, and when he stopped by me, he told me how much he enjoyed reading this column in the Courier. Now, I'll be, you didn't know our paper reached the North Pole, did you?

THE CHARLEVOIX YACHT CLUB is trying something new during this holiday season. Instead of the usual Commodore's Ball held at the Yacht Club, there will be a dinner dance this year at the Argonne Supper Club on Saturday, Dec. 13. The sit-down dinner will be served from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and then there will be dancing to some very special "light and bubble" effects until 1 a.m. provided by Sound Systems Three from Traverse City.

Tickets are $20 a person and the dinner will be a choice of N.Y. strip or a 10-piece shrimp dinner, with all the traditional Argonne goodies. Commodore John Coolman says that most people are dressing up.

If you think this event sounds like fun, you can pick up tickets at the Chamber of Commerce office. There are only 120 tickets available so you better make up your mind quickly.

AND FOR THOSE who really love to dance, remember the Holly Ball at the garlanded Perry Hotel on Thursday, Dec. 18. Lots of people have already made their reservations for a table. All six pieces of the Epsilon Jass Band will be making merry music. Tickets are $35 each. Cocktails at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8. Call the Crooked Tree Arts Council, 347-4337, if you'd like to join the fun.

LOOKING FOR INTERESTING things to do during the holidays? For free? The Detroit Institute of Art has sent us an outstanding exhibition of German Expressionist sculpture. We're very fortunate to have the traveling show at the McCune Community Arts Center during the month of December. The DIA's collection is the largest outside Germany and includes pieces by world-renowned sculptors such as Barlach, Kolbe, Lembruck and Marcks.

The art objects consist of small-scale sculptures in bronze, plaster, terra-cotta and porcelain. Many are of the human form in dancing poses; other are slender and ethereal.

You'll be interested to know that much of the German Expressionists works were destroyed during the 30s by Hitler, because he declared them degenerate and un-German. However, the movement, which developed around World War I and before World War II (1918-1933), meant to affirm the spiritual aspects of human life.

The artists wanted to improve the human condition through music, film, design and architecture, as well as through painting, sculpture and the graphic arts. There was an element of social commentary as well as emotional power to the work during this period.

If you've never visited an art exhibit before, you may be surprised and delighted. If you are a regular visitor, this little gem of a show is a must on your list.

I WAS INVITED by eight-year-old Shena Walker last week to tell Mrs. Raecke's third-grade class about my trip to China. Mrs. R. warned me that she thought 20 minutes would be the limit of this age groups attention span and I agreed. I was prepared to talk about the development of the silk industry, since I had brought a cocoon with me, and taken pictures to show the various steps of the silk-making process.

We polished off this show-and-tell in no time flat, and the entire grade had me on my toes for an hour answering a hundred searching questions.

All I can say is that Peter Jennings and Barbara Walters better look to their laurels. I can see a lot of future anchor people coming right out of Charlevoix.

Christmas lights

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Christmas trees must be a lot tougher today than when I was a kid.

Judy and I took a hike through the North Side Sunday night and were surprised to see so many lighted Christmas trees — indoors.

Now it's one thing to string colored lights on the jackpine in the front yard; it's quite another to set up a tree indoors almost three weeks before Christmas.

Our trees usually shed their needles so fast that there would be none left by Christmas morning.

Judy suspects some of the trees are artificial, and she is probably right. But some looked like the real McCoy.

I'll bet there will be a lot of sick looking trees out on the curb on Dec. 26.

When I was growing up, my folks never let us put up the tree until a day or two before Christmas. Before that we had to keep it outdoors in a bucket of water — or a block of ice — depending on the weather. The tree came down right after New Years and was burned — ceremoniously — on Epiphany, Jan. 6. We still follow the same regimen, but we don't burn the tree, since we have learned that conifers contribute to cresote buildup and chimney fires.

Instead, I cut off the branches and use them to decorate flower boxes on the front porch for the rest of the winter — a lingering reminder of the holidays.

SPEAKING OF Christmas lights, don't miss the Ivan Witthoefts' spectacular display on Old Orchard Road, just off Waller Road near the new Charlevoix Township hall.

The Christmas extravaganza is bigger and better than ever before, covering what appears to be acres of front yard.

The south shore of Round Lake also is aglow with a variety of Christmas lights.

SOME YEAR I'm going to get all of the storm windows up before the weather turns nasty.

This fall I got off to a good start, but then I hit a snag and put off hanging some of the more troublesome windows week after week after week.

Sunday I decided it was now or never. Of course, the ground was snow-covered and slippery, but out came the ladders, the scrub pail, the paper towels.

The porch roof posed a real dilemma, since it was almost impossible to stand on without falling down. There was just enough snow and ice to make it slick.

However, the worst is over. Only two windows remain, and they can be installed from the inside.

Next year I'm going to put up the storm windows in August — or know the reason why.

UNISYS? Believe it or not, that abomination is name of a new company resulting from the merger of two grand old American corporations — Burroughs and Sperry.

If you sat down and pondered for weeks to come up with a name unappealing to both the ear and the eye, you couldn't do much better than Unisys.

Unlike Burroughs and Sperry, both of which have solid, rough-hewn double "r's," Unisys is soft and sibilant — totally lacking in character.

How could two such strapping parents give birth to such a puling infant?

I suppose Unisys is a combination form of "United Systems," or some such. But it certainly doesn't command the attention of such other grand old American names as Mazda, Nikon, Yamaha, Honda, Kawasaki and Sony.

Didn't anyone think of "Sparrow?"

Letters to the editor:

Grassy area should not be dedicated to Robert Bridge

Dear Council Members,

I am writing to request that the grassy area north of the Burnside store not be dedicated in memory of my father, the late Robert Bridge.

My reasoning is that this open grassy area exists because the buildings, i.e., old Bonthron Plumbing, Fred Meyers Cigar Store and others, were torn down to make way for the temporary roadway and bridge during the construction of your present bridge.

The ruling back then was that once a building on the east side of downtown Bridge Street was torn down, burned down, etc., no subsequent structure could be built on the location where the former building stood. The Michigan State Highway Department was the responsible force behind the Beaver Island Boat Dock Park.

My father, then mayor, was the responsible force in the aquisition of the properties to form what is now commonly referred to as "East Park." If Council should agree with the above and still feels Robert Bridge should be honored, I would suggest this park would be more in line with this very thoughtful gesture by Mr. Bruce MacArthur and the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful organization.

United States must stop evil, demon-possessed system

Dear Editor:

The leftist liberals are attempting to make a mountain out of a molehill concerning the Iranian affair. The same crowd were largely responsible for the overthrow of the Shah and gave us the maddog Khomeini.

In fact it's been leftist liberal policies that have given the communists victory after victory over the last 40 years. Lenin died in 1924. Before he died, he formulated a plan for world communism. Summarized and paraphrased, Lenin's plan stated; "first we will take eastern Europe, then the masses of Asia, then we will encircle the United States, which will be the last bastian of capitalism. We will not have to attack. It will fall like an overripe fruit into our hands."

How has this been nearly accomplished by an evil, demon-possessed system that can't feed its own people and has failed so miserably in its economic policies? This system uses murder and torture to eliminate opposition. There is only one answer to why a system so evil and so unconcerned about the rights of human beings, can come so close to conquering country after country and that's because every country that has fallen to the communists, literally has a "Made in U.S.A." stamp on it.

The United States was the most powerful nation on earth after the second World War, and we could have stopped communist expansionism right there. It's mighty strange that the United States has failed to stop communism anywhere except Grenada. The leftist liberals in this country seem charmed by the Marxist-Leninist movements and seem dedicated to making it a success. It's about time America woke up and stopped this evil movement.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Seems as if there is new interest in getting the city and city council approval to provide a public ice-skating rink in East Park, just like the "good old days." Anyone interested in helping with this cause contact the Chamber.

All chamber members are encouraged to attend the annual Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce membership meeting Thursday, December 11, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on the porch at Nanny's.

With no formal business to attend to, this years' membership meeting will provide the perfect opportunity to express appreciation to the outgoing Board members, and to introduce the newly elected Board members. If a decision has been reached by then, the new Executive Director will also be announced.

Don't forget, if you wish to have your home judged for the Residential Lighting Display, call the Chamber with your name and address so the panel of judges can locate you.

Charlevoix's state-of-the-art firetruck will transport Santa Claus to East Park on Saturday, Dec. 13 at 1 p.m. to greet all the local children. Immediately afterwards at 1:30 p.m. Cinema III will show a children's matinee courtesy of Charlevoix County State Bank.

Be sure to support the local merchants as you prepare for the holidays. Only 15 more shopping days before Christmas.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

With the passing of Thanksgiving Day our attention turns toward the Christmas holiday season. City utility crews hang the seasonal decorations along Bridge Street, merchants decorate storefronts and mail out Christmas sale advertisements, school students impatiently anticipate the long holiday break, and church groups made up of both young and old prepare for special programs and services of celebration and worship.

In the midst of the tinsel, commercialism and frivolity that we've all helped add to the season as just so much "excess baggage", we look for something really real, lasting and meaningful in it all. One harbinger of our universal desire for that elusive meaning and reality at Christmas time is the increasingly prevalent reminder, "Keep Christ in Christmas." I am glad for, yet embarrassed by the need for, the potent new reminder, "Jesus is the reason for the season." I'm embarassed and ashamed that we could have so misplaced CHRIST at CHRISTmas!

It is a paradox that in America, a so-called "Christian" nation, Christ would become misplaced in a national holiday that exists purposely to honor His birth. Yet, the historical record so sadly relates that even at the time of His birth, "his own" ignored Him. "He was in the world, and though the world was made through Him, the world did not recognize Him. He came to that which was His own, but His own did not receive Him. Yet to all who receive Him, to those who believed in His name, He gave the right to become children of God..." John 1:10-12

Jesus is the reason for the season! Keep Christ in Christmas! If you have placed your faith in Him as Savior and Lord, you are "His own," His child! Honor Him on the day set aside in memory of His birth.

Rayders edged by Evart in regional finals

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team, playing in the Class C regional finals for the first time since 1983, lost to Evart 57-54 in a game that saw the Rayders come from behind to knot the score 50-50 with two minutes to go.

"We've had a good season. I'll take a 21-win season any day," Coach Henry Wagner said. He added that the girls played a good game. They had trailed throughout the game and were down as much as 13 points at one time but came back. "It was just that Evart was three points better than we were," he commented.

Evart went to the free-throw line to defeat the Rayders, taking advantage of the 18 personal fouls called on the Rayders to score 15 of 25 free throws to Charlevoix's two of five from the charity line. Evart had 10 personal fouls.

Charlevoix outscored their opponents 26-21 from the floor with Amy Pischner scoring 30 points. Cyndi Boss had 12 points.

Carrie Isanhart had 18, Terry Trowbridge 16 and Tammi Bruggema 13 for Evart.

Evart took a 13-8 quarter lead, increased it to 32-23 at halftime and held on 49-40 before the Rayders outscored them 10-3 with two minutes remaining. However, the Rayders lacked the punch to go ahead and dropped the game by three points.

Pischner's 30 points in the game gave her a career total of 908 points and assured her a-spot in the school record book as the school's second highest scorer behind Melinda Klooster who passed the 1,000 mark.

Others senior on the team are Cyndi Boss, Barbie Boss, Ann Kroll and Stephanie Martin.

Charlevoix had defeated Benzie Central 46-43 to go into the finals against the Evart team that is undefeated and has been rated third in the state.

Boys down Devils in season opener

by TERRY SALMONSON

The Charlevoix Rayders boys basketball team kicked off the 1986-87 season on a positive note by downing the Red Devils of East Jordan 72-44 on the home court Friday.

The Rayders took charge from the opening tipoff as Scott DeYoung out jumped 6-foot-5 Jim Raymond and tipped the ball to Jim Ciuk who fed Jim Gibbs for a two-point conversion with only one second gone off the clock.

From that point on Charlevoix never looked back.

Jim Gibbs dominated the scoring in the first quarter scoring 8 of the Rayder's first 10 points and leading Charlevoix to a 19-12 first quarter lead.

The second quarter was filled with the obvious signs of first game jitters. Numerous turnovers and fouls held East Jordan to only 8 points in the quarter while the Rayders racked up another 19 for a commanding 38-20 halftime lead.

The Red Devils had a stretch of 8 unanswered points to close the gap to 10 in the third quarter but that only served to fire the Rayder's defense. Ciuk stole the ball four times for fast breaks and Dan Drury added two more while Joe Miller and DeYoung dominated the boards.

When the smoke had cleared at the end of the third stanza, the Rayders had a 63-32 lead.

In the final period Charlevoix showed its bench strength by rotating all the first year varsity players into the game and maintaining a 28-point margin.

Charlevoix lost the services of starter Rich Quinn in the game's early minutes with a knee injury. He will be lost for three to six weeks.

Owen Phillips scored 8 and Mark La Blanee had 6, followed by Miller with 5, Chad DeVries with 4 and Roger Smith with 3.

For Charlevoix, DeYoung had 12 points, 11 rebounds and five assists. Also scoring 12 points were Gibbs and Ciuk with Dan Drury adding 10.

Charlevoix hit 28 field goals, 16 of 31 free throws and picked up 18 fouls. East Jordan totaled 17 baskets, 10 of 26 from the foul line with 23 fouls.

For East Jordan, Greg Kitson had 18 points and Raymond 15.

Charlevoix visits St. Ignace on Friday.

Wrestlers win 4 at Glen Lake

The Charlevoix Rayder grapplers came out of the Glen Lake Invitational tournament with a 4-1 record to place second behind Kalkaska.

The Rayders posted victories of 39-33 over Sault Ste. Marie; 66-18 over Cheboygan; 36-35 over Benzie Central and 38-24 over Glen Lake. Charlevoix lost to a strong Kalkaska squad 40-33.

Two members of the Rayder team were medal winners, Bill Marquardt (hvy wt) was 5-0 with five pins to his credit and Shann Bier (138) 5-0 with three pins and two decision.

Toby Young (98) had a 4-0 record with four pins and a default after being injured in the Kalkaska bout; Jason Whitley (138), 4-1; four pins; Jamie Montieth (145), 4-1, three pins; Jim Tilton (185), 4-1, two pins; Derek Dutcher (198), 4-1 four pins.

Steve Hopkins (155), 2-2, one pin; Scott Novotny (112), 2-3, two pins; Brian Livingston, (119), 1-4, one pin.

It was a great day for the Charlevoix wrestlers, marred only by a neck injury to Toby Young which required a trip to the hospital to be checked out. He will likely be out of action for up to four days, Bryan said.

Charlevoix wrestled well even in its losing bouts. "They showed intensity and demonstrated some fine technical moves, a few picture perfect in execution," Bryan said. "As a team they are showing vast improvement but we are still being hurt by the lack of a full team. Lacking three weight classes, we are giving up 18 points before we start."

Bryan said it was satisfying to see Marquardt's three years of hard work as a heavyweight paying off for him. "His improved technique enables him to be very quick and deceptive, especially as a heavyweight. He's beginning to wrestle more like a 155 pounder," Bryan added.

Also giving excellent performances were Bier, Montieth, Whitley, Tilton and Dutcher.

Charlevoix will be at Cheboygan with Sault Ste. Marie on Thursday.

Split at St. Ignace meet

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team, in its first matches of the season, defeated Onaway 59-24 and lost to St. Ignace 57-21 at St. Ignace Thursday.

"The team looked good against Onaway, a team that was strong physically but as a team we outwrestled them. I was pleased with our teehnique and execution," Coach Greg Bryan said.

"St. Ignace was another story. They put a much more experieneed team on the mat, with experience that hit us in the middle weight classes the hardest. In this match, Bill Marquardt lost a heartbreaker at the buzzer after leading throughout the match," Bryan said.

He went on to say that the two snow days with no practice left the team mentally unprepared with a lack of concentration that resulted in costly errors. He added that the Saints wrestled well but that this match was much closer than the score indicated.

The team will be at Cheboygan with the Soo on Thursday.

The results of the meet with Onaway follow (Charlevoix wrestlers listed first):

Critics question landfill safety

Charlevoix, South Arm, Hayes, Norwood, Marion, Eveline, and Charlevoix Townships. Some wastes from Banks and Central Lake Townships and the Village of Central Lake's transfer station, in Antrim County, are disposed of at this site". Also, "The transfer stations in Melrose and Boyne Valley Townships are serviced by a hauler from Petoskey, with the waste being taken back to the Emmet County transfer station, then to the Antrim-Kalkaska (now closed) or Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill".

There is an unresolved question as to whether use of the Charlevoix Landfill, as mentioned in the above statements in the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, limits the landfill to taking solid waste from those areas. A recent citation by the Solid Waste Management Planning Advisory Sub-Committee of the DNR seems to indicate it would:

"Saginaw County had an approved solid waste plan, and they identified existing landfills in their county as providing the necessary capacity to meet the requirements of the act. Bay County was behind Saginaw County in their planning process. They were still developing their plan. Bay City wanted to build a transfer station. Sexton (Jack Sexton Corporation, a landfill and waste hauling firm) got the bid to build a transfer station. They built it, the Bay County plan said to ship it to the Sexton Landfill in Saginaw County. Saginaw's plan did not recognize Bay County in its plan. Sexton went ahead and shipped waste to Saginaw County anyway. There was a temporary restraining order that limited the amount of waste going into Saginaw County. They went to trial and the judge ruled that the Saginaw County plan could prohibit Sexton from bringing waste into Saginaw County, even though they were bringing it into their own landfill. (Sexton owned the landfill in Saginaw County). The Appeals Court affirmed that decision".

The importance of the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill is underscored by the fact that it is the only available landfill for use by area residents (with the exception of the small "dump" on Beaver Island).

The county's Solid Waste Management Plan proposes the use of two other landfills in northern Michigan, in Kalkaska and Crawford Counties, both of which have since been closed by the DNR. The plan also calls for mini transfer stations in Boyne City, East Jordan, and Charlevoix, a major transfer station near the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill or somewhere along M-66, continuing use of green box transfer stations in Boyne Valley and Melrose Townships, and either a modular incinerator or a lined landfill on Beaver Island. To date, there are no transfer stations in the three cities, and no incinerator or lined landfill on Beaver Island. In these areas, the waste is all picked up by haulers and deposited in the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill. (Except on Beaver Island).

Tim Parsel, an Eveline Township resident who attended the recent meeting, told the County Board that he and two other persons had kept a log of garbage trucks entering the landfill from November 19 through 24. He reported they observed 88 trucks hauling materials which they estimated at about 830 tons of refuse and 689 tons of contaminated soil. Under questioning by Commissioner Don Smith, Dawson Way admitted he was taking soil contaminated with petroleum from the oil fields east of Charlevoix County, saying it was "legitimate" landfill waste.

Eveline Township Supervisor David Willson objected strenuously to bringing contaminated soils into Charlevoix County and asked that a regional committee be formed to explore the possibilities of an incinerator, saying that regardless of cost, it was a possible alternative to the landfill.

County Board Chairman Lee Moerland told the group that the county would soon appoint a committee of local men and women to look at the Solid Waste Management Plan, itemize its weak points, and do detail work and research to improve the plan.

Moerland told the Courier last week, "A new light has been shed on the problem for me by the statement that no concern should be given to the costs of an incinerator. I heard that from the township people, and pretty much the same thing from the City of Charlevoix".

The rinks would be lighted by the lights over the shuffleboard courts.

IN OTHER ACTION at its working session, council, –Discussed a new snowmobile route around the city airport. Snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles have been using the airport property and have been involved in several near-misses with aircraft, Richard Hodgson, manager of Island Airways which operates the airport, said.

"We've had some real close calls, and there's been damage and vandalism," he said.

The previous snowmobile route, established to give snowmobilers a safe route through town, passed to the west end of the runway. The new route would take snowmobilers to the east of the airport hangars and then between the Harbor Industries building and the airport terminal.

He called the new route the "best answer to a difficult problem."

–Agreed in principal to a new one-year contract with Island Airways to operate the Charlevoix airport. The only suggested changes were lowering the hangarkeeper's insurance coverage from $1 million to $500,000; changing the fuel price to not exceed an average of that charged by five neighboring airports; and charging interest on late payments.

–Reviewed the industrial park plat.

–Discussed seasonal rates at the city boat docks.

Charlevoix kicks off holiday season with a celebration

Charlevoix threw a Christmas party on Saturday and most of the participants seemed to have a ball.

The day started off with a Santa Brunch where the kids got a chance to visit with the big fellow himself. There was also ornament making and visits to Santa's Secret Shop where kids could buy inexpensive gifts.

Downtown a children's choir entertained, the shops offered special sales, hot chocolate and cookies were sold on the street and Santa made a return engagement at the Market Mall.

The day-long ceremonies were highlighted by an evening sing around the Christmas tree in East Park which featured the Charlevoix Children's Choirs.

Although shopping appeared to be light along Bridge Street, the Charlevoix Community Christmas Celebration seems to have taken hold and may become a tradition.

Children visiting Santa at the brunch got a chance to talk to the jolly fellow and a picture to remember it by.

Santa's Secret Shop let young shoppers look for just the right gift for the older people on their list.

The city's cherry picker took kids up to the top of the Christmas tree to put on their ornaments.

Cable TV challenged

Connie L. Martin, general manager for Northern Cable TV, said the new satellite dishes would allow the company to offer- a new sports channel called PASS and a movie channel, American Movie Classics.

PASS would show Tiger baseball, Redwing hockey, Piston basketball, and Big Ten football and basketball. It would share cable time with Cable Value Network, a shop-at-home channel. The movie channel, Martin said, would be devoted to the "Golden Years of Hollywood and would share time with C-Span which offers live coverage of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Other channels planned by Northern Cable TV were The Discovery Channel, devoted to science, nature and world exploration, and Lifetime, a show of health related features.

The new shows, Martin said, would be added to the basic cable package and the price raised from $12 per month to $14.95.

"You can raise the rates, but these people can turn their subscriptions in," Councilman F. Earl Muma told Martin. He said an increase in the basic rate would hurt people on fixed incomes.

Also objecting strenuously to the plan was Councilman Robert Timms. "I think this is outrageous," he said. "I have no intention to okay this."

A new federal law to deregulate the cable TV industry will take effect in December 28, allowing cable companies to set their own rates independent of political governing bodies like city council. Martin argued that the basic cable package rates were scheduled to go up anyway. If council authorized the new equipment, she said, they would get the six new channels. If it did not, they would get nothing.

"It will be interesting to see what the people say about that," Timms said. "I don't think they can charge (more) without providing the service."

On Tuesday, Martin said the company "will still try to give customers some channels for the rate increase." That would likely be those channels not requiring the new satellite dishes, she said.

Attorney Edward Gregory told council that it could do nothing to control rates in the future but it would raise the rent on the city land used by the cable company. "Work with them, but extract from them some additional revenue," he advised. Gregory added that the new shop-at-home cable channel would produce revenue for the cable company which gets a share of everything sold.

He and others in the audience suggested the city needs to foster competition for the cable company or to go into the cable business itself.

Dale Boss also objected to the increase in rates. "I would hope you hold the line on this thing," he told council. "A given commodity is worth just so much money. I think they're at the top. It's time to put the cap on this thing and shut her down ... or to get some competition."

Gene Steele told council that if the rate is going to rise because of deregulation, the people are going to want something for their money. He said people will be mad at council if they have to pay more without getting the additional channels the cable company would like to offer.

Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance elects new officers

The Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance Board of Directors held their annual meeting and election of officers at Shanty Creek Lodge in Bellaire on Thursday, Dec. 5. Twenty-five members and guests attended the dinner meeting to hear speaker Dick Allen, Michigan business ombudsman, address the group.

Allen stressed that well-intended state legislation and regulations can often cause problems for the small business owner as a result of interpretation and misunderstanding. Early involvement with the ombudsman's office or with local development staff professionals can often circumvent problems, he said.

Most of Allen's clients are small business owners with 20 employees or less. Allen urges business owners with questions or concerns about state rules and regulations to call his office at 1-800-232-2727.

Allen also stressed the competitive nature of economic development in Michigan and said that most economic development is done on a local level. He encouraged communities to continue to work together on economic development through the Growth Alliance, asking for state assistance to fill the technical voids.

The election of officers was held following Allen's talk. The new officers are: President: Richard Wieland, Ellsworth Village Council; Vice-President: Susan VanWieren, Char-Em Intermediate School District; Treasurer: W. Randolph Frykberg, Boyne City manager, Secretary: Pauline Truesdell, Village of Elk Rapids.

Board members also approved a proposal for the Northwest Michigan Council of governments to handle the Alliance bookkeeping.

There'll be Santa, accompanied by his photographer, at the M-66 Branch, from 4 until 7 p.m. with plenty of film to snap pictures of the youngsters and Santa.

And, on Saturday, Dec. 13, to give parents an opportunity to shop in Charlevoix without the kids, there'll be a free movie at Cinema III at 1:30 p.m. immediately following Santa's distribution of candy in East Park. The movie will take the youngsters on a make-believe trip to outer space, "The Trans Formers" featuring Leonard Nimoy.

Among the numbers the eighth-grade band will perform will be "Chesapeake Overture" by John O'Reilly; "the Coventry Carol," a traditional English Christmas carol and "Rockin' Down Main Street" by Sandy Felstein.

Water's Edge condo permits denied

by DOUG TRUAX

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Department of Natural Resources, in separate decisions last week, rejected a proposal to build 90 condominium units in a wetland at Water's Edge and to construct a 68-boat marina.

First Centrum Corp. of East Lansing had applied for the permits as part of its controversial Water's Edge development. The site plan also calls for 45 condos to be build on an "upland" fill area near the shoreline. The DNR and the Corps decisions do not affect that part of the plan.

The Water's Edge project, proposed for 51 acres on Lake Charlevoix, has been the subject of heated debate since it was first proposed in June 1985. Charlevoix Township voted to rezone the property for multifamily housing, only to have voters rescind the zoning in a referendum.

A mediated settlement of the dispute led to the proposed 135-unit project submitted to the Corps and the DNR for review under state and federal environmental protection laws. The mediated settlement limited development on the first 600 feet from the shoreline, including nearly all of the uplands, to 45 condominiums.

Opponents of the project were elated at the news (see separate story). "I can't believe it. What a Christmas present!" Marcie Trimper exclaimed. Trimper was one of the founders of ALERT (Area Leaders Environmental Response Team) which organized opposition to the project. "It's nice to know that we can depend on that arm of the government."

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp., was not available for comment and did not return the Courier's calls.

The DNR and the Corps firmly rejected any construction of condominiums in the wetlands. While also rejecting the 68-slip boat marina with piers and breakwaters, they did leave open the possibility of later approving a modified version of the docking facility.

In a 13-page, single-spaced decision, the DNR concluded that "The proposed project will cause pollution, impairment, or destruction to the state's natural resources."

The decision also noted that "a feasible and prudent alternative exists, namely building the proposed 90 additional condominium units, or a reduced number, on the existing upland portion of the site."

The decision also concluded the condominiums "will cause an unacceptable disruption to the aquatic resources."

Gary Mannesto, chief of regulatory functions for the Corps' Detroit District, said his agency reached its decision because "we feel there is sufficient upland area to build on and no need to grade or destroy the wetland."

Mannesto said the developer's plan for mitigation (creating additional wetlands elsewhere) was not a factor. "All the mitigation in the world is not going to overcome the burden of having upland alternatives available on site," he said.

First Centrum had proposed creating two ponds on the wetland and excavating 8.9 acres of land west of the Charlevoix airport to create a new wetland at an upland site.

Mannesto said the Corps would, however, consider other options with the marina. The Corps' major objection to the boat facility was that it funneled boats in front of neighboring riparian owners.

Options available, he said, include reorienting the open space to direct boats in from another direction, moving the dock or doing a survey to show where the various riparian rights lie.

The DNR came to a similar conclusion. "The Department would give favorable consideration to a modest expansion of the existing marina at the proposed site if the concerns regarding ingress and egress are resolved."

The DNR's written decision denying construction in the wetlands said the project would have adverse effects on wildlife, nutrient reduction and run-off.

"Cutting and filling the cedar swamp for the proposed development will reduce if not eliminate the existing wildlife habitat value, and will result in a permanent loss of this type of habitat," the DNR said. The decision noted that wetlands of this type were home to over 100 species of birds and 18 species of amphibians and reptiles. It said mammals such as deer, snowshoe hare and cottontail rabbits use forested wetlands as valuable cover and a food source during the winter months.

"Removal of the wetland's soil, placement of fill material, and cutting the cedar trees for the proposed development will substantially reduce, if not eliminate, the wetland's nutrient retention capacity," the decision also concluded. It said cutting the cedars would result in raising the water table in the cutover areas.

Environmentalists cheer ruling by DNR and Corps

by DOUG TRUAX

Environmentalists reacted to the denial of wetland and marina permits for Water's Edge with elation and predictions that the decision would set a precedent for the rest of Lake Charlevoix.

Reaction in other quarters was mixed.

"I am extremely pleased with the decision the DNR has reached," said Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix). Puhl was among the group that reached a mediated settlement limiting the development to 135 units, and only 45 condominiums in the first 600 feet from the shoreline.

Puhl said he received considerable criticism for joining the mediation, but noted that the agreement would now limit development to 45 condominiums. "That's something I'm very adamant about," he said.

"I feel that (the decisions) will establish a precedence for Lake Charlevoix wetlands. It is the best thing that could ever happen as far as protecting (the lake) from overdevelopment."

"I couldn't think of a better Christmas present for the Charlevoix community than the decision by the DNR," he added.

Rob McLennan, a water resource specialist with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, testified at the public hearing against the project. "We're very happy about the decision. We feel they made the right decision."

McLennan said trying to enhance or create new wetlands at the expense of destroying existing wetlands was a questionable practice. "There is no guarantee that mitigation will work," he said.

McLennan added that his group "had no problem with the development of uplands. We are all for economic development of the area."

Gail Gruenwald, attorney for the Watershed Council, also applauded the decision. She said the written report provided "excellent documentation of the value of wooded swamps." The detail and length of the report, Gruenwald said, shows the DNR considered this to be a very important case.

The ruling, she noted, could be particularly important for the Fox development which is proposed for the former Camp Charlevoix property. She said the two wetlands are nearly identical.

Fox's proposed condominium project was denied by Hayes Township and the case is currently pending in court.

Howard Neilson, chairman of the board of directors of WATCH, also hailed the decision. "The denial of the wetlands permit for the Water's Edge property by the DNR provides those of us in the environmental community with tremendous encouragement to continue our ongoing effort to preserve Michigan's

County to study waste

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week appointed a committee to study and make improvements in the County's Solid Waste Management plan.

The plan, which was approved by the State Department of Natural Resources in 1983, is a detailed plan for disposing of garbage and non-hazardous waste generated by county residents.

Since approval of the plan, two suggested disposal sites outside the county have been closed, leaving only the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill in Eveline Township as a possible disposal site.

It is expected that the new committee will consider not only landfills but incineration and recycling as a means of waste disposal.

Those appointed to the committee are C. H. Smith of Charlevoix, Jamie Hass of Walloon Lake, Dawson Way of Charlevoix, and Ted Malpass of East Jordan, all of whom have a commercial interest in solid waste disposal; Larry Levengood of the District Health Department; Ralph Richardson of Eveline Township; Nancy Ferguson of Marion Township; Phil Johnson of Boyne City; Junior Hunt of Boyne Falls; Randy Frykberg, city manager of Boyne City; Dennis Jason of East Jordan; Tom Wieland of Marion Township; and Don Smith of Charlevoix Township.

County Planner Larry Sullivan, who will work with the committee, told the County Board he hopes the committee can have its first meeting early in January.

County budget more than doubles in ten years

by PEG OHLE

More than doubled in ten years. That's what has happened to the Charlevoix County budget.

In 1977, income and expenditures balanced out at $1,841,423. In 1897, it will cost $3,705,080 to provide services to the county's population, which has increased only moderately in ten years.

In 1977, county property and personal taxes contributed $969,276 toward the cost of county operations. In 1987, that figure is $2,268,652.

This Week's Weather

Dec.	Snow	Low	High
9	.5	12	32
10	1.5	10	19
11	1.5	14	24
12	5	12	18
13	1	14	26
14	trace	25	32

In 1977, the judicial arm of the county cost $202,457 to operate. In 1987, it will cost $476,062.

In 1977, public safety departments were budgeted at $331,051. In 1987, that figure has jumped to $816,421.

In 1977, general county government expenses (such things as the clerk's office, equalization department, prosecuting attorney, register of deeds, treasurer's department, etc.) added up to $593,767. In 1987, they will amount to $820,362.

In 1977, the county's smallest department, legislative (made up of the county commissioners) cost taxpayers $47,100 for the services of 15 commissioners. In 1987, the cost will be $91,100 for six commissioners.

Although changes in bookkeeping procedures make it impossible to compare all the figures, some of the larger department increases are:

Probate Court, from $43,125 in 1977 to $156,008 in 1987; District Court, from $88,650 to $172,841; Register of Deeds, from $45,339 to $72,846; Sheriff, from $163,330 to $326,317; Jail, from $116,079 to $229,318; Insurance and Bonds, from $99,376 to $308,680; and Contingency, from $5,627 to $167,627.

While inflation is responsible for a part of county operating cost increases, so are other factors, especially public demand for some services and state mandates for other services. The latter category is the more expensive, and includes:

Salary supplements for Judges; operation of the Building Code department (which includes enforcing the state construction, electrical, plumbing, and mechanical building codes); Soil and Water Conservation; rules and regulations governing operation of the Sheriff's department and Jail; Emergency Services; Register of Deeds, Clerk, and Treasurer department documents; State Institutions; Services to the Aging; Social Security; and many other services in other departments.

Salaries of county employees have also naturally increased over the last ten years:

County Clerk, from $13,065 to $22,714; Register of Deeds, from $13,055 to $19,961; Prosecuting Attorney, from $26,750 to $37,640; Emergency Services Director, from $9,200 to $18,417; Equalization Director, from $14,340 to $25,174; County Treasurer, from $13,055 to $21,938; Sheriff, from $15,730 to $29,806; Under-Sheriff, from $14,600 to $24,731; Building Maintenance Man, from $10,700 to $19,136; County Planner, from $13,200 to $24,322; Building Code Official, from $12,690 to $21,938; Drain Commissioner (part time), from $3,265 to $4,611; County Commissioners (two meetings a month), from $1,100 to $1,680; County Commissioners per diem, from $35 to $70. Per diem allowances for other commissions and committees have also been substantially increased through the years.

It should be noted that increases in salary results in increases in percentage fringe benefits, which add to the costs of county employment.

Since 1968, when the Federal Revenue Sharing program began, the county budget committee has used those funds for general operating expenses. In all, $3,672,332 has been received. The county has now received its last payment of Revenue Sharing funds because the program has been discontinued. There is $290,000 worth of Revenue Sharing funds in the 1977 budget and several thousand dollars more which must be spent in the next two years, according to the budget committee.

The "pinch" in revenue sources will be felt beginning next year. When asked what money sources would replace Revenue Sharing in future years, retiring County Board Chairman Lee Moerland replied, only half seriously, "I don't know, but sometimes I think we have been wrong in being conservative in using Revenue Sharing funds. If we had used them to build a lot of monuments, we wouldn't miss them for general county operations in years to come".

Claudia Kenifeck steps down at Chamber

Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for the past two years, leaves her position at the end of this week with "no regrets, no problems, but a need for more personal time."

An outdoor sports enthusiast, Kenifeck intends to spend some time on the slopes this winter before looking into new career challenges.

Her first priority, though, will be spending more time with her husband, Bill, who has become something of a stranger as Claudia has pursued her Chamber job which often takes seven days a week.

Kenifeck looks back on her tenure at the Chamber with justifiable pride at the accomplishments. Membership has continued to climb – 70 percent in the last two years – and the Chamber has added a full-time secretary and upgraded its equipment, including a copier and an IBM PC computer.

"As a result we are better able to serve those who support us, and to get the word out better," Claudia says.

Kenifeck just recently completed a report on the 1986 Industrial Inventory she did with City Manager Michael Wiesner and Mayor Hal Hill. Over the last 10 months the three of them contacted over 20 local industrial facilities hoping to open lines of communication and to learn how the city and the Chamber could better serve industry.

"Overall, existing Charlevoix industry is perceived as being quite satisfied with the City of Charlevoix, its service, and its utilities," she concluded.

Kenifeck said the community needs to continue efforts to expand the year-round jobs and build the economic base. An encouraging sign, she added, was that a half dozen companies had plans to expand in Charlevoix.

"We are unique because for the last 100 years Charlevoix has been a seasonal town. It has been the ongoing task of the Chamber, and it will continue to be, to make Charlevoix more of a year-round community."

Kenifeck said the next step is for the city to promote the new industrial park.

One of the pleasures of the job, and something that also makes Charlevoix unique, she said, was

Merta returns as director

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce welcomes back an old friend next week as Jacquie Merta returns as executive director.

Merta, who directed the Chamber for 9½ years from 1975 to 1984, will replace Claudia Kenifeck who resigned recently.

The Merta name and the Chamber have been closely allied for the last 15 years. Jacquie and her husband, Tom, moved back to this area in 1971 when Tom took over as the first full-time director of the Chamber.

In 1975 when Vince Olaeh stepped down as director, Jacquie was promoted from office manager to director. She left two years ago to take a sales position with the Star Line Corp. where she managed sales for the Star of Charlevoix and was assistant marketing director for the Star Line.

Merta, a last-minute candidate for the Chamber executive director job, said the opening presented a dilemma because she enjoys her job at the Bruce Healey, a fourth-grade teacher at East Jordan and resident of Charlevoix, was the lucky winner in last week's drawing for the giant Christmas stocking at Central Drugs. Lani Ochs of Central Drugs is shown presenting the stocking to Healey who said he would give the games away as incentives to his students.

Wetlands protected

The Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Army Corps of acted decisively last week and the message was clear: the Wetlands Protection Act, the Inland Lakes and Streams Act, and the Clean Water Act will be enforced.

The messages came in the form of decisions on the Water's Edge condominium project as the governmental agencies took clear and unequivocal stances on the protection of wetlands bordering Lake Charlevoix.

The implications of these decisions will be felt for many years to come. Major development projects and individual home owners can expect the federal and state authorities to stand behind these critlcally important environmental laws.

The people of Michigan should breathe easier knowing that the DNR means business. That is good news for northern Michigan where dependence on the beauty and quality of our natural resources is the foundation of our economic existence and the soul of our experience.

Until now, environmentalists and developers alike have questioned the meaning of the Wetlands Act and the state's resolve in enforcing it. Although the act has received sporadic attention, the scope of the Water's Edge decision and its decisiveness leave little question in anyone's mind.

Wetlands constitute a major portion of the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. They teem with wildlife, purify water and help stabilize groundwater levels. They vary from bogs to swamps to cedar forests, each functioning in a different way to maintain the delicate ecological balance.

Protection for the wetlands was initiated in recent years after citizens became aware of their rapid disappearance. Today, only a fraction of the wetlands that originally graced this continent remain. We must protect them. And in order to do so we are dependent on those governmental agencies that enforce the law.

So Michigan citizens should rejoice that the DNR under the firm guidance of Director Dr. Gordon Guyer and the leadership of Gov. James Blanchard has dedicated itself to strict enforcement of these environmental laws. We will all be the winners in the end.

Forecasts? Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Sometimes you'd think people at the U.S. Weather Bureau would hang their heads in shame.

The forecast last Wednesday was pretty grim. Two to five inches of snow each day through Sunday, with temperatures skidding to five below zero.

The summer-soldiers among us died a thousand deaths contemplating blowing snow, howling winds, slippery roads, and sky's-the-limit heating bills.

But the awful spate of winter weather never materialized. The temperature hardly hit 20 degrees Saturday morning before it started rising. There was a little snow, but nothing out of the ordinary. Sunday evening the thaw set in and Monday was downright balmy, with even warmer weather forecast for Tuesday.

The key word there is "forecast," because the same people who promised us a full-blown winter storm are now predicting spring-like weather before the holidays. But I won't believe until I see it.

Despite earth satellites and all sorts of expensive weather forecasting equipment, meteorology is still one of the more inexact sciences, thanks to the vagaries of Mother Nature.

After a lifetime in this hostile climate, f have made a few general observations about the weather that usually hold true:

— It is usually warmer in July than January — but don't bet the farm on it.

— It is usually colder in February than it is in August.

— A red sky in the evening usually presages a storm the following day. (Check the Book of Matthew).

— A red sky in the morning usually means a fine day ahead.

— A mackerel sky, characterized by rows of little broken clouds, usually means rain within 24 hours. Dr snow, if the temperature is right.

— An east wind usually brings rain.

— A southwest wind usually won't last long. It will shift to the northwest overnight, so look for colder weather.

— When smoke from a wood stove goes straight up, it is usually as cold as it is going to get.

— When you wake up in the morning with a headache and a stuffy nose, look for a change in the weather. If it has been nice, it will turn nasty; if it has been nasty, it will turn nice. Sinus problems seem to be related to barometric pressure.

Usually.

ONE OF THE most exciting things to happen in Charlevoix in recent years was the city council's decision Monday night to establish two ice rinks in East Park this winter.

One will be used for hockey, the other for recreational skating.

I can see it now, a scene right out of Central Park: Skaters dressed in stocking caps and long scarves gliding to the soft strains of "The Skaters' Waltz" or "The Merry Widow."

The first time I hear "Walk Like an Egyptian," I'm packing up my skates going home.

Mad.

Library journal

by MARYBETH WALLICK

All you Wilbur Smith fans are in for a treat. He has just written a new epic about South Africa called "Power of the Sword," fiction rooted in documentary fact. The book covers two decades of African and Nazi German history, the 1930s and the '40s, through the Depression and the blazing war.

The story revolves around two half-brothers and their mother caught in the tumult of their nations's circumstances as they struggle to preserve their way of life and family.

Stephen Coonts is a new fiction author on the scene and his first offering is a fictionalized account of his time as an Intruder pilot in Vietnam. He flew jets from the deck of the carrier the U.S.S. Enterprise.

This story is about naval pilots and the tremendous pressures and stress of their lives. With extraordinary realism he straps the reader in the cockpit of an A-6 Intruder to experience the fear and exhilaration of life at full throttle: thrilling cat shots off a carrier ... treetop-level races against pursuing MIG's, and treacherous night landings in crippled planes.

More than an exciting adventure story, "Flight of the Intruder" probes beneath the glamorous surface to examine the psychological tolls of war.

"My Father, My Son" is the story of a truly remarkable American family, the Zumwalts.

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr. was the officer who gave the order to use Agent Orange in Vietnam. A decade later it was discovered that his own son had developed cancer from the Agent Orange that he had ordered sprayed.

The book is told in the voices of Adm. Zumwalt and his son Elmo. It is about how tragedy forced their family to rally and to find within themselves reservoirs of courage, wisdom, humor, compassion and dignity, and of the struggle to help young Elmo survive.

The Towel and Whip

Those of us who make the claim that we are Christians have submitted to two requiremetns for making that claim: 1) we have repented (that is to seek forgiveness for our sins and to turn from sinning), and 2) we are actively being Christ-like in our actions and attitudes. It will be the latter that we will deal with.

We are told through the Bible that we are to be Christ-like in our actions and attitudes. It begins by submitting our wills to God and obeying the Word of the Lord. It simply means to emulate the standards and practices of Jesus Christ-to be "Christ-like." We know that in order to emulate Christ we must understand His type of living. His lifestyle can be broken down into two forms. They are the lifestyle of the towel and the lifestyle of the whip.

TOWEL: Jesus made the claim that He did come into this world to be served but to server (Mt. 20:28). In Jn. 13:1-17, He demonstrated His service to the disciples. He took a towel and wrapped it around His waist, poured water into a basin, and began performing the lowest form of servitude known to man at that time. He washed the dirty, stinky, ugly feet of the disciples. Then to top it all off, He told them to follow His example.

It was that servant's heart which allowed Christ to be beaten, scorged, and nailed to a cross. If all of us who claim to be Christ-like would be a servant to those around us, we wouldn't have any problem at all loving our neighbor, caring for the afflicted, and spreading a message of hope that Jesus Christ can save us from our sin. Are you emulating the lifestyle of the towel?

WHIP: Jesus told us that we need to have a righteousness which changes the world around us just to enter the kingdom of heaven (Mt. 5:20). He's trying to tell us that we need to stand up for biblical principles in our modern society. Jesus made His statement to His world in Jn. 2: 12-25. He walked into the temple area one day and saw the dishonesty and unrighteousness taking place. He proceeded to make a whip and drive out all the dishonesty and unrighteousness. He made a stand for the righteousness of God's principles.

Where's our whip? We make claims to be Christ-like, but where's our righteousness? We wonder why the world disregards the sanctity of life, the respect for human beings as persons and not objects for mere pleasure, and the equality of all based on being God-created rather than a random pile of matter. We wonder why ... but where's our whip? Franky Schaeffer has said, "It is time that we as Christians to make our stand while there are still battles that can be won." Where's our whip?

It says in Eph. 5:1, "Be imitators of God ..." As Christians, we have a lifestyle of the towel and a lifestyle of the whip. This day let's emulate the lifestyle of Christ!

Letters to the editor:

Nursing home to be best managed in state

Dear Editor:

On Nov. 19, you printed a story in your paper concerning the selection of Defunel, Ltd. by the Michigan Department of Public Health to build and operate a new nursing home in Charlevoix. We would like to add a comment in our own behalf.

We are not newcomers to the health care field. We owned and operated the 240-bed Lafayette skilled care nursing home in Flint for many years. We designed and built another 140-bed nursing home in the Flint area. We have operated a 46-bed adult foster care home catering to the trainable mentally impaired since 1972 in the Flint area.

When we applied for a Certificate of Need for Charlevoix we did so because 1) I reside in the Little Traverse geographic area for several months a year and will become a full-time resident soon, and 2) the state surveys indicated a need for beds in the area.

We are experienced professionals in our field. We saw no need to hire expensive outside consultants to produce pounds of meaningless paperwork to support our application, nor did we attempt to gather premature local political support. We chose to apply on the basis of our own reputation and experience.

We do not believe the area can support 58 home for the aged beds at this time and, therefore, we did not apply for more than 31. All of the support facilities for more home for aged beds or nursing home beds will be in place at our facility, if more beds are needed at a later date.

There is no need to specify one single parcel of land for the project at this early date, nor is there a need to excite local interests unduly until the Certificate of Need is awarded finally, and the project is allowed to proceed.

We have deliberately chosen to approach this project, as we have our previous projects, in a very low profile manner. When the appears process is completed, we will then proceed in an expeditious and professional manner. We are a Michigan entity in operation since 1967, staffed by competent professionals, and we know our business.

If the award to us is upheld in the appeals process, Charlevoix will have the best managed, best located, most architecturally attractive health care facility in the state. Historically, when others have empty beds, we are full and have waiting lists. This does not happen by accident.

Ken Rabidoux,

Downtown poor site for ice rink

Dear Editor:

I would like to say a few words about moving the ice rink downtown. For the past several years, we have enjoyed the pleasant, spacious peace of the rink at the high school. I see no sense in the added expense of a smaller, crowded rink downtown.

Nor can I imagine anything more tragic than a child falling into and possibly drowning in the icy water of Round Lake just because someone thought it would be "picturesque".

There is an old saying "If it ain't broke don't fix it." Please don't fix it.

VFW Auxiliary receives Several district awards

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, received citations for their work in Americanism, Cancer and the National Children's Home at Eaton Rapids from Marguerite Hermanson of Lewiston, 13th District president, during her recent inspection of the organization.

Accompanying Mrs. Hermanson were Corrine Rogers of Central Lake, District 13 junior vice president and Alma Boon of Boyne City, past 13th District president. The auxiliary also received excellent ratings for all phases of ritual floor work and chairmen's notebooks.

It was emphasized that the National Auxiliary continues to stress cancer research as one of its main projects and cancer awards have made to universities for further research in this field. The local auxiliary will continue to support this program by selling eagle pins and redeeming Glen's green slips.

Arlene Staley, president, again advised that all members receive cancer insurance as part of their dues and are also eligible for cancer grants. Michigan alone has paid $2,200 in cancer grants since June, she said.

At the recent meeting, it was announced that members had contributed more than 80 hours in community service projects during November. Assistance was also given to a needy member, to shutins and those that were ill. Christmas plants will be delivered to shut-in members by Rosemary Warner and Mrs. Staley prior to the holidays.

Delegates to the recent District 13 meetings reported on the meeting and the school of instruction they attended. Aid in rehabilitation and community service were stressed. Delegates were Staley, Rosalyn Goldstick and Mary Sevenstian.

The auxiliary approved a recent donation to the Health and Happiness Fund at the National Children's Home. Members were also reminded that the deadline for paying 1987 dues is December 31. Those members who have not paid their dues are asked to contact the membership chairman, Beverly Plum.

Plans were also made for the annual Christmas party held at the post home Sunday for members of the post, the auxiliary, their respective families, friends and prospective members.

The next meeting will be held at the post home at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 8.

String orchestra in concert

On Friday, Dec. 19, the Northern Michigan Youth String Orchestra will present a Christmas concert at 7 p.m. at the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

The orchestra, under the direction of Krista Knight, is composed of middle and high school students from East Jordan, Charlevoix, Boyne City, Cheboygan and Petoskey. They will perform on the violin, viola and cello.

The orchestra has 22 members. Selections will include traditional Christmas carols, arranged by Merle J. Issac, the Pastoral from Handel's Messiah, and the Kanon by Pachabel. "He said if I didn't do it, he wouldn't love me anymore."

"AND YOU KNOW WHAT? I GOT angry. It was such a trashy thing to say. Like I was so desperate for him I'd jump off a cliff or something.

We didn't have any birth control. I started out saying it was just the wrong time.

Then I started thinking it was the wrong guy.

After he said that, he put on this big act about it. If he really cared, he'd have let it drop. He'd have given me time.

I mean, you don't have to be the brain of the world to know you don't have sex without protection.

And you sure don't make a baby with a guy who thinks he can threaten you.

Nobody should pressure anybody to have sex. Especially if you feel you're not ready. Or prepared. It's a fact of life that if you have sex without safe, effective birth control, you're going to get pregnant. Who should be responsible for birth control? It can be you, it can be him, even better when it's both. If you need information or just someone to talk to, call your nearest Planned Parenthood. We can help. That's what we're here for.

St. Ignace steals Rayder lead in final seconds

ST. IGNACE — Charlevoix saw a 10-point lead slip away in the final period as the Saints scored the winning basket with 2 seconds remaining to take a 62-61 victory.

The Rayders (2-1) held a 59-51 margin with 4:13 left but could hit only one free throw the rest of the way.

St. Ignace (2-0) finally tied the game on a basket with 28 seconds left. The Saints then called timeout but didn't have any left. Charlevoix converted a free throw off the timeout technical for a 61-60 lead. The Rayders then failed on two chances to wrap up the victory, missing a layup and also the front end of a one-and-one foul shot attempt.

St. Ignace then came down court and got off three shots, the third a successful six-foot jumper by sophomore Jay Trimble with two seconds left.

"We played a good first half but our inexperience caught up with us," Charlevoix Coach Dave Smith said. "Turnovers and poor execution were the main things."

Charlevoix also had a poor shooting second half, hitting just 29 percent from the floor after going at a 59 percent clip in the first half. In addition the team was just five of 15 at the foul line and three of hose successes came off technical fouls. The Rayders hit just two of 11 foul shots in the final period.

"That really hurt us (2 of 11)," Smith said.

Charlevoix took a 20-19 first-period lead, was in command 41-31 at the half with a 53-45 margin going into the final period.

The Rayders held a 28-27 margin in field goals but were called for 20 fouls compared to 15 for St. Ignace. The Saints hit only eight of 20 from the foul line.

Jim Ciuk led Charlevoix with 19 points, with Owen Phillips and Scott DeYoung adding 10 each. From St. Ignace, Pat Gallagher, a sophomore, hit 24 points and Trimble added 11.

Football, basketball MVPs named

Mike Thompson — John Jaskierski — Amy Pischner — Cyndi Boss

Two members of the 1986 Charlevoix Rayder football team were named to the most valuable player Michigan Huron Shores Conference football team.

They are Mike Thompson, running back, and John Jaskierski, tackle.

Four others received honorable mention: Kent Seymour, linebacker; Darrin Battdorf, guard, linebacker and punter; Quinton Walker, end; and Bill Marquardt, offensive tackle.

Jaskierski also received honorable mention on the UPI All-State Class C team.

The Michigan-Huron Shores Conference Most Valuable Player girls basketball team announced last week includes two Charlevoix first-team selections and two who received honorable mention.

Receiving MVP recognition were Amy Pischner, the team's top offensive and defensive player, and Cyndi Boss, guard.

Pischner finished the season with a career total of points to become the second highest scorer in the history of the sport in Charlevoix.

Receiving honorable mention were Barbie Boss and Ellen Pearl.

All are seniors except Pearl who is a junior.

Rayders down Harbor Springs

The Charlevoix Rayders, paced by a 27-point performance by Scott DeYoung, turned back a determined Harbor Springs team Tuesday to take a 74-68 victory.

Harbor Springs had a 19-18 point margin at the end of the first quarter and neither team was able to build more than a three-point lead at any time in the first half.

The Rayders took the lead for good with 1:01 remaining in the first half when Joe Miller tipped in a rebound to make it 36-35. The Rayders went into the lockerroom leading 38-35.

The bulk of the Rayders' second-quarter points came at the free-throw line where they sank 14 of 19.

In the second half, Charlevoix turned loose its fast break to take a nine-point lead while silencing the Rams' floor shooting. By the end of the third quarter, however, the Rams had clawed their way back to cut the margin to 52-49, largely on the shooting of Rick Shepherd and the free throws of Brian O'Neill.

Charlevoix outscored their opponents 22-19 in the final period to take the victory.

Joining DeYoung in the scoring column for Charlevoix were Miller with 15 points, Owen Phillips 11, Dan Drury 9, Jim Ciuk 7, Jim Gibbs 4 and Chad DeVries 1.

Charlevoix hit 24 field goals on the night and was 26 of 44 from the charity line. They had 26 fouls.

Wrestlers win dual meet

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team chalked up wins in dual meets over Sault Ste. Marie and Cheboygan in a meet held at Cheboygan Thursday.

The win over the Soo was by a slim 36-35 score. Cheboygan was beaten 48-24.

"The win over the Soo was a gift," Coach Greg Bryan said, explaining that the score was tied 36-all after the last match when the official made a misconduct call against the Soo to trim one point from the final score and give the Rayders the meet.

Bryan said the team looked lethargic against the Soo and was much sharper against a much improved Cheboygan team. Though the Rayders were badly weakened by the loss of Toby Young (98) and Derek Dutcher (198) outstanding performances by Scott Mitcheltree (167) and Jim Marquardt (198) helped compensate for their absences.

Mitcheltree was named the wrestler of week, winning twice in his first varsity performance. Shaan Bier (132) had the fastest takedown in :24 and the fastest pin in 1:24.

Results of the dual with the Soo follow; exercises and, if so, when.

The board agreed to postpone the decision until January.

At the same meeting, Don Voisin, president of the Band Boosters, addressed the board requesting a special day to recognize the band. He said that the Boosters had raised and spent $6,268 in support of the band program in the Charlevoix schools and felt that more recognition should be given this organization. The request was taken under advisement and a decision made at a later date.

A letter of resignation from Barbara Wilson, a teacher in the K-5 school was read. Wilson said she was resigning after 28 years in the teaching profession. The resignation was accepted with regret and the board thanked her for a job well done.

In other action, the board approved the payment of $5,240 to the National Bank of Detroit for bonds issued in 1968.

—Approved a request by Geg Bryan, wrestling coach, for an overnight on Jan. 9 and 10. He will take the team to Grand Rapids for a wrestling tournament.

— Designated Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren as the representative for the school district in applying for federal aid under Public Law 874.

— Was advised that a Spanish teacher had not been found to take over for Ted Miller when he departs in April for Japan.

— Discussed installing probe lights on buses as they could be more clearly seen, especially in inclement weather.

— Was advised the K-5 school will conduct its Christmas program for the students and faculty at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 17.

— Was advised that Mary Lieberman's homemaking class had entertained the entire first grade with a party at the high school with the Spanish and French Clubs and the Performing Arts class offering entertainment.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 5.

working with so many good volunteers. "They're the one's who make it happen."

In addition to her many roles and responsibilities at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Claudia has also been working on setting up cooperative efforts with other Chambers around Lake Charlevoix.

The long-term goal, she said, was to have the three communities on the lake endorse county-wide marketing programs.

"This has been a fun job, very challenging and enjoyable," Claudia summarized, "and very time consuming."

Jacquie Merta returns

Star Line. "I questioned how often this job would open up. I think I am well-suited to this type of work. As the deadline got closer and closer, I felt I couldn't let this opportunity go by."

Jacquie looks forward to her new but familiar role. "I've always enjoyed working for the community," she said. "I get a great deal of satisfaction from it."

In her earlier tenure as executive director, Merta completed a six-year program conducted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce through the Institute for Organization Management. She said the training has proved valuable in a variety of Chamber and business responsibilities.

She also believes her two years with the Star Line Corp. have strengthened her business abilities.

As to goals for the coming year, Merta said she would let the new board of directors set the pace. "The board of directors establish the goals for the organization and the community," she said. "When those goals are set for 1987, they in turn become my goals."

In addition to annual goals, she added, the Chamber needs to keep in mind ongoing, long-term priorities.

Merta said she will be interested in how the new Convention and Visitor's Bureau is doing, and also looks forward to working on county-wide promotions and industrial development.

"It's exciting that there will not be any lost time," she added. "I'm not going to have to get my feet wet."

Environmentalists cheer ruling by DNR and Corps

"It also sends a loud and clear message to all developers that the Wetlands Protection Act will be rigidly enforced in the future."

Claudia Kenifeck, outgoing executive director for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce said that "You have to give credit to the DNR and the Corps for enforcing the wetlands act. Yes, we do need growth and economic development in Charlevoix and that includes development of this type. But we have to accept the decision because the DNR and the Corps are enforcing the law.

"Hopefully, the developer can come up with a new plan that will fit within the DNR and Corps decisions," she said.

Jacquie Merta, incoming Chamber executive director, was disappointed by the outcome. "I just always thought this project was a really great development in a great location," she said. "I think it is unfortunate that it is not going to be built."

She said First Centrum was a conscientious developer that was concerned about what the community wanted. She added that often people react negatively to a plan when first presented and will, years later, will accept less well-planned alternatives.

Don Berlage, attorney and a member of the Northern Michigan Development Council, said he wanted to read the decision before commenting. He did say that allowing the development along the lakefront and not in the rear of the property "doesn't sound like good development."

County gets snowfall bonus

Forty-four of Michigan's 83 counties recorded more than 80 inches of snow during the 1985-86 winter, qualifying them for snow-removal funds from state gas and weight taxes, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) reports.

The 44 will share a total of $3,043,879 from the county share of highway user taxes. It is distributed according to a formula based on the accumulated depth of snowfall and number of miles of county roads.

Charlevoix County, which recorded a snowfall of 135 inches, will receive $85,655.

Statistics on snowfall are provided by the U.S. Weather Bureau and Michigan Weather Service.

Keweenaw County had the most snow accumulation, recording 321 inches. The largest payment, $168,000, went to Houghton County, based on its 263 inches of snow. Although it had 58 inches less snow than Keweenaw County, Houghton County has 689 more miles of county roads.

Oter counties in the top five were Baraga, 213 inches; Ontonagon, 209; and Alger, 194. Leelanau County had the most snow in the Lower Peninsula with 171 inches.

Last year's annual payment totaled $2,808,503 with an average snowfall of 97 inches statewide, the same as in the 1984-85 winter.

Fochtman named road commissioner

The County Board of Commissioners last week appointed Richard Fochtman of Norwood Township to a six-year term on the County Road Commission. He succeeds Robert Stowe of Ironton, who asked not to be re-appointed.

Fochtman, who has been Norwood Township Supervisor for six years, is resigning that post to take the Road Commission job. "I have enjoyed the township job and hate to leave it", Fochtman said, "but there could be a conflict of interest if I didn't".

The new Road Commissioner has served on several other Commissions and Boards in the past. In the early 1970's, he was a member of the Charlevoix City Council and served on the City Charter Commission; he was a member of the board of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce (before it became the Chamber of Commerce), and also served on the Economic Development Committee.

Fochtman is well acquainted with the duties of a Road Commissioner. His father, Angus, served in that capacity in the 1950's, and he remembers spending many Sunday mornings driving around the county with his father to inspect the roads. "It was a regular thing with him", Fochtman recalls. "We would go right after church and spend much of the day at it".

Recently, Fochtman served as a liaison person between the Townships Association and the Road Commission in the program to provide signs for all unmarked roads in the county. "There is a need for better communication between the townships and the Road Commission, and I hope I can provide it", he added.

Big Rock becomes training center

Kenneth W. Strahm, executive director, National Academy for Nuclear Training (and group vice president of training and education, Institute of Nuclear Power Operations) recently presented a plaque to David P. Hoffman, Big Rock Point plant superintendent, in recognition of the plant's designation as a branch of the National Academy for Nuclear Training.

The plant was accepted into the Academy as the result of a lengthy evaluation and review process to certify that the plant's training programs for reactor operators and other related personnel met a set of stringent standards set by the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations for commercial nuclear power plants.

INPO was established in 1979 by the nuclear power industry to assist in achieving excellence in the safety of nuclear power operations. The National Academy for Nuclear Training was created by INPO as part of an effort to establish and maintain a set of industry-wide training standards. INPO and the Academy are based in Atlanta, Georgia.

Strahm joined INOP in 1980 after serving 23 years in the U.S. Navy. He served as head of the U.S. Naval Nuclear Power School and as a senior member of the Naval Nuclear Propulsion Examining Board. He also commanded a nuclear-powered submarine. He is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy.

In order to earn their federally required licenses, all nuclear reactor operators and senior reactor operators must receive up to a year of intensive training and pass written oral and simulator tests. To maintain their licenses, they must receive approximately two months of additional training each year and pass an annual requalification examination. Other members of the plant staff must also receive extensive training to meet both federal and company standards to ensure safe operation of the plant.

Superintendent picked for water plant

The City of Charlevoix has announced the appointment of Michael J. Reinhart as superintendent of the city's new water treatment plant.

Reinhart graduated from Cooper Elm High School in Detroit and, after graduation, moved to Charlevoix with his family.

He started working for the City of Charlevoix in August 1974 in the city Street Department. In 1976, he was transferred to the city Water Department, where he became work leader.

Reinhart has been to numerous schools ranging from water distribution to operation of a water treatment plant. He currently holds Michigan Department of Public Health certificates for D-2 and D-3 Limited Water Plant Operations, S-2 and S-3 certificates for Water Distribution, and F-3 and F-4 certificates for Water Treatment Plant Operations.

"Mike is a experience leader and hard worker," City Manager Michael Wiesner said. "The City of Charlevoix is proud to have him as a member of our staff."

Water's Edge permits

"This will compound even further the building limitations due to excess water, and will result in increased run-off, containing nutrients and pollutants, entering the stream and ultimately discharging to Lake Charlevoix."

The DNR was also was critical of the proposed ponds, noting that they would result in diminished use by wildlife. "Sediment, pollutants, and nutrients entering the ponds will reduce water quality, promote monotypic weed growth, and accelerate filling-in of the ponds with decaying vegetation," the report stated.

The DNR also questioned the value of the wetland to be created near the airport as mitigation for the lost wetlands at Water's Edge. Because of permeable soils, any ponds created at the airport site would not retain water without pumping, the DNR said. The site, they added, "is subject to noise, fumes, and disturbance from haul trucks and constant highway traffic resulting in severely reduced aesthetic and wildlife habitat values.

"The proposed off-site wetland mitigation will not replace the on-site wetland functions lost when the wetland's soil and cedar trees are removed," the report said.

Prosecutor seeks pay increase through new funding plan

by PEG OHLE

County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman last week asked the County Board to support a proposal by the Michigan Prosecuting Attorneys Association which would change the method of paying Prosecutors' salaries.

The proposal would have the state share in paying the salaries, beginning with one-third the first year, one-half the second year, and two-thirds the third and following years.

Under the proposal, Lieberman's salary, which is now $36,195, would be raised to $48,035. The county's two-thirds share the first year would be $32,024; its one-half share the second year would be $24,018; and its one-third share the third and following years would be $16,012.

County Prosecutors' salaries would be based on the state scale for Civil Service Assistant Attorneys General, as well as the population of the county which they serve:

Under 5,000 population–$27,000; 5,000 to 13,500 population–$35,900; 13,500 to 30,000 population (Charlevoix County)–$48,035; 30,000 to 40,000 population–$66,211; over 40,000 population–$70,233.

The Prosecutor would remain a locally elected county official and a county employee for retirement purposes. The proposal prohibits Prosecutors in counties over 30,000 population from engaging in a private practice. In those counties under 30,000, County Boards may prohibit private practice by supplementing the Prosecutor's salary.

The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, in making the proposal, notes that many counties are unable to provide a salary commensurate with the responsibilities of the Prosecutor's office; also that because the Prosecutor is enforcing state statutes and representing many state agencies, "it is appropriate and fair that the state pay a portion of the salary necessary to compensate the Prosecutor for these responsibilities".

The proposal is just beginning to receive attention around the state.

Water levels decline in November

The elevation for Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of November was about 6 inches above what it was one year ago and some 6 inches below one month ago, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said in its monthly report.

The November monthly mean level was 37 inchs above the long-term average. This level was about 8 inches above the all-time monthly mean high for November, which was set in 1985, and about 68 inches above the all-time low November monthly mean set in 1964.

For mariners, the end of November level was 51 inches above chart datum.

The end of November level of the two lakes was at 581.07 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

The six-month forecast of levels for Lakes Michigan-Huron shows that the lakes are expected to be above the long-term average level during the next six months. The Corps' forecast says that at the end of December, Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 3 inches below what they were at the end of November. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February.

At the end of May 1987, the lakes are expected to be 5 inches above what they were at the same time in 1986. The May mean would be above the long-term average for that month and 4 inches above the all-time high mean for May, which was set in 1986.

City gets early Christmas present

An early Christmas present for Charlevoix residents arrived in town last week. The cab and chassis of a white 1986 Ford truck ordered by "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" was delivered to the Pat McKeown Ford showrooms.

The vehicle will later be equipped with a 2,000 gallon water tank and an electric converter for a water dispenser for watering the five miles of petunias that will line the main street of Charlevoix again next summer.

Dale Boss, father of the Petunia project, explained that the truck was purchased with $7,000 from the Petunia Auction, $10,000 from the raffle of a Mustang automobile, and many cash donations. McKeown sold the truck at cost and the Ford Motor Company deducted $2,000 from its manufacturer's cost, according to Boss. The board of the Charlevoix County State Bank has agreed to pay for the water tank, which will be manufactured and sold at a discount by David Arnold of South Barnard Road, and Ed Buday will install an electric converter for the water dispenser and speakers for use when the truck is in parades.

"Such cooperation could only happen in Charlevoix the Beautiful", Boss commented as he smiled in anticipation of putting the vehicle to use next summer.

Water's Edge to appeal DNR wetlands decision

Construction planned for this spring

by DOUG TRUAX

The proposed developer of a condominium project at Water's Edge on Lake Charlevoix hopes to begin construction on the first phase of 45 lakefront units this spring.

In the meantime, the company will appeal a Department of Natural Resources decision denying permits to build another 90 units in a wetland on the 51-acre site.

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp. of East Lansing, said his development company would pursue an administrative appeal of the DNR decision on the wetlands permit. A permit was also denied for the wetlands by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Oelschlaeger said he would reopen that issue by submitting a revised site plan to them.

The permit process through the Corps does not allow any administrative appeal. Any challenge to the denial of a permit would have to come through the federal courts or a revised plan.

"We have no plans at the present time to seek relief through the courts," Oelschlaeger said.

He said the company's efforts would be concentrated on getting started with the construction as soon as possible.

Oelschlaeger also noted that he will be submitting revised plans for a 68-boat marina in the near future. The DNR and the Corps also rejected permits for the marina but suggested that it would be approved if the plan was changed.

Oelschlaeger said the revised marina plan would involve a floating dock system, rather than the solid pier construction of the earlier plan. First Centrum has also conducted a survey of neighboring riparian rights that Oelschlaeger said shows that there would be no violation of any riparian's rights.

The Corps had suggested a survey as an alternative.

The Corps and the DNR denied permits for construction in the wetlands which comprise some 74 percent of the proposed development site, noting that there were

Mediation agreement challenged

by DOUG TRUAX

The two sides in the Water's Edge condominium dispute differ markedly on what effect the recent denial of wetlands permits by the Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Army Corps of engineers will have on a settlement mediated last spring.

The mediation agreement, signed April 23, 1986, set out conditions for the development of the controversial Water's Edge project. It was signed by 11 parties including environmentalists, the developers, and township officials.

The mediated settlement was supposed to resolve months of bitter struggle over the project, including a referendum which overturned township rezoning for the project and a lawsuit by the developer.

At issue now are provisions in the mediated settlement calling for a maximum of 45 residential units on the first 600 feet of lakefront. The agreement also stipulates that "There shall be a maximum of 135 residential units on a total of 51 acres."

The developer now claims that the mediated agreement is null and void as a result of the denial of permits to build 90 units on the wetlands at the rear of the property.

Environmentalists are screaming foul, claiming that the agreement was signed with the clear understanding that lakefront development would be limited to 45 units regardless of what the DNR or the Corps decided about the wetlands.

"I expected this," said Howard Neilson, chairman of the board of directors of WATCH, an environmental group involved in the settlement. "They (the developers) are just a rotten bunch of people. The township people are now going

The Christmas spirit infected Charlevoix in a big way this yaar.

Clear proof of that was in the many charitabla activitias going on eround town.

Principal among them was the annual Christmas project of the Community Food Pantry. Last week volunteers "shopped" in the basement of the Charlavoix Congregational Church, above, to prepara food baskats for soma 140 housaholds which included 398 people.

Food and money for the project cama from a variety of sourcas including an ambitious food drive at the Middla School. Librarian Tom Sothard, right, and students total up the over 1,500 items donated by tha Middle School to the Community Food Pantry Christmas project.

This year tha school's classas competad to see which could raisa tha most food for the cause. The result was a flood of food, far in excess of tha 200 items brought in last year.

The Community Food Pantry Christmas project provides a Christmas meal to aach needy family it can identify. The food is tailored to the needs of the individual family. Children are given toys and gifts along with mittens and scarfs. The dinners include everything necassary for the Christmas meal, and than some, including salad, dessert, popcorn, cookies, jams, pies, cranberries, fowl, potatoas and apples.

One hundred and forty-nine kids received presents through the program this year.

And behind the plate, Ernie Mikowski

by DAVE KNIGHT

As Christmas dinners go, this one had disintegrated into complete and total disaster. Ernie Mikowski wished he was watching the whole thing on television so he could switch channels.

Ernie sat at the head of table, vaguely aware of the arguing, complaining and general turmoil happening before him, yet detached from it. Ernie did not have the Christmas spirit.

Only five days before, his world had been blown to bits in the hallway of a Sarasota Springs Community College dormitory. It was there that he had anxiously made his way through a boisterous crowd to read a notice taped to the wall announcing the "Final Cut of the Fall, 1986 Jojo Halloran All-American Umpire Academy." Listed on the notice were 20 names.

Ernie's was not one of them.

He had fully expected to make the cut and be in the select group of aspiring big league umpires invited by the academy to return after the Christmas holidays for more intensive instruction and a chance to work some spring training camp games. His scores on written exams had been among the highest of the class and he was in much better physical shape than the most of the other 74 enrollees.

But scribbled on the bottom of his final evaluation was the painful verdict: "Not decisive enough. Lacks authority."

So now, with a northern Michigan winter storm rattling the windows of his Charlevoix County trailer home, Ernie sat sullenly at Christmas dinner without an appetite, without a job. He'd essentially gambled his future on umpire school, quitting his job at the foundry after seeing an ad in a dog-eared baseball magazine at the barbershop.

Big salary, lots of travel, half the year working baseball games, half the year off; life as a major league ump sounded mighty good to a 23-year old former high school All-state catcher for whom baseball had been life's only real passion.

His wife Shirley finally went along with the idea after Ernie promised her that after the holidays they'd be moving to Florida. There, he assured her, she could lounge around the pool while he was at the ballpark.

In fact, that is why she decided to host a big Christmas dinner — to celebrate their escape. The Mikowskis didn't usually make a big deal out of Christmas dinner because every time their two

Dave says this is his first attempt at fiction, although those who read the story will probably recognize the style as being much like the style of Dave's columns in the Courier, which he edited for five years.

Dave is a native of Wisconsin. He graduated from the School of Journalism at the University of Wisconsin and edited the Reedsburg Times-Press before coming to the Courier in 1980.

Wetlands comprise large portion of shoreline, lake planners told

by PEG OHLE

Ever hear of Angelica-Ensley, Epoufette, Kerston, Munuskcong, or Ruse?

You may have stepped on one or all of them because they are types of "Wetland Soils" found along the shores of Lake Charlevoix.

Altogether, there are 17 different types of soils in the wetlands areas as indicated in the Charlevoix County Soil & Water Conservation District study made several years ago. These wetlands take up 47,658 feet of shoreline, or 14.26 percent of shoreline area within 1,000 feet of the lake.

These figures were among those supplied to the Lake Charlevoix Planning Advisory Committee last week by Rod Cortright of the County Cooperative Extension Service, with the added information these wetlands could not support high intensity development.

Four other categories of soils were also studied. The second, labeled "Probable Wetland Soils" contains soils with such names as Bergland-Sims, Charlevoix-Kawkawlin, Roscommon, and Rudyard. There are 12 soil in this category along 49,858 feet of Lake Charlevoix and occupying 16.04 percent of the shoreline area.

The third category, labeled "Low Intensity with Off-Site Sewage Disposal", contains such soils as Au Gres, Iosco, Otisco, Rubicon, and Saugatuck, ten different ones in all. Soils in this category take up 27,928 feet of shoreline and occupy 12.32 percent of the area.

The fourth category, labeled "Low to Possible Moderate Intensity Development", is made up of soils like Alpena, Croswell, Ubly, and Wallace, a total of nine altogether. There are 114,448 feet of lake frontage of this type, occupying 28.61 percent of the area.

The fifth category is labeled "Low to High Intensity Development", with soil like Blue Lake, Deer Park-Dun Land, and Emmet-Onaway, nine different kinds. There are 66,356 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline in this category, occupying 27.08 percent of the area.

The sixth category covers areas where the soil conditions vary. There are 8,651 feet of shoreline in this category, occupying 1.64 percent of the area.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee will use this information in recommending possible uses of the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix in its final report, to be released next year. The committee is now meeting regularly to consider all aspects of the lake and its water shed. The next meeting is scheduled for January 15 at 6 p.m. in the Commissioners' Room of the County Building Annex.

INVESTING IN LAND

One of the nice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt.

For the typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 25% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long-term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment.

The key to a good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a good, local Realtor comes in. He has intimate knowledge of community needs, and can forecast, far better than the layman, what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

The event was climaxed by a visit from Santa who distributed gifts to the children. Refreshments were served.

At an earlier meeting, the state Grange princess, Michelle Swainston of the Kinney Grange of Byron Center, was a guest. In her office, she is charged with promoting the Grange program for youth. Weddings 'Round Town

by EDITH GILBERT

BACK TO BRIDGE STREET NEWS: The Magpie Ice Cream Parlor is open for the Holidays! They will be serving the same smooth concoctions as they did this summer, as well as Tom's Mom's Cookies. The Magpie is under the new management of Pam and Jim Holmes.

The Holmeses, who also own the Tom's Mom's cookie franchise in Mackinaw City, tell me they will be serving hot chocolate, and a limited menu to the skaters. The skaters? Why, the skaters who will be enjoying the new skating rink across the street in East Park! It opens as soon as weather permits. Who needs New York's Rockefeller Center?

Speaking of ice cream parlors, here's an inside scoop. Pam and Jim met three years ago, when he phoned Pam to inquire about a boat she had for sale. Jim was living in Trenton and Pam in Charlevoix. As the deal developed with subsequent phone calls, so did romance! They were married two years ago and have settled into the cute apartment above the ice cream parlor. Plans are set for remodeling the Magpie kitchen after the first of the year – we'll keep you informed.

MOST REMARKABLE coincidence, but it's true. Sally Berlage told me this herself. Daughter Kristen Lignell is living in San Francisco and working as a nurse at Children's Hospital. She was hoping to find someone to share the rent for her apartment.

Through mutual friends, a young man applied. He rang Chris's doorbell and when she opened the door, he notice a picture hanging on the wall in the entrance hall. "That's Charlevoix!" he said. "Yes, my parents live there," replied Chris. "So do mine!" said the young man. It turns out the two sets of parents live a block apart, on the north side. Sally's on Michigan Ave., and his at the Lake House just down the beach.

I DON'T KNOW what you've been up to this holiday season, but I've been up to my eyeballs with weddings! Not only are there three families on one block on Michigan Avenue planning six weddings, but my back door is ringing like jingle bells with people picking up invitations albums, and the front door is ringing with people picking up copies of "The Complete Wedding Planner."

In addition to the local activity the phone is ringing with long distance calls, and people I don't know are calling me to ask questions about where to hold receptions, how to handle seating arrangements, and placecards and tablesettings. To quote myself, "All wedding are the same, but no two weddings are alike!"

Some couples arrange a wedding ceremony and reception on only two weeks notice, while others take seven months to sort out all the details. Either way it's a lot of fun and fortunately the duration of the marriage is not dependent on the timely details of the wedding plans.

Budgeting for a wedding is a major concern in almost every instance. Someone recently told me of a bride, who spent $800 on a wedding gown and then asked her guests to "bring a dish to pass" to the reception! Incongruous.

This matter of the budget was also the subject of an article I clipped from the official Chinese newspaper while I was in Beijing. "Pressed by the traditional ideas and social customs, most couples in rural areas of Beijing feel obliged to spend large sums of money holding feasts to entertain guests.... To keep 'face' some couples borrow money and enter into marriage loaded with debts. It has become a common practice for the bride's family to demand betrothal gifts from the groom's family." Sound familiar?

It was of particular interest to me when I was in China to see a number of photography studios displaying large wedding portraits of a bride and groom in their store windows. I also saw western wedding gowns displayed next to Chinese brocaded wedding gowns in dress shops.

Although most couples, I was told, do not have a religious ceremony – they merely receive a license to marry from the government – there's always a family gathering with good food and fellowship to celebrate the occasion.

At this time of year, when families gather together to sing carols and to ring in the New Year, many couples also become engage or get married, and we all get involved in weddings. It's that way all over the world!

Christmas Greetings

Advent, the time of preparation for the coming of the Prince of Peace, has this year brought frightening revelations of government plots against other governments.

But people like ourselves the world over are seeing more clearly than their governments' the need to share our common interests and concerns – and to appreciate what a delightful world this might become if only we sought together to make it so.

The Courier believes the spirit of love and good will expressed with light touches by Marg and Chuck Duerr in their 1983 Christmas greeting are even more timely today. We are glad to send their wishes out to the world in the name of all of us here in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

It's time for hanging holly and for filling the wassail bowl
And getting the tree and stringing the lights – the usual rigmarole
Of setting the house in order for the time when, every year,
We welcome friends with wishes for God's Blessing and Good Cheer –
But this Christmastide is different, end our thoughts today embrace
The folks of many another land ... and color ... and faith ... and race,
For now, as never before, we see that the question is simply whether
We live in peace or die in war – but we're all going to do it together.

So these are the wishes we wish today
For our friends in lands so far away:

May Santa shower gifts on Guam ... Osaka ... and Botswana –
And Novosibirsk ... and Nottingham ... and Dacca, Prague and Ghana.

May skies be blue in Katmandu, and sunny in Curacao –
And Marrakech ... and Uttar Pradesh ... and Mecca and Mindanao.

May fig trees bloom in old Khartoum, and tulips bloom in Flanders;
May Lady Luck follow folks on Truk ... Liverpudlians and Netherlanders.

Let the band play on in Astrakhan – and the people dance till noon
In Mandalay ... and Azerbaijan ... and Stanleyville and Kowloon.

Good health attend each nameless friend in Zambia and Navarre –
And Inveraray ... and Londonderry ... Luzern ... and Zanzibar.

May showers be brief in Tenerife, and gentle in Rawlpindi;
Be it never too chilly in Piccadilly – or in Papua, too windy.

Oh, let life be grand in Swaziland, a veritable paradise. Oh,
Let it be sweet in Calcutta and Crete – and in Venice and Valparaiso!

May the goose hang high and the welkin ring as ale flows from the firkin
In Heidelberg ... Franz Josef Land ... and Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

May bright-eyed children bless the homes of Quemoy and Kwajalein –
And Guadalupe ... and Guadalcanal ... Calais ... and El Alamein.

May bumper crops be harvested in Sumatra and Silesia;
May stores be crammed with goodies in Croatia and Zambesia.

May speeches be witty in Ho Chi Minh City, and eloquent in Rangoon;
May they never bore one in Lahore ... or Seoul ... or Saskatoon.

A bow to the folks in the Falklands, and a nod to those in Nairobi –
And a cheery 'Good Day' to those in Marseilles, Carrara, Kuwait and Kobe.

May all go right on the isle of Wight ... and in the Scottish Highlands.
And a peaceful feeling descend on Darjeeling, and on the Galapagos Islands.

May strife be banished forevermore from Senegal and the Sudan;
And in every house by the side of the road may there live a friend to man.

From Aachen to Zywiec – from A to Z – the atlas alphabet
Lists homes of neighbors 'round the world who also know the threat
Of missiles poised in silos, aimed half a world away
At other missiles pointed back, just waiting for the day
When each shall fly its mission and turn in a blinding flash
The other's empty silo to radioactive ash
To drift about and mingle in a cloud that hides the sun –
And man has self-destructed, and our earthly course is run.

Oh, Father above, teach us how to love
And live in peace and joy ...
That's the wish that's wished for all the world

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

There haven't been many times during my long sojourn in the land of the free that I have been ashamed of my government.

But I am today.

I'm talking about President Reagan's response to President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua who persuaded the National Assembly to release American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus from prison last week.

Hasenfus, you'll remember, was the guy who survived the shooting down of an aircraft supplying Nicaragua's enemies – the Contras – earlier this year. Hasenfus, 45, was caught dead-to-rights and probably deserved every minute of a 30-year sentence imposed by a Nicaraguan tribunal.

Hasenfus was just lucky Nicaragua doesn't have the death penalty.

You'd almost think, wouldn't you, that Reagan would be tickled to secure the release of an American prisoner without having to cough up millions of dollars worth of American arms, as he did recently to win freedom for two prisoners in the Middle East.

Yet Reagan's only reaction to date has been a reaffirmation of his policy to continue to arm the Contras.

I cannot think of a more callous response to an act which appears to have been a genuine effort to ease tensions between Nicaragua and the United States.

The timing, of course, was pure cornball. After all, it is the Christmas season, a time of good cheer and warm fuzzies. The release also was timed to coincide with the seventh birthday of Hasenfus' son, Adam.

But so what?

If Ortega and his National Assembly made points throughout the world by freeing Hasenfus when they did, good for them. Mankind is badly in need of compassion in all seasons.

If Nicaragua were an out-and-out enemy, it would be different story. But the United States still maintains diplomatic relations with Nicaragua; American citizens still travel freely to and from that beleagured country; dozens of American groups are actively engaged in assisting the Ortega government with construction projects, manpower and Yankee dollars.

Millions upon millions of us would like to give Ortega a chance to offer his people some of the good things of life that have been denied them under generations of right-wing oligarchies and dictatorships, up to and including the regime of the late-but-not-lamented Anastasio Somoza.

Frankly, I think the Nicaraguan people deserve something better and I suspect Daniel Ortega just might be the fellow they need at this point in their history. If he leans to the left, so be it. Look at the miracles Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai were able to work in China.

If Reagan had half the humanity of Ortega, he would cancel the next arms shipment to the Contras, send his apologies to the people of Nicaragua for his abominable behavior in the past, and ask the leaders of that long-suffering country just what the United States can do to help Nicaragua achieve its goals.

And then he should do it.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Though the Bible doesn't mention him, a lot of people paint the innkeeper of Bethlehem as a villain because he turned Mary and Joseph away. Take a few moments to consider the circumstances of that busy week and, if you think about it, I don't see how we can blame the innkeeper.

The prophets had the Jewish people anticipating the Messiah's coming for a long time. The nature of his coming, his reign, even the place of his birth had been foretold. But somehow, they never grasped that God was sending him to win the hearts and lives of men. They had been mistakenly taught to look for a general at the head of a conquering army.

When Mary and Joseph came to the door, how was the innkeeper to know? One expectant mother looked like another to him. How was he to know who this baby would grow up to be?

Maybe the innkeeper just didn't want Jesus. It is a possibility. The sleepy little village had been turned into a bustling city by the emperor's decree that all return to their birthplace to be taxed. Instead of begging for business, he had a full house every day. He didn't need Mary and Joseph. They needed him. He could name his own terms. Some people today try to do that with God. You can't.

Some suggest maybe he didn't want to get involved. A baby being born with all the fuss and noise that came with it might be bad for business. In those days, an inn was very much a social establishment. He wouldn't have been the first one to feel that way.

Then again, the innkeeper may have done them a favor by putting them in the stable. The stable was clean and warm. Wood for a fire, water near by, and all the intimacy and privacy needed for such a miraculous event were right there. In the chaotic situation in Bethlehem that night, they were led to a rare island of peace and serenity. Because the innkeeper spent the extra time with them to open his stable, we have something greater open to us, oneness with God.

We've really been too hard on the innkeeper down through the ages. At least he did something. He did not turn the young couple away. What will you do? The Lord of Lords is knocking at your heart's door this Christmas season. Don't turn him away.

Jan Glass' watercolor, Season's Bounty, which was selected for the Detroit Institute of Arts show.

Glass' watercolor picked for exhibit

Charlevoix artist Janis Glass has had one of her watercolors, Season's Bounty, selected for the Art and Flowers Traveling Poster Exhibition of the Founders Society-Detroit Institute of Arts.

Glass' work was among only 20 selected for the finals.

Artists from throughout Michigan submitted work for the juried competition. Winner of the $1,000 first-place prize was Noreen Jordan of Spring Lake for her watercolor, Trillium Grandiflora.

Glass was the only finalist chosen from northern Michigan.

The festival poster competition is part of "Art and Flowers: A Festival of Spring" scheduled for April 29, 30, May 1 and 2, 1987 at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Finalists in the poster competition will be shown at various locations in the tri-county area from February through April.

German sculpture still on display

Sculpture, from the Detroit Institute of Arts collection of German Expressionist art will be on display through Jan. 6, 1987 at the McCune Community Arts Center, Petoskey.

The exhibit features the works of Barlach, Beckmann, Beling, Kolbe, Lembruck, Marcks, Sheibe and Sintenis.

The art objects consist of small-scale sculptures of bronze, plaster, terra-cotta and porcelain.

The movement known as German Expressionism was a great influence on art in Germany from 1918 to 1933. Expressionism applied anti-academic emotional power to art works yet added an element of social commentary.

The German Expressionists were motivated to affirm the spiritual aspects of human life. They desired to improve the human condition through music, film, design and architecture, as well as through painting, sculpture and graphic arts.

Much of the German Expressionist works were destroyed during the 1930s when Hitler declared them degenerate and un-German.

The Detroit Institute of Arts collection is among the largest outside of Germany, due mainly to the interest of William R. Valentine, native of Germany and former director of the museum.

Female jail numbers climb

The female population of the Charlevoix County jail inched up a little in November, when seven women were booked into the jail. That is an increase over the three in October and five in September.

Most women were sentenced to jail for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of alcohol or violating probation orders.

Men still outnumber women in jail bookings. Sixty-one men were booked in November, 45 in October, and 42 in September, according to a report from the Sheriff's Department.

Good year at Rainbow Shoppe shared with community groups

The Rainbow Shoppe, an organization sponsored by area churches which runs a resale store at Van Pelt Place, has announced contributions to a variety of other area programs.

"It was a very good year for the Rainbow Shoppe in 1986," Rita Orlowski, a Rainbow Shoppe board member said. "Because of this, we were able to reach out just a little more from last year."

Among the contributions was a check for $2,000 to the Sunshine Club, an after-school program for latchkey children run by the Community Reformed Church.

The Rainbow Shoppe also supplied flood victims in southern Michigan with a van full of clothing and a check for $1,000.

Other contributions included $200 to the Charlevoix Childrens Choir and $1,000 to the Women's Resource Center. The Northern Michigan Dyslexia Center was given $2,500 for use in Charlevoix.

The Rainbow Shoppe also has given $100 per month to the Charlevoix Senior Center and donated $1,200 to the Community Food Pantry Christmas Food Project.

The Shoppe also recently announced a $10,000 grant to the newly organized Charlevoix Community Center.

"This is what the Rainbow Shoppe is all about, extending assistance to worthy nonprofit organizations as we do the Lord's work," Orlowski said. "As this year is drawing to a close, our most sincere thank you to all who supported the Rainbow Shoppe in the past."

TO PURCHASE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES AT 7-ELEVEN.

COME OF AGE.

Alcohol abuse is a serious problem, particularly among people who are not of legal drinking age. The 7-Eleven stores in this area want to help do something about this problem. We want to assure that the laws regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages to those not of legal drinking age are upheld in our stores. We are asking our customers who are age twenty-five and younger to have a driver's license or military identification available for inspection when purchasing alcoholic beverages from us.

We try to be good neighbors and to live up to our responsibilities as a corporate citizen. This is not the first time we have been involved in community concerns. We've been involved with you in the Mothers March of Dimes. We enlisted your aid in the fight against muscular dystrophy and, through your generosity, 7-Eleven stores have raised over $35 million to fight this crippling disease.

Now we ask your cooperation and support in helping us adhere to the law. If you come to 7-Eleven to purchase alcoholic beverages, please come of age.

Rayders pick up two important league victories

Comeback downs Northmen

Charlevoix barely held off an upset minded Petoskey team for three quarters Friday before it took control and went on to win 68-58.

The Rayders and Northmen traded leads throughout the fast-paced first half. Charlevoix's Scott DeYoung and Dan Drury both scored eight points in the first stanza to give the team a 20-17 first-quarter lead.

In the second quarter Charlevoix maintained a three-point margin with just over two minutes left in the half, but the Northmen rallied to take a 37-36 lead at intermission. Petoskey's Dave Hudson scored 12 of his 18 first-half points in the second period, including his team's last eight points.

"At halftime we talked about turning the game around with our defense because the offense was in high gear," Rayder coach Dave Smith said. "Our man-to-man defense did it, plus we wanted to stay away from Hudson. He killed us in the second quarter."

Despite the Rayders' resolve, Petoskey widened the lead early in the second half to 47-40 and limiting the Rayders to four points for over four minutes.

Then Smith inserted Owen Phillips and Roger Smith into the lineup. Phillips dropped three baskets and Smith's two-pointer pushed Charlevoix in front to stay at 48-47 with 50 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

The Rayders were up 50-47 at the start of the last period and they increased the margin to 58-49 and 62-51 before a last Petoskey surge cut the lead to 62-55 with 1:50 left.

Charlevoix then pulled away for good, dominating their opponent on the offensive boards.

DeYoung led Charlevoix with 22 points on the night, all on field goals. Drury finished with 14 and Jim Ciuk had 10.

Charlevoix had a 27-25 edge in rebounds. DeYoung had nine and Smith six. Charlevoix was 31 of 68 from the floor and Petoskey 25 of 55.

Charlevoix committed only seven turnovers to 16 for Petoskey.

"Owen Phillips really gave us a lift and that helped get us back into it," Smith said of the late third-period surge. "Our bench did a real good job all night."

The Rayders are now 4-1 overall and 2-1 in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference play. They take on Cheboygan Jan. 9 at the Charlevoix gym.

The Rayder defense slowed down the Petoskey offense in the second half.

JVs roll over Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayder JVs came through with a 60-34 win over the young Petoskey Northmen in a game played here Friday.

The Rayders were in control all the way, holding the visitors scoreless in the third quarter and outscoring them 18-11 in the final period as Coach Dick Swenor emptied the bench.

The Rayders went ahead 13-8 in the first quarter. Petoskey trimmed the lead to three points at halftime, 26-23.

Charlevoix outscored the visitors 22-11 from the floor and capitalized on Petoskey's personal fouls, connecting on 16 of 29 while committing 12 personal fouls. The Northmen had eight of 11 from the line.

Shawn Putman with 17 points paced the scoring. Scott Miller added 13. Frank Brunner and Jeff DeGroot had eight points each for Petoskey.

Depot holds on to lead

The Depot of Boyne City, defending champion in the Charlevoix Independent Basketball A league, continues to hold on to first place as the season moves toward the halfway point.

In the only games played last week, the Depot defeated Nanny's 96-62; Pepsi Cola of Petoskey remained in second place after winning over Buday's NCE 98-71 and Carson Lumber upset Dr. Dave's Green Grinders 67-64 to move into a third place tie with their victim.

In the Depot-Nanny's game, five players were in double figures for the victors who headed Nanny's 18-11, 48-20 and 68-40 by quarters. Dean Hicks led the pack with 30 points followed by Tim Hartwick with 21, Tony Williams 15, Tom Beyer 12 and Rob Spencer with 10. Tom Steffen had 28, Mike Spencer 12, and Brad Bernedt and Darrell VanLoo 10 each.

After trailing 16-14 at the end of the first quarter, Pepsi of Petoskey got the hot hand to outscore Buday's 45-26 at halftime and 66-44 at the three-quarter mark before putting away the game by a wide margin.

Mike Schmidt with 25 points, Mark Long with 24, Cliff Haas with 23 and Woody Pearson with 14 were the top scorers. Tex Drenth had 26 and Randy Holecheck had 22 to lead Buday's.

The Carson-Green Grinder game was a seesaw battle with Carson taking an 18-15 lead which they lost to the Grinders 37-29 at halftime. Carson came back 51-43 going into the final period.

Tim Carey had 23 and Vince Left 17 for Carson. Dick Swenor was the top scorer in the game with 25 for the Grinders.

Wrestlers lackluster in St. Ignace Invitational

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen placed eighth among the nine teams entered in the St. Ignace Invitational tournament Saturday.

The Rayders tallied 54 points in the tourney won by Gladstone with 212 points. Kalkaska followed with 127; Grayling and St. Ignace tied with 105½; Manistique 92; Sault Ste. Marie 68; Onaway 56 and Cheboygan in last place with 32.

The Rayders gave up five weight classes going into the tournament as the result of injuries, the flu and Christmas break. Among those missing were three of the better wrestlers, Coach Greg Bryan. "Added to that, we always seem to do badly in the St. Ignace tournament," Bryan commented.

Three Rayder grapplers placed in the tournament. Jamie Montieth (145) placed third with three wins and a loss and Derek Dutcher (198) and Bill Marquardt (hvy.wt) placed second with 2-1 records.

Coming out of the meet with 1-2 records were Scott Novotny (112), Jason Whitley (138) and Jim Tilton (185). Brian Livingston (119) had an 0-2 record and Tony Aleccia (167) 0-1.

Bryan said the team showed a lack of intensity and that the team's mental preparation was inadequate. He added that the young wrestlers' lack of experience in tournament competition may have led to their lackluster performance.

The bright spot in the tournament was the performance of Montieth who was unseeded in a tough weight class. He put on an especially strong showing to take third place and to establish himself as a strong contender in his weight class. Being only a sophomore, he should improve after this confidence-building experience and emerge a strong wrestler, Bryan said.

Dutcher (198) walked through his first two matches and lost by a 6-3 decision to Erik Pulfrey, a strong contender from the Soo in the third. Marquardt in the heavyweight class lost to Chris Miron from Gladstone in the finals 4-1. It was another close match. In both Dutcher's and Marquardt's matches failed take-down attacks proved costly Bryan said.

Lindberg moves up in B league

Paul Lindberg, Inc., moved into second place in B league standings in the Charlevoix Independent League Wednesday after defeating Dairy Queen 89-43 while Marsh Construction toppled Rich's Topside 55-43.

Dave Norton scored 31 points, Mike Crain 20, Gale Sheldon and Ron Cox 14 each and Don Smith 10 as Lindberg rolled over the DQ 18-3, 26-14, 64-29 by quarters. Steve Leazier had 10 points for Dairy Queen.

It was Marsh Construction all the way as the Builders headed Topside 12-10, 28-16 and 37-27 by quarters.

Clay Jones scored 16 points and Ray LaVoie and Jeff Drury had 14 points each for the victors. Dave Cole had 19 points for Topside.

This makes the final game in the league's 1986 section of the schedule.

When play is resumed on Jan. 7, First State Bank will meet Rich's Topside and Dairy Queen will take on Marsh Construction.

Boyne City blown out

The Rayders brought Boyne City back to earth with a loud thud on Tuesday, Dec. 16, as they routed the Ramblers 78-54.

Boyne City entered the game sky high after defeating defending Michigan-Huron Shores Conference champion Cheboygan four days before.

It was the 14th straight loss to Charlevoix for the Ramblers, a losing streak that dates back to 1981.

The teams started out well matched in the early going, with Boyne City taking an early 11-6 lead midway through the first stanza. Charlevoix evened things up 15-15 at the end of the period.

The Rayders took the lead for good on their first possession of the second quarter as reserve Roger Smith sank a 15-footer. Scott DeYoung led the Rayder charge with 12 points in the period and at the half it was Charlevoix in front 37-31.

The Rayders broke things open in the second half as Jim Ciuk led a 21-1 assault with repeated steals.

In the final four minutes of the third quarter, Charlevoix outscored Boyne 10-2. The Rayders secured the victory with a 22-7 margin in the quarter.

In the fourth period, Boyne played Charlevoix closer, but could not make up the margin.

Scott DeYoung led the Rayder scoring with 20 points. Drury had 12, Ciuk 11, Chad DeVries 8 and Smith 7. Other Charlevoix scorers included Mark LaBlance and Joe Miller with 6 each and Jim Gibbs and Owen Phillips with 4 each.

DeYoung led the rebounding with 13. DeVries had 9 boards.

Young Rayders win

The Charlevoix Rayder JVs posted a 53-44 win over the Boyne City Ramblers in a game played on the latter's floor Thursday night.

The game got off to a slow start with the young Rayders taking a 9-6 first quarter lead. As the second quarter got underway, the tempo picked up and the Rayders increased their margin to 24-14 at halftime and 40-28 going into the final period. Boyne City outpointed Charlevoix 16-13 in the fourth quarter to cut their margin of victory to 11 points.

Charlevoix outscored their hosts 21-14 from the floor and had only 11 of 16 from the line while Boyne City connected on 16 of 27 free throws. The Rayders had 23 personal fouls. The Ramblers had 20.

Shawn Putman paced the scoring with 21 points with Bob Jess adding 10. Keith Harvey had 13 points and Scott Snyder 10 for Boyne City.

Frosh lose two games

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball team dropped two games last week, losing to Boyne City 56-52 on Monday and to Petoskey 50-38 on Thursday.

In the Boyne City game, the young Ramblers took an 11-9 first-quarter lead and increased it to 34-25 before the Rayders were able to outscore their opponent 13-8 in the third quarter to cut the lead to 42-38. Both teams scored 14 points in the final stanza to give the Ramblers a four point win.

Scott Hammontree had 21 points and Jim Abney 10 for the Ramblers. Scott Miller had 12 points, Chad DeYoung and Jason Corwin 11 points each, and Webb Friedly 10 for Charlevoix.

The story was repeated in the Petoskey game when the Northmen went ahead 17-12, held on 21-18 at halftime nad 34-26 at the three-quarter mark.

Steve Behan had 20 points, Toby McFarland and Don Spencley 10 for Petoskey. Miller had 14 points for Charlevoix.

The young Rayders will return to the court on Jan. 8 when they travel to Cheboygan.

DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED CAN RUIN YOUR HOLIDAY FUN.

This holiday season is time of joy and merriment, and for many, a time when friends gather for a drink or two.

But after the party, don't get behind the wheel. Drinking and driving is just too dangerous ... for yourself and for others.

Charlevoix County has a reputation for being tough on drunk drivers. The least impaired driving can cost you is $310.00 in fines and costs and three days in jail; it could cost you a life.

THEREFORE, IF YOU DRINK, DON'T DRIVE;
IF YOU'RE THE DESIGNATED DRIVER, DON'T DRINK.

It's up to you to keep Charlevoix safe for us all.

Water's Edge decision to be appealed upland alternatives available to build on. The governmental agencies also rejected First Centrum Corp.'s mitigation plan to create an additional 8.9 acres of wetland on a site west of the Charlevoix airport to replace the wetlands destroyed as a result of construction.

The controversial Water's Edge project was the subject of a mediated agreement between the developer, environmentalists and township officials. The mediated settlement limited construction to a maximum of 135 units, with no more than 45 of them on the first 600 feet from the shoreline.

Oelschlaeger charged that the mediated settlement was no longer in effect because of the rejection of the wetlands permits (see related story).

"We will be starting construction in the spring regardless," Oelschlaeger said. "We can certainly do 45 units and the marina."

He said the construction "won't be according to the site plan because the site plan is thrown out by the DNR decision."

Oelschlaeger said he would submit a new site plan to the Charlevoix Township planning commission, possibly as early as January.

Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said a meeting had been scheduled with the township planning group last week by First Centrum but was cancelled. Stroud said he had not yet heard of any plans for First Centrum to appear before the zoning board.

"The township board meetings are open," Stroud said. "I don't know if we'll consider anything and I have no idea what they have to offer."

The denial of permits by the DNR and Corps show, Stroud said, "who's really running the lakeshore."

Stroud said he felt the township had been forced into an unfair position, spending considerable time and effort on rezoning and the mediated settlement, only to have it overturned by the government. "I see no reason to get into this again until we have a legal statement as to who has charge of all of this," Stroud said.

OELSCHLAEGER CHARGED that the DNR's and Corps' denial of permits did not take into consideration the complexities of the issue. "What really is shortsighted," he said, "is the decision to build all of the units on the lakefront.

"It was not a very enlightened decision," he said. "Had we not had the lakefrontage (which consists of a filled area not subject to wetland control) I'm confident we would have worked out a reasonable settlement in the wetlands."

He also criticized the DNR and the Corps for rejecting outright the mitigation plan. What was presented, Oelschlaeger said, was merely a conceptual proposal of one thing that could be done to mitigate the wetlands loss. "We wanted to work with the DNR and the Corps on mitigation," he added.

On the one hand, the agencies misrepresented the mitigation proposal as a fixed, final plan, he said. On the other, they didn't seriously consider it because of the alternative upland building site.

to know what they are dealing with. They make an agreement and break it."

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of the development company, First Centrum Corp., said the site plan agreed to in mediation is no longer in effect because of the DNR's decision. "There was a settlement on the whole project and we're certainly not going to be limited to 45 units," he said.

Oelschlaeger indicated his company would present new sight plans calling for more lakefront condominiums to the Charlevoix Township planning commission.

Oelschlaeger and Neilson also signed another agreement on May 12 which incorporated the mediated settlement and additional restrictions on the development.

That document was created after the WATCH board objected to the terms of the mediated settlement. The May 12 document states, in part, "Any material change in a term and condition contained both in the site plan, the mediation agreement or this agreement shall not be implemented until approved by WATCH."

"If they want a court fight, they'll get it," Neilson said.

Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH, charged that the wetlands decision had nothing to do with the mediated settlement. "We sat down and negotiated an agreement and decided the DNR would decide what was done with the wetlands," he said.

Puhl said WATCH never would have agreed to the mediation terms if there had not been a clear distinction between the limit on the 45 units on the lakefront and the 90 units on the wetland.

"Now that the DNR has acted and it is not in their favor, they want to say to hell with the agreement, let's build what we want."

Puhl said that by agreeing to the mediation, the environmental groups gave up their right to question the development at the DNR-Corps hearing and also passed by the date at which they could call for another referendum on the rezoning of the property to Planned Unit Development (PUD)."

"WATCH and ALERT and other people are depending on this agreement to stay the way it is," Puhl said. "If not, we are prepared to take it to court."

Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township and a member of the mediation team, said "I feel the negotiation is down the drain. I don't see how they can hold to the 45 (lakefront condos) unless they hold to the other."

He did, however, recall that there had been discussion of limiting the frontage to 45 units regardless of the DNR decision. "I guess it might have been in there," he said.

Ward Kuhn, an attorney representing WATCH, said the mediated agreement "probably has no legal standing, but the written agreement between WATCH and the developer (May 12) made it a contract."

The terms of the mediated agreement were included as a part of that contract, Kuhn said.

families got together, the result was chaos. At the last big family gathering, Ernie's sister's husband Dale got drunk and spilled a can of beer on Shirley's grandmother ... who then swung at Dale with her cane but missed and hit Ernie right in the crotch.

Ernie had never gotten along too well with his in-laws. His mother-in-law in particular considered him a slow-witted sloth who kept putting off having children because they'd interfere with his softball leagues. When Shirley told her mother about what happened at umpire school, her mother just shook her head and said, "Not decisive enough? Lacks authority? Why, I've known that all along! Why'd the darn fool have to go to Florida for someone to tell him?"

Shirley thought about calling off the Christmas dinner when Ernie came back from Florda with the bad news. But Ernie's sister and Dale and their two children were planning to come up from Detroit and Dale had already arranged his vacation time. Dale made a point to tell her they were spending $8 a night to board their dog, Sluggo, a black and white, short-haired mongrel with a knack for survival but little else. On his last visit north, Sluggo urinated all over Ernie's new .12 gauge shotgun which had been left leaning against the back door. Could Ernie have brought himself to touch the gun, the dog would have been dispatched on the spot.

So it was with deep dread that Ernie anticipated Christmas Day, 1986. And by suppertime that day, his worst fears had pretty much been fulfilled.

Things had gone sour early: as Ernie's sister and family pulled up in the driveway, the first one out of the car was Sluggo. Dale explained that when the boarding kennel found out Sluggo had not had a vaccination of any kind in five years — or a flea bath — they wouldn't even let him in the door.

"He'll be okay," said Dale, "Just put a little beer in a dish for him and he'll keep still."

An icy rain was just beginning to fall when Shirley's parents arrived. As her mother climbed the trailer's front steps carrying a pumpkin pie, she hit a slick spot, kicked like a Rockette, grabbed for the railing and sent the pie sailing across the yard like a Frisbee.

"That's okay, Mom," said Shirley, "We'll make some instant pudding."

Despite the maelstrom of the day — Dale swilling beer and belching, Ernie's mother-in-law harassing him mercilessly about umpire school, the two kids tipping over the Christmas tree — Shirley actually did a fine job on the dinner. Meal time came and people started squeezing into their seats around the crowded table. Shirley placed bowl after steaming bowl on the table. Sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, green peas, stuffing, gravy, dinner rolls ... and finally a stout, brown turkey which she placed in front of Ernie.

"You're letting Mr. Indecisive carve the turkey?," Shirley's mother said incredulously, "I hope he can make up his mind which hand to hold the knife in."

Ernie felt an urge to grab the knife right then and there — with his throwing hand. But he suppressed it, just as he had suppressed almost every strong feeling he'd ever had.

Fact is, she was right. Ernie often had trouble deciding a course of action. His disposition was mild to a fault. Even as indignity after indignity was being laid upon him on this, the holiest of days, he couldn't bring himself to rebel, to strike back, to stand up for himself. His dream of a career as a major league umpire was in ashes. Now the cruel realization that he never did have the guts, the right stuff, was being rubbed in his nose. It was not the sort of Christmas one dreams of.

Ernie had shown promise as a young ballplayer. A strong arm and sharp batting eye made him an immediate Little League standout. In high school he twice led his team to the Class C Michigan state finals, no small accomplishment for a northern, rural school. Major league scouts sent to observe him liked Ernie's speed, strength, and talent but one thing bothered them: his apparent complacency. He never got excited when his team won nor noticeably down when they lost. He walked away calmly from called third strikes and never said a word about blown calls by the umpire.

"Not much spirit. No spark. Kind of a wimp at times," the scouts jotted in their notebooks.

After graduation, Ernie went to a couple open tryout camps held by the Detroit Tigers in Traverse City but nothing ever came of them. He got married and joined most of his classmates going to work at the foundry. During the summers he played in two softball leagues and umpired for a third. It was the umpiring he really loved. People said he was the best, fairest ump in town, even if he was a little timid. Players who were rough on some of the other umpires usually took it easy on Ernie. Somehow there just wasn't the same satisfaction spitting on the shoes of a guy who didn't spit back.

The night after he saw the ad for Jojo Halloran's All-American Umpire Academy, Ernie dreamt of himself behind the plate at Tiger Stadium, checking Sparky Anderson's lineup card and chatting with Lance Parrish between pitches. It took a few months to make up his mind but finally, on a chilly day in November, Shirley drove him to Petoskey where he kissed her and boarded a bus for Sarasota Springs.

That was the high point of Ernie's life. Now, less than two months later, he was plummeting to an all-time low. Here he was, master of the house, sitting at the head of his own table for Christmas dinner ... helplessly watching a bad situation get worse.

"Mommy, Donny's throwing peas at me," shrieked Ernie's niece.

"Heather started it," snapped Donny.

"Both of you stop," said Ernie's sister. "It's Christmas Day. That's no way to act."

Dale hoisted a beer, burped and said, "Ahh, let 'em have fun."

Shirley's mother was having trouble pulling her chair up to the table so Dale got up to give her what he thought was a gentle shove. She lurched into the table jangling glasses and sloshing gravy all over the tablecloth.

"Get away from me you big idiot," she howled, "Most people get presents on Christmas Day. I get whiplash!"

With all the commotion, nobody noticed that Sluggo's dish of beer was empty and that he was venturing closer to the table with a new boldness. The smell of roast turkey was irresistible. Drawn like a magnet, the dog sidled up to the platter sitting near the edge of the table.

"Mommy, Mommy, Sluggo's got a drumstick," screamed Donny.

Dale leapt up, made a clumsy lunge at the drunken dog and came up clutching the turkey leg. Sluggo slunk back to a corner.

"Get that dog out of here!" cried Ernie's sister.

"He's okay, just hungry," said Dale.

"I say put the mangy mutt out," said Shirley's mother.

"It's cold and raining outside. Let him stay," whined Heather.

"I really think Sluggo should go out," said Shirley.

"No, no," cried Donny, "I want him to stay!"

Ernie rose from his seat so slowly, so deliberately that everyone stopped talking and stared at him. He stepped forward with his left foot, cocked his right arm and shot if forward in a violent throwing motion.

"HE'S OUTTA HERE!" roared Ernie in a voice that nobody have ever heard come from Ernie before. Sluggo bolted for the door so fast it flew open when he hit it, sending the dog tumbling down the steps. Everyone was still staring at Ernie as he stomped over, closed the door and stomped back to the table.

"NOW LET'S PRAY!" he commanded.

All heads bowed smartly and hands came together so fast they made a gentle clapping sound.

Groundwater contamination addressed by Health Department

by PEG OHLE

District Health Department No. 3 is engaged in a program to educate the general public as well as local units of government on the problems and dangers of ground water contamination.

"We are trying to make people aware of the problem. We have to provide direction, perhaps prepare a check list or guidelines so people will know what to look for and how to handle it", Chief Sanitarian Dean Mikulski explained.

In talks before township boards and city councils, Sanitarian Larry Levengood has suggested they take possible ground water contamination into consideration when issuing zoning permits for various types of industry, or even small businesses like filling stations and dry cleaning plants. Such "clean" operations like high tech industries can also often produce contaminants, Levengood said.

"Also, some sites are of more concern than others", Levengood continued, "based on soil types, geology, and neighboring wells, among other things".

Even with private individuals, disposing of such things as household cleaners and petroleum products could cause ground water contamination.

Levengood said his long-term thinking includes local ordinances, perhaps made part of zoning ordinances, which would address means of preventing or at least minimizing ground water contamination.

Mikulski expressed the thought that, unlike the Department of Natural Resources, the Health Department should take health "risks" into consideration when approving or disapproving the use of building sites or location of certain activities that could contaminate the surrounding area. "They (the DNR) are concerned only with being sure that people are abiding by their rules and regulations. We (the Health Department) should look further into anything that might be a health hazard at a given site, or even create a health hazard somewhere else".

Ground water contamination is not new to Charlevoix County especially the City of Charlevoix, where, a few years ago, well water was found to be contaminated with the chemical TCE, suspected of causing cancer. This discovery resulted in drilling many monitoring wells around the city in an attempt to discover the sources of the chemical. The original source was not found, but contamination was found in ground water in various parts of the city. As a result, Charlevoix is now installing a new system which will draw water from Lake Michigan, rather than from ground wells.

The city is now on a list to receive superfund cleanup monies from the government to find and eliminate contamination sources.

In the process of drilling to find sources of ground water contamination in Charlevoix, two sites of concentrated contamination were found. They are the former Art's Dry Cleaners on Antrim Street, and the former Charlevoix Chemical Company on Martin Road. They are on a list for contamination evaluation by government authorities.

Also on the above list are a site in Bay Shore in Hayes Township and the East Jordan Disposal Site (now closed).

Several sites around the county are on a "Group II List" for contamination evaluation by government authorities. "It doesn't take much to get on this list, and some of the problems no longer exist", Levengood cautioned. "Take, for instance, the Charlevoix County Road Commission grounds on Shaw Road. They found a trace of chloride there from salt piles they had 12 years ago".

Other contamination sites in the county listed in Group II are: the Boyne City Landfill in Evangeline Township (now closed); the former Howe Leather Sludge Bed Area in Evangeline Township; Main Street in Walloon Lake Village; Altair Stamping Company in Boyne Valley Township; East Jordan Tool and Die in South Arm Township; Harbor Industries in Charlevoix; Tampac Tool Co. in Charlevoix; Hooker Cleaners in Charlevoix; DME Company in Charlevoix; former City Dump in Charlevoix; and the above-mentioned Road Commission site.

The list duly notes that these site names are for identification only and are not necessarily parties responsible for contamination.

While ground water contamination from commercial sources, such as those mentioned above can cause problems, so can contamination from average household products. Recently the West Michigan Environmental Action Council Education Foundation (Grand Rapids) prepared a handbook in which are listed many common household products which could contaminate the ground water if improperly disposed of, especially if they are dumped into septic systems.

Some of the products mentioned are: Ammonia-based cleaners, chlorine bleach, floor polish, antifreeze and coolants, disenfectants, gasoline, herbicides, moth balls, rug cleaners, photographic chemicals, rat poison, septic tank degreaser containing solvents, etc., etc.

United Way exceeds goal for 1986

The United Way of Charlevoix received pledges totalling $40,500 during its now-completed 1987 fund-raising campaign. The pledge total far exceeded the campaign's goal of $35,000.

"I would like to thank all of the people who worked so hard to make this year's campaign such a success," said Robert J. Rajewski, campaign chairman. "Because of that success, the agencies we support will be able to continue to provide their important services to the community."

Over half of the pledges received during the campaign came from employees of local industries, primarily through the use of payroll deductions and from corporate gifts.

Ninety-two percent of the money collected in the local campaign stays in the Charlevoix and East Jordan area. The remaining funds go to the national agency to support medical research and other national programs.

City to investigate cable TV ownership

City Council agreed Monday night at a working session to have City Manager Michael Wiesner explore the costs of a feasibility study for a city-owned cable television operation.

Council was presented with a request from Bayshore Cablevision to allow Bayshore a nonexclusive franchise to operate in Charlevoix. Bayshore currently does business in rural areas between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

John W. Kintz III, owner of Bayshore Cablevision, told council he would offer city residents a 12 channel basic package for $10.70 per month, with an optional 6-channel extended basic package for an additional $6 per month.

Charlevoix is currently served by Northern Cable TV. Council recently rejected a proposal from Northern Cable to install two new satellite dishes at Mt. McSauba and to expand its electronics building.

Council objected to Northern's plans to raise rates effective May 1 from $12 per month to $14.95. Northern plans to expand its basic package to include six new channels one month prior to the rate change. The company said it would raise the rates regardless of whether council approved the new equipment.

On Monday, Northern told the Courier it still planned to offer the six new channels, which include PASS and American Movie Classics, but was unsure of how it would achieve the necessary satellite coverage.

Several councilmen reacted favorably to the competitive package offered by Bayshore Cablevision. "This certainly is more reasonable," Councilman Robert Timms said of the proposal. Other councilmen said they approved of not including the six new channels as part of the basic price, thus keeping costs down.

While it reacted favorably to the proposal, council tabled any action on a deal with Bayshore until the city could investigate the cost of doing a feasibility study for its own cable operation.

Wiesner said he had spoken with the city's electrical consultant and believed a feasibility study could be done for some $5,000. Installing a cable system might cost between $500,000 and $1 million, Wiesner speculated.

"I would anticipate in general terms we could be competitive," he said. "A lot of the fixed cost is already built into the system."

Council will take up the subject at its mid-January working session.

Evidence recovered from sunken tug

Several major pieces of equipment has been recovered along with a 10x10 foot section of the roof of the 32-foot tug, Razel Bros. which sank in Lake Michigan northwest of Whiskey Island in the Beaver group on Aug. 20 following a collision with the Yugoslavian freighter, Jablanica.

A team of commercial divers representing the Yugoslavian government, owners of the ship, recovered numerous items which were then seized by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to be held as evidence in a pending case against the ship's owner being brought by the families of the three men lost in the accident.

During earlier salvage efforts on Nov. 18, the Sheriff's Department found that the vessel, resting on the bottom in 45 feet of water, had been severely damaged since it sank. There was no explanation for the damage incurred after the accident.

The most recent salvage efforts resulted in the recovery of two depth finders, one Loran system, one magnetic compass, a ship's wheel equipped with an automatic pilot system, one radar unit and the 10x10 section of the roof that extended over the length of the tug.

The owners, Russell King, 31, and Edward Perkins, 45 of Naubinway, and an employee, Kurt Peterson, 27, of Manistique were lost in the accident which occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 20, as the trio was apparently lifting nets. Their fishing tug, Razel Bros., sank when it was apparently swamped by the 620 foot Jablanica.

The team of two divers from Cheboygan conducted the salvage operation from a barge owned by the pair's employer, Durocher Dredging and Salvaging Co., of Cheboygan. The barge was equipped with a crane. A second barge, the American Girl out of St. James, Beaver Island, was engaged to assist in the salvage operation.

Financial aid seminar planned for college bound

A workshop on financial aid for college has been scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 8, at the Charlevoix High School study hall at 7 p.m.

Clifford Denay, Director of Financial Aid at North Central Michigan College, along with Toni Felter and Charles Bentley of the high school counseling staff, will conduct the workshop for the benefit of college-bound high school juniors and seniors and their parents.

"With the cost of attending college increasing annually, the workshop is an effort to offer parents of college-bound students an opportunity to learn what financial assistance might be available," Bentley said in announcing the event. With attendance at a public four-year college ranging from $5,800 to $7,900 and private schools from $9,000 to $14,000 per year, the majority of families are unable to afford that kind of expenditure without some sort of planning and assistance, Bentley added.

Topics to be discussed at the workshop will include the Pell Grant, Parent Loan Program, Nation Direct Student Loan, and college work study.

The process for applying for financial aid will be covered as well as the various forms that can be used to enter the process.

A program on the Apple microcomputer will be available to assist families in gaining an estimate of the expected family contribution. The basis for financial aid is the tax year previous to college application. Therefore, parents are encouraged to bring an estimate of the 1986 tax information or a copy of the 1985 tax statement for a less accurate estimate.

In either case, the following information is needed to provide an expected family contribution: adjusted gross income; taxes paid; mother's wages; father's wages; IRA-Keogh payments; married couple deduction; untaxed income; student income tax paid; estimated student income for 1986; student assets and savings; parents cash and savings; market value of home and mortgage balance; other investments and debts; and the value of business or farm and the debt against it.

All college-bound juniors and seniors and their parents are encouraged to attend this program. A substantial amount of time will be allowed for questions and answers.

For further information call Bentley at the Student Service Office at the Charlevoix High School, 547-3226.

Charges against McGoff dismissed by judge

Federal charges that publisher John McGoff failed to register as a foreign agent of the government of South Africa were dismissed when a judge ruled Dec. 19 the five-year statute of limitations on such prosecutions had run out.

McGoff's lawyers had moved for dismissal on grounds that the time limit for prosecuting him had expired.

The Justice Department alledged that McGoff had acted as an agent for the South African government from 1974 to August 1979, but the department never charged McGoff until November of this year.

Federal District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled that McGoff would have been required to register as a South African agent up to June 13, 1979.

"On that day, the obligation of the defendant to register ended and thus triggered the general five-year statute of limitations which expired approximately two years before this information was filed in this court," the judge ruled.

Judge Richey disagreed with the Justice Department's contention that there was no statute of limitations because McGoff had never registered as a foreign agent.

The 1938 Foreign Agents Registration Act states that "failure to file any such registration statement... shall be considered a continuing offense for as long as such failure exists, notwithstanding any state of limitations or other statute to the contrary."

1986 IN REVIEW

by DOUG TRUAX

Change was everywhere in 1986.

Major development projects were begun or approved on the downtown waterfront. The city's downtown development plan finally began to show material progress and the city neared completion of two major construction projects – the public safety building and the water treatment plant.

New businesses came ... and went ... in numbers that old-timers had never seen before. Even home construction was at record levels.

With change came controversy. The Water's Edge project remained a hot topic for the Charlevoix area and, for a time, sparks flew over a proposed development at North Point.

Residents continued the debate over how much growth and where. Zoning and mediation and wetlands became buzz words heard often over coffee or lunch.

1986 was also a year of triumph and of tragedy. Charlevoix High School sports teams brought home impressive laurels and November's elections focused the spotlight on several new politicans. There were heroic acts on the water's of Lake Michigan and tragedy as well.

Charlevoix lost some of its native sons and mourned an adopted one.

As usual the town celebrated and played and feted the summer away. Festivals and special events seemed to form an unending parade through the brief but beautiful days of summer.

In all, it was an interesting if not a vintage year. But not so interesting that for awhile the most burning issue before city council was where to locate a public restroom.

All the while, Mother Nature was making a headline or two as the water level in Lake Michigan continued its inexorable climb, breaking records as it rose.

Here are a few of the highlights:

Condos and controversy

The year of 1986 began where the previous one left off – with the Charlevoix area emersed in controversy over condominiums.

A plan to build condominiums on 26-acres of land that includes shoreline dunes passed the Charlevoix Township zoning board in January. Developer Jeff DeGayner proposed to put some 120 units on the property.

Environmentalists and many nearby property owners fought the plan. In mid-January DeGayner asked the Township Board to delay a vote on the rezoning. Some observers felt the board was ready to turn down the proposed multi-family plan.

The controversy reached a tragic impasse at the end of March when DeGayner and Richard Turner, owner of the property, were killed in a plane crash near Boyne Falls.

THE DEBATE over the Water's Edge condo project was in full swing also as the new year began. Environmentalists and developers waged a bitter battle for the votes of Charlevoix Township residents in a referendum on the zoning for the project.

On Feb. 17 the voters spoke out against the project to build up to 208 condominiums on the 41-acre Lake Charlevoix parcel. The developer promptly sued the township seeking monetary damages and an overturn of the referendum results.

The developer returned to the township with a new plan to have the land rezoned planned unit development (PUD), allowing up to 162 condos.

In face of a renewed battle, a few individuals convinced the contending parties in the dispute to give mediation a try.

In April the talks began and by May an agreement had been forged. It called for 135 condos on 51 acres (10 acres in Marion Township were added to the site plan). Waterfront development within 600 feet of shoreline was set at a maximum of 45 units. The township also agreed to institute new waterfront zoning controls.

The developer applied for U.S. Army Corps of Engineer and Department of Natural Resources permits to build in a wetland and to construct a 68-boat marina.

In December, the Corps and the DNR came back with their decision: no construction on the wetlands. The developer vowed to appeal and called the mediation agreement null and void. Environmentalists cried foul, saying the agreement would limit lakefront development regardless of the decision on the wetlands permits.

Across the lake, there were in-

A new look

The face of Charlevoix began to take on a new expression in 1986. Some liked what they saw. Others said they preferred the old look better.

The most dramatic change was on the shores of Round Lake where the new Edgewater Inn began to take shape. The first phase, containing 30 rental condo units, was completed during the summer and in the fall work began on phase two, which will include another 30 condos. Also planned are a row of retail shops on Michigan Avenue.

City council gave its blessing to a neighboring project, the 35-room Rysberg Inn motel. The new motel, which received some opposition in council, will be built on Michigan Avenue just north of the Weathervane Restaurant.

The city's Downtown Development Authority also unveiled its plan for the area in April. The site plan called for a variety of improvements in the downtown area, to be paid for largely by tax increment financing.

Included on the plan were boat piers in Round Lake, increased parking, a commercial fish display, a walkway and viewing deck in Hoffmann Park, boaters' rest rooms and a new harbormaster's quarters, elimination of some Bridge Street parking and left turn lanes to side streets.

The plan received mixed reviews, with council sending a loud and clear message that it considered parking the number one priority.

Interestingly, one of the small features of the plan became a battleground for contending forces. Shown in the landscape architect's drawing was a rest room located on the grassy area north of Burnsides store.

With state funds available, the DDA pushed for the rest rooms to be located in a viewing gazebo. The lines were drawn. Those opposing any construction in the open areas of East Park and adjoining green spaces bitterly fought the proposal.

On the other side were those arguing that the city needed more rest rooms to accommodate tourists and that the viewing gazebo would be an attractive addition.

Council finally agreed to a version of the rest rooms only after the mayor cast a tie-breaking vote. Then the council reversed itself and went on record as opposing the rest

The new Edgewater Inn was among the many construction projects taking shape in Charlevoix during 1986.

The lake's legacy

As one would expect in a port city, events on and around the water played a major role in the events of the past year.

But 1986 seemed to have more than its share of news tied to Lake Michigan and surrounding waters.

It was the source of great tragedy, heroism, an international incident and a continuing threat to shoreline residents.

The lake claimed several victims. Among them were the three fishermen aboard the fishing tug, Razel Brothers, which sank off Whiskey Island on August 20 after colliding with or being swamped by a passing 620-foot Yugoslavian freighter.

Lost in the accident were the Naubinway co-owners of the tug, Russell King and Ed Perkins, and fisherman Kurt Perterson of Manistique.

County prosecutor Kraag Lieberman brought negligent homicide charges against the captain of the Yugoslavian ship, the Jablanica. The charges, however, were dropped in November when District Court Judge Harvey Varnum ruled that statements made by Captain Seman Franko were inadmissable because he had made them without being read his rights.

The plot thickened somewhat at the same time when divers working for the Yugoslavian government and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department discovered that sometime after the ship had sunk it had sustained extensive damage. The sheriff's department began an investigation.

THE LAKE TOOK another victim in October when former Detroit Tiger star Norm Cash drowned after slipping off his boat docked at Beaver Island.

Cash, who owned a condominium in Charlevoix and was a frequent visitor, apparently lost his footing trying to board the boat during a rainstorm.

His death was mourned by friends and acquaintances throughout the nation who remembered the Tiger slugger as a fun loving man with an irrepressible love of baseball during his days on the field.

A NEAR TRAGEDY was averted in July when Tour Beaver Island residents were left adrift after their fishing tug, the Hazel W., was swamped in heavy seas and sank within minutes in 250 feet of water some five miles northwest of Charlevoix.

The four were Michael Martin, Robert McPhearson, James Martin and Clifford Napont, all of St. James. They were pulled from the water by Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Officer Allen Muma.

Muma piloted the sheriff's department 18-foot Boston Whaler into the heavy seas, following a compass reading until he was able to see the Island Airways plane circling the Consumers offers to help those with trouble paying home heating bills

Winter weather brings falling temperatures and, at the same time, increased energy costs. For some people, paying their energy bills can be a problem. But it doesn't have to be that way, says Boneta Baughn, consumer affair director for Consumers Power Company's northern region.

"It is our responsibility to help customers who, for one reason or another, are having trouble paying their energy bills. Only a small percentage of people try to avoid paying their bills – the majority truly have financial difficulties we may be able to help them resolve," Baughn said.

The consumer affairs department deals with individual customers, social services agencies, charitable organizations, and locally elected and appointed government representatives. There are 169,000 residential electric and gas customers in the northern region.

"I'm available to speak to local groups, such as community organizations, senior citizen clubs and union groups – and present them with information on current assistance programs which are available," Baughn said. "My area has a good working relationship with representatives of the Department of Social Services, community action agencies and the area agencies on aging."

"Our consumer affairs people know what sort of help is available and how to get it," Baughn said. "We treat each customer as an individual and consider any special circumstances that might exist."

"We're here to help. If you think you're going to have difficulties, don't wait until it's too late," said Baughn. "Get in touch with us right away."

Residents asked to report eagles

Between January 1 and 15, Michigan residents are urged to watch for bald eagles wintering in Michigan to assist in a cooperative survey conducted by Michigan's Nongame Wildlife Fund and the National Wildlife Federation.

The survey is being conducted to learn how many of these magnificent birds of prey are present in Michigan in early January.

Anyone sighting an adult bald eagle which clearly displays a white head and white tail within the January 1-15 dates should send a post card with the date seen and locality of the eagle, along with a return phone number to: Eagles, Michigan Nongame Wildlife Fund, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI 48909.

Council gives itself a Christmas present

City Council normally meets four Mondays a month. Two of the meetings are regular council sessions in which official decisions can be reached. The other two are "committee of the whole" meetings where issues are discussed and debated but not acted upon.

Council is not required to meet on the weeks that have a fifth Monday in the month. Occasionally that date is reserved for a special retreat or other informational meeting.

This past week was one of those fifth Mondays on which council would not normally meet.

But a "special" committee of the whole meeting was called by Mayor pro-tem Ray Wood and the council duly gathered at city hall. What urgent, special city business required this meeting? Well, on the agenda were two items. A request to use Ferry Beach for sailboat training next summer, hardly an urgent matter, and a news item about modifications to a low service pump at the new water treatment plant. On this latter issue, the city manager had already made the decision and the information was merely passed along to council.

A few other informational notes were discussed and 38 minutes after it began, council adjorned.

Oh yes, council members are paid $25 per committee of the whole meeting ($35 for the mayor). The tab for Monday's session came to $160 for the six councilmen gathered.

Merry Christmas.

They served well

As the new year comes to an end Charlevoix is about to lose the services of three dedicated people who have served it well. We'd like to express our appreciation to them and the job they did for the citizens of Charlevoix.

The demands of public service are many. Public criticism, long hours and difficult decisions are often not noticed by the people who benefit the most. So our hats are off to these exceptional people.

Hal Hill has served as mayor for the last two years and in that time he has brought a lot of class and dignity to the office. Meetings under Hill were always run with good old southern hospitality and people appearing before the council were listened to and treated with respect. That goes a long way toward building confidence in city government, in our opinion.

Although any mayor under the city charter has little direct power, his or her influence can be felt in a variety of ways. Hill was a force on council and it was usually for the betterment of the city.

Whether it was "you'all'ing" with the folks or pushing council to act on an issue, Hill kept the needs of the citizens in mind. He ran a tight, well-controlled meeting and help guide the city to some important decisions.

Councilman Ray Wood served the city's First Ward from 1974 through 1986. Like Hill, he is a respected and well-liked member of the community who gave much of himself to see that Charlevoix was a better place to live.

We'd hate to add up the number of hours Wood spent on the people's behalf in those 13 years of service, but we are certain they far outdistance the effort put forth by the average citizen.

Wood, although a quiet and thoughtful councilman, has been known to get riled up when the issue was important to him. In particular, he has taken issue of late with the amount of condominium building on the waterfront and with the demands of some developers for constant variances in the city code.

Ray's experience and congenial manner will be missed on council.

Claudia Kenifeck, although not an elected city official, has been without question an important and vital public servant for the people of Charlevoix.

In her two years as executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Kenifeck brought a lively, enthusiastic and business-like effort to the promotion of Charlevoix.

She was not afraid of standing up to be counted on controversial issues, and yet she showed an uncanny ability to work with a variety of different groups and factions – a necessary attribute for any Chamber director.

During her tenure, Kenifeck worked to attract new business to Charlevoix, directed an inventory of existing business, helped increase membership 70 percent, served on the governor's Air Service Task Force, worked to develop Chamber issue statements on a variety of topics, wrote a regular Chamber column for the Courier, developed a Chamber newsletter, worked toward a community center, laid the groundwork for county-wide Chamber planning, and accomplished myriad other things for the people and business of Charlevoix.

The hours of the executive director are long and the responsibilities many. Claudia served us all well.

Cable TV

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

What do you think about the possibility of the city going into the cable TV business?

I'm a believer in private enterprise, and all that, but cable TV is a different kettle of fish.

Up until now, the city has been served by a single cable company which has had different names over the years. And I'll be the first to admit the service and reception have been excellent, allowing most city residents to ditch their unsightly rooftop TV antennas.

For all practical purposes, the cable company has had a monopoly in Charlevoix since the late 1960s. But unlike other monopolies such as Michigan Bell and Consumers Power, cable TV is unregulated.

Ma Bell and Consumers must go before the state Public Service Commission every time they want to raise rates. Not so cable TV companies. They are free to charge whatever the traffic will bear.

To date, cable TV rates have been fair, with modest increases from time to time as costs went up or additional programming was provided.

Then, on Dec. 8, Northern Cable, the present owner, announced that that monthly cable charge in Charlevoix would jump 25 percent on May 1 — from $12 to $14.95. The company also announced it was adding a couple of new channels and would need to install additional reception equipment at Mt. McSauba.

Coming on the heels of record low inflation, the request stunned city fathers who promptly denied the cable company permission to install any more equipment at the mountain. The company said fine, but the rate would go up anyway as scheduled, without the additional programming. (Since then the firm has softened its stand, saying it will look for alternate dish sites after the holidays.)

Bayshore Cablevision, which is headquartered at Bay Shore and serves ever widening rural areas of Charlevoix County, made the next move by announcing that it would like a non-exclusive franchise to operate in the city, with a basic rate of $10.50 a month.

Whereupon City Manager Michael Wiesner suggested the city itself go into the cable business, pointing out a feasibility study would cost about $5,000.

Which brings us around to the question of whether the city should enter a business that up until now has been handled by private enterprise.

Normally, the answer would be no; but in a monopoly situation, city ownership might be a better deal for subscribers. Of course, we could have two cable companies — Northern and Bayshore — each in competition with the other. But that would be very cumbersome, with miles of redundant wiring throughout the city.

If rates continue to escalate at 25 percent a crack, you can be sure that TV dishes are going to crop up in every backyard as subscribers begin to fall away. And even the best looking TV dish can't compete with a lilac bush as backyard ornamentation.

Furthermore, escalating rates will make television an unaffordable luxury for many low-income families and senior citizens, folks who already have too many demands on their limited incomes.

Lastly, the city already owns the poles on which the TV cable is strung and computerized billing equipment already is in place at city hall.

The idea is certainly is worth looking into. From here, $5,000 appears to be a small price to pay for a feasibility study.

Northern may even scratch — or at least reduce — its proposed rate increase if it sees Charlevoix means business.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

SOME THINGS OLD, SOME THINGS NEW

by Rev. Robert H. Piller
Bethany Lutheran Church

Were it not for the mark on the calendar, the midnight firecrackers or the dropping of the glittering globe in New York's Times Square, we might not know that a new year has begun. So very many things remain the same – our health, our jobs, our families, our problems, and most of all, our Lord.

Yet even if we don't celebrate with champagne and dancing, it is important to mark the passing of an old year and the beginning of a new. Things will not be totally the same in the new year. It is not merely that we will grow older. In our lives there quite possibly could be deeply moving changes that will take place.

As we look back over the past year, we do well to celebrate the gifts of God. Despite our failures, faults and shortcomings, most of us have had health enough to go about our tasks. Children, grandchildren; friends and relatives have been there to give us a sense of joy. Many have even been able to get in that trip or two, and will be able to savor those memories for years to come.

Above all, we Christians have received the grace of God to cover us with the right to stand in His presence forever. Times of loss have grieved our spirits but not destroyed us. Had we known, we would have thought we could never survive, but here we are, and we thank God.

So what can we expect in 1987? More of the same? Of course. Days and years are so "everyday," as someone has observed. Surprises and shocks may come, some accompanied with pain. Other days will bring sheer delight and joy.

As our days, so shall our strength be. We have God's own assurance that each day throughout the coming year will find us equipped with the amount of strength that will be necessary to bear its burden, to endure its trial, to fight its battle through.

We have this assurance because we have a friend who has promised to be with us in His love, "even unto the end of the world" – Jesus Christ, our Lord.

As we look back upon the long road which lies behind us, with all its twists and turns, and as we look forward to the unknown and untraveled road that lies before us, let us take the time to stop–to ponder–and then to pray for guidance from our Lord. Have a blessed New Year!

Out of the Blue

It seems to me that Cable TV
Has a devilish purpose, being
To charge me more and more and more
As there's less and less worth seeing.

Deer hunters take record number of deer in '86 season

A record 192,000 deer were estimated to have been taken during the 1986 Firearm deer season, including a record buck harvest of 147,000, making it the most successful season in the history of Michigan deer hunting.

The preliminary figurcrs were announced by Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Director Gordon E. Guyer at the December meeting of the Natural Resources Commission in Lansing.

"We report a 3 percent increase over last year's record firearm deer harvest of 186,840 deer," said Guyer. With an estimated 725,000 firearm deer hunters afield during the November 15-30, 1986 season, that's a 26 percent hunter success rate, more than twice the rate of 20 years ago, he added.

A comparison of the 1985 and 1986 record firearm deer harvests follows:

	Upper Peninsula down 12% from 1985	Northern Lower Peninsula (up 1% from 1985)	Southern Lower Peninsula (up 15% from 1985)	Total (up 3% from 1985)
1986
	25,500 bucks	79,000 bucks	42,500 bucks	147,000 bucks
	3,000 antlerless	21,500 antlerless	20,500 antlerless	45,000 antlerless
				192,000
1985
	29,590 bucks	79,000 bucks	35,970 bucks	144,560 bucks
	2,760 antlerless	20,770 antlerless	18,750 antlerless	42,280 antlerless
				186,840

A 12 percent drop in the Upper Peninsula harvest from 1985 was not surprising, said the DNR. Last

On the other hand, a 15 percent increase in deer harvested in the southern Lower Peninsula was due primarily to improved deer habitat, high productivity and minimal winter losses. Once abundant agricultural lands now left to brush have provided excellent browse for the deer, increasing the herd substantially here, said DNR wildlife biologists.

Many conditions figured prominently in this year's record harvest, said the DNR. These inlcude:

- Mild temperatures throughout the 15-day season, extending the hunter's time afield.
- Good tracking snow throughout much of northern Michigan, prolonging good hunting conditions.
- Availability of a second firearm deer license this year, allowing a hunter to take another deer and to hunt more days. About 50 percent of successful deer hunters stopping at DNR highway check stations with their deer had already purchased a second deer license, according to DNR reports.
- Standing corn left unharvested last year because of excessive rain-snow – providing food for the deer during the winter months.
- $1.50 from each deer hunter's license funds the DNR's Deer Range Improvement Program, which has provided more than $20 million since the program began in 1972. Michigan's herd has doubled in size since then, partially due to projects of this kind.
- Increased activity by the forest products industry. Clearing of trees from areas, providing excellent browse (new shoots-brush) for deer.

An estimated $200 million was spent by deer hunters during the 1986 firearm deer season, the DNR reported. This included such expenses as food, lodging, transportation and equipment. License costs and fees were not included in this figure. A detailed report on 1986 deer hunter expenditures, furnished by the DNR, will be available next June.

Archery deer hunting continued in Michigan through Jan. 1, 1987; the muzzleloader deer season concluded December 15. DNR statisticians predict that combined firearm, archery and muzzleloader deer harvests this year will approach 250,000.

Michigan's pre-season deer herd was estimated at more than one million.

winter's severity contributed to a loss of nearly 100,000 deer in the U.P., mostly to malnutrition.

Terry Salmonson of Charlevoix was among the state's many successful deer hunters this year. Salmonson was doubly lucky as he bagged an eight-point buck the closing day of bow and arrow season and then scored on a six-point two days later with a rifle.

Hunting firearm accidents down

Firearm deer hunting accidents this year claimed the lives of five hunters and injured 28 others, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reported. These preliminary figures compared with six fatalities and 30 injuries from the 1985 firearm deer season.

Three fatals and 15 injuries were attributed to line-of-sight accidents, in other words, mistaken for game, out-of-sight of the shooter and shooter swinging on game. Self-inflicted wounds accounted for two fatals and six injuries involving careless handling of loaded firearms in the field and in and around a vehicle, and during unloading and loading of firearms. Six injuries resulted in an accidental discharge between two parties.

"We're pleased we're below a year ago on total accidents," said DNR Law Enforcement Hunter Education Coordinator Jim Dabb, "and believe hunter orange and hunter education courses had a significant impact in keeping those figures down.

Vital Options starts new classes

Vital Options is offering an expanded class schedule throughout northern Michigan to help students start the year off right.

All programs can be done at a variety of levels and are designed with the aid of the University of Michigan Fitness Research Center.

"Our newest program, body-fit, aims at those students who may want a lower level workout," Vital Options instructor Candy Smith said. "Although body-fit is low impact, the format continues to include stretch, strength and stamina with no complicated footwork. Vital Options hopes to encourage those people who have been hesitant to exercise or are waiting until they lose a few more pounds. Wait no longer."

Vital Options fitness includes attention to three essential components of a well-formed exercise program: cardio-respiratory fitness, flexibility and strength development.

Most of the northern Michigan instructors for Vital Options attended a 1986 workshop at the U-M Fitness Research Center on Nov. 22.

Classes are held in Boyne City, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Harbor Springs Petoskey. Call Candy Smith for more information at 547-5358.

57th annual cribbage tournament set

The 57th annual cribbage tournament, the longest ongoing annual event in the community, has been scheduled to start Thursday, Jan. 8, at the Masonic Temple according to Ted Pennell, tournament secretary.

Sponsored by Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., and Charlevoix Lodge No. 228, F. & A.M., the tournament came into being the early days of the Great Depression and has continued each winter since 1930.

The tournament, which will be played at 7:30 p.m. alternately between the Masonic Temple and the American Legion Post Home, meeting place for the Oddfellow Lodge, will begin Jan. 8 and continue for the next 10 weeks. The Oddfellows are the defending champions.

The first night of play will be held at the Masonic Temple at 7:30 p.m. (a half hour earlier than in the past).

Tournament play is not limited to membership in the sponsoring organizations but is open to all cribbage players in the community. An open invitation is extended to all cribbage players, Pennell said.

The tournament is climaxed in March with a dinner hosted by the losing team. All awards are made at that time.

teresting developments in another major, some say landmark, condominium case. In January Cheboygan Circuit Judge Robert C. Livo ruled against developer William Fox's contention that the Hayes Township zoning ordinance contained an unconstitutional provision against funnel development. In a broad-based decision Livo ruled in favor of the township zoning and against Fox who wants to build 128 condos on his 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage.

In July, the Michigan Court of Appeals agreed to hear the Fox case. No decision has yet been rendered on the appeal.

AS THE DEBATES over development grew more intense, the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee began its second year of work in January 1986.

The committee – consisting of 15 representatives from townships and cities bordering Lake Charlevoix, environmentalists, developers and the county planning commission – worked throughout the year to develop a management plan for the watershed.

After months of gathering information, the committee moved toward a final report when in September it hired Dave Knight to begin writing a draft of the management plan. Four major sections were proposed including a biography of the lake, society's use of the lake, procedures for developing a management plan and proposed regulations.

While Knight worked on the first three sections, the committee tackled the regulations. Among the most controversial was a proposal for boat quotas at some point in the future based on the carrying capacity of the lake.

Reaction to the quotas was rapid and most of it negative; the committee dropped the idea. In its stead were boat control proposals based on shoreline frontage and decisions by township and city officials.

City completes major new projects rooms.

With the end of the tourist season in site, and both sides showing signs of flagging interest, council decided to let the matter rest for three months.

EQUALLY CONFUSING was the decision on the location of a new Charlevoix post office.

In September, the U.S. Postal Service confirmed that it had selected a site for the new post office at the outskirts of town.

The location, near the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31, did not please a variety of groups who favored a downtown site. They petitioned their congressmen and worked to identify other sites closer to the city's core.

The Postal Service said it would consider additional locations and eventually ended up evaluating the site at the corner of State and Hurlbut streets. No decision had been received as 1986 came to an end.

THE CITY DID virtually complete several major projects during 1986. First among them was the new Lake Michigan water treatment plant, constructed by the Environmental Protection Agency to replace Charlevoix's TCE contaminated well water supply.

After several agonizing years of discovery and decision making the project to build the new plant moved into the final phases in 1986 and was scheduled to pump its first uncontaminated water during the first week of 1987.

The EPA is scheduled to pay 90 percent of the costs of the project and the city 10 percent.

ALSO NEARING completion was the city's new public safety building. Ground was broken in May and despite controversy over location, cost and quality of construction, the building took final shape in December and was to be ready for the city's fire trucks and police vehicles in the new year.

Another proud accomplishment of the city was the completion of the industrial park on the north side. The decision to locate the park in the Taylor Road area was not without opponents, but by July the road and sewer work had been completed and nine lots on 22 acres were ready for purchase.

CPI of Charlevoix became the first tenant when council approved sale of the property in late July.

Work also proceeded on several other projects including the Hoffmann Park walkway and viewing area, the commercial fish display, and the south bridge stairway as winter closed out the year.

"I saw a bunch of lumber and saw heads bobbing," Muma said afterward. "The waves were shooting the lumber like little missiles."

Muma received a medal of valor from the sheriff's department for his efforts. It was the first ever given in Charlevoix County. Island Airways pilot Mark Welke was also honored.

LAKE MICHIGAN took a toll of another sort throughout the year as water levels continued to rise following decades of above normal precipitation.

The levels consistently set new monthly records, causing damage to roads and shoreline. By the fall of 1986 the water levels had begun a seasonal decline but were still above the levels set during comparable months in 1985.

THE POSITIVE NEWS from Lake Michigan was that the salmon fishery for the Lake Charlevoix area was beginning to take hold. Fishermen had good success on the chinook salmon which the Department of Natural Resources has been planting in the area since 1982.

A new salmon harvest weir was put in place at Medusa Creek where the DNR has conducted its salmon plants in recent years.

A creel census conducted by the Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix revealed that anglers spent more than 7 million hours fishing in Lake Michigan, adding some $91.4 million to the economy in the process.

McGoff charges dropped

The charges against McGoff, presently head of Global Communications, resulted from his attempt in 1974 to buy the now-defunct Washington (D.C.) Star with money allegedly supplied by the South African government which wanted to use the newspaper to improve its image with the U.S. public.

Instead of buying the Star, McGoff was alleged to have used some of the South African funds to purchase an interest in the Sacramento (Calif.) Union.

A 1979 investigation by the South African government revealed that $11.35 million for the alleged purchase of the Star had been transferred to McGoff through a Swiss bank account.

McGoff was charged as an agent of South Africa for engaging in political activities, disseminating political propaganda, serving as a publicity agent or political consultant, and disbursing money or other things of value within the United States for or in the interest of South Africa.

He pleaded innocent to the charges on Nov. 26.

Why Are These Men Smiling?

Meet Cecil Peterson. He's the smallish man with the newspaper. Cecil never misses a chance to check what's happening in his hometown.

Why? Just last week he found a bird cage for his pet gerbil in the Charlevoix Courier Classified section. The reason Cecil is reading while standing up in a crowd (he usually has better manners but he doesn't know any of these fellows anyway) is because he's reading a story about his nephew's basketball team.

Cecil never misses one single issue of his hometown newspaper because he knows that it's crammed full of stuff that the city dailies never touch. Stuff like local bargains at his favorite stores, those juicy classified ads, and what's happening at city hall.

There was even a story about Cecil the time he grew the largest squash he's ever seen. Or anyone else had ever seen for that matter. Cecil cut that picture out and put it in his scrapbook. He ate the squash.

Oh yes, why are those other fellows smiling?

Well, first they're on their way home and second they know their hometown newspaper will be waiting for them when they get there.

Don't miss an issue

Ski teams look to numbers for strength in 1987

Hope to repeat as champions

"We're coming off our best season ever. We've had a lot of success and we graduated a lot of talent. Now it's time to start over," Coach Erik Lundteigen said of the Charlevoix High School boys and girls ski teams.

"I think there is success in numbers and we have numbers, some 40 candidates. Everyone will have a chance to earn a spot on the team with either the varsity or the JVs. That is how we build the team," Lundteigen added. Working with Lundteigen as team coach is Mike Bonello.

In 1986 the teams had their best year. The boys finished fifth in the state after winning the Class C regional and the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference titles with a record of 87-7. The girls team finished third in the state, first in the regional and second in the conference. The team had an 85-4 record.

Lundteigen said that he expects the Petoskey boys team which will return in its entirety and the Harbor Springs girls team to be the strongest in the ski league which also includes Gaylord, Grayling, Sault Ste. Marie, Boyne City, East Jordan, Bellaire, Kalkaska and Charlevoix.

Among the returnees who are strong candidates for the boys team will be seniors Karl Erber, a regular last season and team captain this year, Curt McCandless, Matt Dixon and Jason Fettig.

Sophomores are Wes Cumberland, a regular from last season and Charlie Witthoeft.

Wendy Voisin, captain of the girls team, is the only senior returning. The list of juniors includes Lauren Pace, an All State from last season, Monica Havens and Allison Hall. One sophomore, Carla Hoffman, also returns from last year.

These 11 skiers saw enough varsity action last season to win letters.

Other candidates for the year's teams will come from the remaining aspirants, Lundteigen said.

Charlevoix teams will take to the slopes in competition on Thursday, Jan. 8, with the Rayders hosting the meet at Boyne Mountain in competition with Kalkaska, East Jordan, Bellaire and Grayling. The other five teams will be at Nub's Nob.

The following week, Petoskey, Harbor and Charlevoix will participate in the Traverse City Invitational meet.

The teams have been preparing for the opening of the season since Nov. 15. They have been running and performing exercises geared toward building muscles used in skiing, Lundteigen explained. "We've been using a lot of leg exercises. Strong legs are essential to skiing," he commented.

After the dry land exercises, the teams went to the slopes on Dec. 17. Since then, they've been at both Nub's Nob and at Schuss Mountain twice. "We've been skiing on man-made snow. What we need now is natural snow. That's what we're hoping for in time for our first meet," Lundteigen added.

Lundteigen is enthusiastic about this year's team. "They're young but the numbers make them competitive. They're working very hard. Now it's up to us to bring them along."

Volleyball team returns veterans

The Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team will open its season at Cheboygan Thursday, Jan. 8 with optimism for a winning season.

"We should have a pretty good season. The girls have a good attitude. They have speed and desire; they're very coachable," Coach Brenda Bryan said. "There are six seniors who have been together for four years. The varsity should do well."

The team has been practicing for several weeks in preparation for the opening game.

Among the seniors are four regulars from last season, Amy Antaya, a spiker, and Jennifer Sell and Jill Taylor, setters. The fourth is Rhonda Brown who plays all positions but setter. Amy McKinney and Julie Martin round out the group of seniors. Like Brown they can play any position but setter.

Junior candidates for the squad who have had limited experience are Carla Henry, Shelly Crain, Carrie Williams, Michelle Seibert and Trina Wiser.

Starters have not been named at this time but will likely come from the upper classmen, though there are sophomores who are working hard who could be candidates, Bryan said.

The number of sophomores and freshmen are limited. They will make up the JV squad. The list includes Billie Jean Habel, Becky Melke, Laura Wilmot, Ann Sanford and Linda Hoeksema. The freshmen, newcomers to the sport, are Marcie Wynkoop, Shirley Bourdo, Anita Chambers, Rachel Myers, Stacey Russell, Patti Brannon and Jody Kluczynski.

Thursday's game will launch a 15-game schedule that will conclude March 3 when the team will go into the playoffs for the District tournament.

Charlevoix skier places third in state junior NASTAR ranking

Competing in the nationwide Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR ski racing program, Charlevoix resident, J.H. Heck, placed third in Michigan in the 7 to 9-year-old category.

Heck recorded a season best 24 handicap while racing at Nubs Nob.

During the 1985-86 season, over 140,000 young skiers raced in the Coca-cola Junior NASTAR program held at 135 ski areas in 30 states. Each racer's best handicap of the season was recorded, and all participants were ranked by handicap, age and gender in each of 40 states.

"It is quite an accomplishment for these young racers to make the state rankings," said NASTAR Commissioner Bob Beattie. "J.H. is one of the best recreational ski racers in Michigan and can be very proud of this achievement. I hope to see these young racers competing in the Olympics someday."

NASTAR's unique handicapping system, by which all participants are measured against a national standard, allows kids to win gold, silver or bronze medals depending on their individual performance in their age group. NASTAR is open to boys and girls of all abilities in the following age groups: four and under: 5-6, 7-9; 10-12; 13-15 and 16-18.
